CAROL EXERTS ROYAL POWERS TO CURB FOES

Bucharest's Mayor and Former Ministers Feel His Ire.

REGIME OF MICHAEL CONFIRMED IN FULL

20,000 Rejoice at Edict Quashing Charges of Pardonable Kind.

RECONCILIATION SEEN WITH FORMER WIFE

Liberal Party Divided Over New Sovereign; Envoy to Paris Recalled.

Bucharest, June 9 (A.P.).—Carol II, new monarch of Roumania, showed today that he intends to be a ruling king in the full sense of the word. He ordered immediate prosecution of Dr. Angelescu, minister of education in the last Liberal government, after he learned that Dr. Angelescu had spoken disrespectfully of him at a Liberal meeting this morning.

He decreed likewise for the same reason against Dr. Kostinescu, Mayor of Bucharest, and Dr. Demetrescu Braila, former minister of health.

As a further demonstration that he has taken full authority from the beginning King Carol also confirmed all of the acts and ordinances promulgated in the name of the countrys legitimate ruler—Carol's 9-year-old son, the former boy King Michael—during King Carol's exile of more than four years.

General Amnesty Granted.

Meanwhile 20,000 persons charged with military offenses committed during the World War and awaiting trial breathed easier tonight on learning that King Carol had ordered the quashing of all charges of a pardonable nature—both political and those growing out of temper caused by extreme distress.

The Liberal party, which was responsible for the errant prince's expulsion in 1923, still holds aloof from the popular fervor that greeted the return of the former crown prince to the throne of his late father and has issued a manifesto against his accession. The return was backed chiefly by the Peasants party, headed by former Premier Julius Maniu.

Indications were tonight that the Liberals would split. Leaders of the party went into conference this morning and emerged in discord, George Bratianu and his followers favoring recognition of King Carol, with the others—mostly elderly members, remaining loyal to Michael, Carol's 9-year-old son, who has been reduced from king to crown prince.

Problem of New Monarch.

It is understood that Vintila Bratianu, chieftain of the party and principal opponent of the new king, will resign if his group swings to the new regime.

The king's problem is that he desires to solve the political discord without dissolving Parliament which yesterday placed him upon the throne. He wishes a concentration government, with members of all parties united, but doubt was expressed here tonight that former Premier Maniu, whom the king favors, would be able to form it. Hence the king is expected to commission some one now outside Parliament to form a ministry that will be supported by Maniu's parliamentary majority.

But, aside from political complications, King Carol appears to have progressed in other directions during his two-day tenure. Princess Helen, the wife who divorced him two years ago, is said to be considering a reconciliation, both for reasons of state and to assure the proper training of the former boy king with the care of a father and a mother. In that case Princess Helen would be crowned Queen of Roumania at the coronation of King Carol in October.

Dowager Queen Won Over.

The Dowager Queen Marie, his mother, has swung to his side and today telegraphed her congratulations on his accession to the throne of her late husband, King Ferdinand.

The people, too, appear to be delighted. Bucharest is decorated as in carnival time, and the inhabitants have celebrated by dancing in the streets. The new king receives an ovation wherever he is seen.

An early reconciliation between King Carol and Princess Helen today was forecast in official circles, when Carol returned their son, Michael, to his mother.

Carol and Helen Confer.

The king and Princess Helen had a long discussion yesterday on their future mutual attitude and finally agreed not to demand an annulment of the divorce.

The king took his little son, 9-year-old Michael, who is now known as the Duke of Alba Julia, to the Cotroceni Royal Palace, and it was understood that he intended to keep

GOV. DAN MOODY.

MOODY TRADES RAPS WITH J. E. FERGUSON

Texas Governor Tells State Committee Foe Is Hiding Behind His Wife.

CALLED COWARD IN TURN

Austin, Tex., June 9 (A.P.).—Party regularity for the voter but not necessarily for the candidate, was the policy approved here today by the State Democratic executive committee in drawing up regulations for the July primary.

The meeting was enlivened by a verbal clash between Gov. Dan Moody, who declined to run for a third term, and former Gov. James E Ferguson, husband of former Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson, who is a candidate again for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Gov. Moody expressed the hope that the Democrats would not nominate either Mrs. Ferguson or former U. S. Senator Earle B. Mayfield. He declared that Ferguson, who was ruled ineligible to hold office by the State supreme court as the result of his impeachment and removal from office in 1917, was "running under Mrs. Ferguson's petticoat" and that Senator Mayfield was "unfit to hold public office."

Mr. Ferguson jumped to his feet and, shaking his finger at the governor, shouted:

"I dare you to run, you coward!"

"I met you and defeated you; there can be no greater coward than one who betrays public trust and seeks to destroy good government, and I anticipate your ignominous defeat," Gov. Moody retorted.

Some one tried to defend Mayfield but his voice was lost in the din.

A proposal to require candidates for State offices to pledge themselves to "vote for and support" all of the nominees of the primary election was side-tracked. On the other hand, the committee adopted a resolution stating that any white male or female would be permitted to cast a ballot, provided they took the statutory pledge to support the nominees in the general election.

Negroes were barred from the Democratic primary under the resolution.

State Senator Thomas B. Love, a "Hoover Democrat" in 1928, who established through the courts his right to a place on the Democratic

SOVIET IN WAR ON EVERY LAND, EXPERT HOLDS

Father Walsh Testifies at House Hearing on Red Activity.

SOURCE OF BIG SUMS USED HELD MYSTERY

HATRED OF AMERICA TAUGHT TO CHILDREN

Teachers, Workers and Even Clergy Declared Dupes of Communists.

(Associated Press.)

The House investigation into Communists' activities opened yesterday with a resume of world Communist activities by the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, of Georgetown University, during which he charged the Soviet government had declared "war against all humanity," and planned to overthrow all other existing governmental systems.

Father Walsh was the first witness at a public hearing before the special House Communist investigating committee. He is director of the Foreign Service School at Georgetown University and was a member of the Hoover famine relief mission in Russia in 1921.

Secret Hearing Today.

The committee will hear Edgar Hoover, director of the investigating division of the Justice Department, today behind closed doors.

Father Walsh said the Soviet Russian government, the Communist party and the third internationale were united in an effort to overthrow all other governments. He said they worked through propagandizing, teaching children in training camps in this country, doing business through their trading concerns, particularly the Amtorg Trading Co., of New York, as well as being active among Negroes in the Southern States.

"I believe that history will bear me out that within five weeks after the Soviet government came into power in Russia in 1917," Father Walsh asserted, "a decree was issued declaring war against all humanity."

Source of Funds Mystery.

Where the Russian government obtains its funds on which it operates despite the heavy drain on the country, he said, was a mystery. He added that large sums were devoted to disseminating Communist propaganda in foreign countries, and the representatives of the government were given instructions to teach the idea of revolt.

Soviet government diplomatic pouches, he continued, were used for spreading propaganda. The direct attacks of the Communist party, he said, were through subsidizing newspapers and he cited the Daily Worker, official organ of the Communists in New York.

Father Walsh said the Soviets took groups of from 20 to 30 persons from the United States to Moscow to train them without expense. Other work in this country, he added, was to train American radicals to advocate reform, incite labor troubles, issue propaganda against national defense, and organize camps for teaching Communistic theories.

The educator said camps had been

With only a dollar between them, James Kedrick King, 15 years old, and Edward R. Green, 14 years old, set out from their homes at Anderson, S. C., the latter part of last week to see New York City.

They saw New York and were back in Washington on their return trip when Policeman Harold Johnson, stationed at Fourteenth street and New York avenue northwest, picked them up last night, and they still had 50 cents of their original stake left.

The boys told an amusing story of travel and hitch-hiking, and eating in places where they secured such tempting meals as a loaf of stale bread and a glass of water.

One of their precious nickels went for a loaf of bread in New York City, but they didn't eat the stuff, they Cincinnati, Ohio, June 9 (A.P.).—Stock market operations of its manager were blamed tonight for a reported shortage of $1,000,000 or more in the accounts of the Cincinnati branch of the Henry L. Doherty & Co., of New York, specialists in Cities Service stock.

Ohio State banking examiners were at work examining the accounts of the Cosmopolitan Bank & Trust Co. to see if that institution was affected, after reports reached them that A. W. Shafer, district salesman manager of the Doherty company, had

Business in Washington

By DANIEL J. O'BRIEN,
Vice President of the Washington Hotel Association.

Present day hotels afford an accurate barometer of business conditions, both local and national.

The stock market depression of last fall was instantly felt at hotel registration desks, hundreds of miles away from New York. Washington was not overlooked, and hotel patronage fell off, especially from delegates to convention gatherings.

There has been a marked upward climb during recent months. I look for a tremendous gain in all Washington business fields by early fall. Naturally, the mercantile establishments do not anticipate unusual buying during the summer months, although indications are that the Mayflower Hotel will enjoy the heaviest summer patronage in its history.

Advance attendance estimates for convention meetings have been surpassed with increasing margins during the past several months. The attendance at local business banquets has likewise been larger than expected. This all bespeaks a general stabilization process which should be well on the road to realization soon.

The extent of good business in Washington sets more on the shoulders of local business men than the outside influences which are frequently blamed. Cooperative effort in advertising Washington as the logical convention and tourist center of the world is sadly needed.

Every person having an investment dollar in the community should aid in overcoming the unfortunate impression which prevails in many sections of the United States that summer heat in Washington makes this beautiful city a place to be shunned. Weather Bureau figures and common sense dispute the idea, which many unthinking business men encourage by cessation of activity as soon as warm weather appears.

Business in Washington largely depends on what Washington business men desire to make it.

Due to an error, the author of the "Business in Washington" article which appeared in The Washington Post yesterday was designated as W. Clarence Miller, instead of William C. Miller, and a photograph of the former accompanied the article.

A likeness of William C. Miller, president of the W. C. & A. N. Miller Development Corporation, appears on page two of today's issue.

SENATE BACKS CONFEREES ON CITY'S UPKEEP

Bingham Reports Failure of House to Agree to $12,000,000.

MEASURE'S SUCCESS THOUGHT IMPERILLED

Determination Seen Not to Give Way Before Representatives.

SIGNED STATEMENT HITS AT UNFAIRNESS

Improvements to Capital Cited as Justification for Higher Sum.

Senate conferees on the 1931 District appropriation bill, who are in a deadlock with House conferees on the question of a Federal contribution toward cost of running the city government, have the satisfaction today of knowing that Senate leaders are behind them.

Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, chairman of the Senate conferees on the big supply bill, notified the Senate yesterday that he and his colleagues had failed to persuade House conferees that the Federal Government should contribute $12,000,000 rather than $9,000,000 toward the upkeep of the local government.

Bill Likely to Fail.

When Senator Bingham had explained the circumstances, Majority Leader Watson declared the Senate conferees were perfectly justified in "insisting on a compromise."

In the past, Senate conferees have given in to the House conferees on this question of a Federal contribution. Hence the encouragement given to Senator Bingham and the others by Leader Watson is important.

For one thing, it makes more likely a failure of the bill altogether.

Shortly after the Senate convened yesterday, Senator Bingham sent to the Vice President's desk a statement signed by himself and the other conferees—Senators Capper (Republican), of Kansas; Phipps (Republican), of Colorado; Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, and Kendrick (Democrat), of Wyoming.

Watson, Fess Approve Move.

When the statement had been read, Majority Leader Watson asked if the Senate group had offered to compromise on a figure between $9,000,000 and $12,000,000. Senator Bingham said that they had.

"It would seem," Leader Watson said, "that Senate conferees are well within their rights in insisting on a compromise."

Senator Fess (Republican), of Ohio, majority whip, also gave encouragement to the conferees.

Text of Statement.

The statement follows:

"The undersigned conferees on the part of the Senate on the District of Columbia appropriation bill for the fiscal year 1931 beg to submit the following, showing the unfairness to the District of Columbia of the $9,000,000 contribution of the Government of the United States as its share of District expenses:

"First, the contribution of the Government of the United States as its share of the expenses of the government of the District of Columbia was fixed at $9,000,000 for the fiscal year 1925 in the District of Columbia ap-

LOBBY BODY AT ODDS ON CANNON PENALTY

Caraway, Back, Modifies First Statement; Confers With Other Members.

RELIGIOUS ANGLE DENIED

(Associated Press.)

Informal conferences by members of the Senate lobby committee failed yesterday to produce an agreement on what to do about the defiance of Bishop James Cannon, jr., and further attempts toward a solution will be made today.

The conferences began as soon as Chairman Caraway returned yesterday morning from Arkansas, but night found the investigators without a decision as to what should be done to the defiant churchman who refused to answer questions about his 1928 anti-Smith activities and then walked out on the committee.

Caraway, who had been counted upon to support the bishop in his contention that the committee had no power to inquire into his political activities, told newspapermen that he had not read the record of what took place in his absence and that he would not reach a decision until he had made a thorough study of the proceedings.

While in Arkansas, Caraway issued a statement which was interpreted as meaning he did not believe the committee was empowered to inquire into political activities. He explained yesterday he had meant the committee could not investigate "purely political activities." He added, however, that if the political activities could be linked up with lobbying it would be a different situation.

"That is not the first time I have talked and then found out later what I was talking about," he laughingly told newspapermen. He expressed regret if his statement had caused any embarrassment to Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, who has been acting chairman, and Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin.

They were the only members present when the bishop defied their authority to question him and later walked from the room with a statement that if they wanted to subpena him he would be at his office. Walsh is a Catholic and a dry, while Blaine

Eleventh Victim of Thugs' Guns Within Last 10 Days.

HAD COVERED CRIME 18 YEARS FOR PAPER

Death of Newspaperman Follows Close on Another Killing.

TRIBUNE AND POST OFFER BIG REWARD

Detective Squads Comb City Rounding Up Suspected Hoodlums.

Chicago, June 9 (A.P.).—An assassin's bullet canceled "Jake" Lingle's assignment as gangland reporter for the Chicago Tribune today.

The afternoon newspapers were still churning out the story of an early morning murder when a gunman crept up behind the veteran newspaperman as he strode through the underground tunnel toward the Randolph street Illinois Central terminal, under Michigan boulevard near the public library.

His pistol barked. Lingle fell dead, a bullet through the back of his skull, and in the panic of the scores of commuters the killer dropped his weapon, fled to Michigan boulevard, vaulted a fence and was gone.

Lingle was 40 years old, police and crime reporter for the Tribune for 18 years and an intimate alike of police chiefs and hoodlums. A year ago he was the house guest of "Scarface" Al Capone at his Miami estate and for years he had known William F. Russell, police commissioner, and the detective bureau heads.

Last week Lingle was sent out to get the "inside" of the latest succession of gang murders—his own the eleventh in ten days attributed to a hoodlum's trigger.

Last week the gossip sifted down the line that Lingle was marked to go.

He had not been threatened so far as members of his family knew. Tomorrow he was to have gone with his wife and two youngsters to a newly purchased vacation home at Long Beach, Mich.

Knew Too Much, Theory.

If he was slain because he knew too much, he was the second of that ilk to fall in recent months. Revolvers spat death some weeks ago to Julius Rosenheim, who had stayed too long in that dangerous half-world between the gangster and the tipster—tipster for the crime commission and the press.

Commissioner Russell and John Stege, chief of detectives, took personal charge of the investigation and ordered an immediate roundup of hoodlums. A squad was dispatched to the Washington Park Race Track to gather in every known gangster. Lingle was bound for the races, like scores of others, in the subway leading to the Illinois Central special trains, when his slayer—apparently trailing him there from his usual luncheon place in a "Loop" restaurant—felled him.

The revolver found at the scene was an old model .45 caliber weapon with but one bullet discharged.

Collector Killed Earlier.

The second week of intensive gang retributions had opened earlier in the day with the killing of Aloysius Kearney, collector for the National Garage Owners Association. The police dallied about with theories but gained little headway in their inquiry.

A coroner's jury meanwhile was putting an official end to its own phase of the Eugene "Red" McLaughlin killing with the usual verdict—death at the hands of persons unknown. The inquest developed nothing to shed light on the fatal shooting of the gangster, whose body churned to the surface of the drain-

Young Daughter Eludes Mix; Weds Actor in Arizona Dash

Cowboy Film Star 40 Minutes Late in Effort to Block Ceremony; Says Girl Is 17, But She Claims One Year More.

Yuma, Ariz., June 9 (A.P.).—Ruth Jane Mix, young daughter of Tom Mix, film cowboy star, was married to Douglas Gilmore, screen actor, here today, despite efforts of her father to stop the ceremony.

The young couple arrived here early today, obtained a marriage license and were married by Justice of the Peace Earl Freeman, at 10:45 a. m., just 40 minutes before Sheriff J. C. Hunter, of Yuma county, received a request from Mix's representatives in Los Angeles to halt their plans.

The request was telephoned by A. H. Michael Narlian, Mix's attorney, who said Miss Mix disappeared from her home about midnight and her father believed she had eloped with Gilmore. Narlian said Mix told him the girl was only 17 years old, a year too young to marry without her parents' consent, in California, but a year above the legal limit in Arizona.

Sheriff Hunter found the couple at a hotel. The bride assured the sheriff she is 18, the age given at the marriage license bureau. Gilmore told the sheriff he was too late, and produced evidence that the ceremony was completed.

Later, the bride and bridegroom canceled reservations at the hotel, where they expected to stay several days, and departed, saying they were going back to Beverly Hills, Calif., where Gilmore has a home.

Gilmore, 27, was born in Boston and attended Notre Dame University. At Chicago, in 1920, he won the National Amateur Athletic Union championship in the 220 and 880 yard swimming events. He appeared in stage productions until last year, when he entered motion pictures.

Group to Celebrate Anniversary.

The first anniversary of the founding of the Burroughs Citizens Association will be celebated tonight at 8 o'clock in the John Burroughs School, Twentieth and Monroe streets northeast. Representative Fred A. Hartley, jr., of New Jersey, will address the gathering. Plans for the opening of the Burroughs Recreatoinal Park on July 4 will be explained.

Official Check Gives New Altitude Record to Soucek

Calibration of Barograph Shows Navy Lieutenant Reached Height of 43,166 Feet; He Plans Further Attempts to Better Mark.

Although he now holds the altitude record for two kinds of airplanes, Lieut. Apollo Soucek, U. S. N., is still making plans to better his record of 43,166 feet, established last Wednesday.

Scheduled to leave Saturday for duty on the aircraft carrier Lexington, Lieut. Soucek said, "I can now go to sea with a clear conscience, but shall devote the remainder of the week, if weather is favorable, in attempts to better both records." The two records to which he referred were for land and seaplanes.

After his flight last Wednesday Lieut. Soucek thought he had failed to better the record, then held by the German, Willi Neuenhofen, of 41,794 feet. The announcement of his achievement, which came after his barograph had been calibrated by the Bureau of Standards, was a surprise, as calibration usually reduces the apparent height.

The nearest approach to the height Lieut. Soucek attained was made by a balloonist who lost his life as a result of the cold and lack of oxygen.

Lieut. Soucek used a Wright Apache to set the new record, the same plane in which he set the seaplane record, though the floats had been exchanged for wheels. It is also the plane in which he set the record which was broken last year by Neuenhofen, when the German made a new altitude mark.

High officials of the Navy Department commended the flight. Secretary of the Navy Adams said: "Lieut. Soucek's performance is a great credit to himself and to the Navy. We are all proud of him." David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aviation, called the record "a splendid achievement."

The attempt to raise the present high mark will be made with the same plane, but with the propeller set at a sharper angle. On the record flight the metal propeller seemed to be beating the air without effect.

age canal, into which it had been tossed after being trussed and weighted down.

For the capture and conviction of Lingle's slayer, the Tribune promptly offered $25,000 reward and soon after the Chicago Evening Post added $5,000 to the sum.

Picture of Suspect Pointed Out.

Three witnesses, looking through the detective bureau rogue's gallery, pointed out the picture of Sam Hunt as strongly resembling Lingle's killer. Hunt recently was pulled from the running board of an automobile speeding away from a man who had been killed on the West Side. He was thought to be one of the killers and is now out on bond.

"I'd give my two eyes to solve the murder of Lingle," Police Commissioner William F. Russell said. "Nothing that I can do will be left undone to solve it. I have known him for more than twenty years and I was as fond of him as I would be of my own son."

State's Attorney John A. Swanson could offer no reason for the killing and Chief Investigator Patrick Roche remarked only:

"It's certainly a sad state of affairs."

Deputy Commissioner Stege ordered the arrest of John "Doss" McLaughlin, politician and former State legislator. Stege said he had been told McLaughlin had made threats against the reporter when the latter refused to aid him in obtaining official sanction for opening a gambling establishment.

Assassin Accompanied, Belief.

At the morgue, it was learned that Lingle had been shot three times—once in the chest and twice in the head. Police also were investigating reports that one or two other men accompanied the assassin.

A laborer, working in the path of the slayer's flight, saw him take off a black silk glove and gave it to police, who said it was evidence the killer was an experienced criminal who sought to avoid leaving finger prints.

Soon after Dominick Aiello was arrested. Later another detective squad seized three more leaders of the near North Side gang: Carlo Aiello, Frank Grundotzo and Vito Botitto.

Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago Crime Commission, commented:

"I am deeply shocked over the slaying of Lingle. I am gathering information and will submit it to Frank J. Loesch, president of the commission, when he returns to Chicago tomorrow."

Tells of Threats Made.

McLaughlin was later arrested and brought to detective headquarters. Commenting on the arrest, Roche said:

"About a week ago, McLaughlin called on State's Attorney Swanson, whom he had known years ago in the Legislature. He told the prosecutor he was broke and wanted to start a gambling place. Mr. Swanson listened without comment and McLaughlin left without an answer.

"A day or two later, Lingle told me that McLaughlin had visited Chief Russell and told him the State's attorney had agreed to let him operate. I told him it was the bunk. Last Saturday, Lingle came back to the office and told me he had met McLaughlin in the Sherman Hotel and that McLaughlin had cursed him, blaming him for the failure of his plans and making some such threat as 'I'll get even with you.'"

JUDGE BARS SWITCH OF BRADY BROTHERS

Refuses to Permit Removal of Bombing Suspects From Rockville.

BOND TO BE DISCUSSED

Impressed with the gravity of the charge, Judge Robert B. Peter yesterday refused to authorize the removal of Herman and Leroy Brady from the Rockville, Md., Jail, where they were brought for trial in connection with the triple bomb killings at Seat Pleasant last New Year's.

Leroy was tried last week, but the case ended in a mistrial when the jury could not agree after deliberating eighteen hours.

Herman's case was continued until fall, when Leroy will be tried again. The case was taken to Rockville when the defense requested a change of venue.

Sheriff Charles F. Early, of Upper Marlboro, went to Rockville yesterday to return the prisoners to the Prince Georges County Jail, but Judge Peter would not permit him to do so until he confers with his associate judges.

The possibility of the brothers being admitted to bond will be discussed by the court and counsel at a meeting tentatively set for the end of this week.

TREATY ADVOCATES FIGHT ACTION DELAY

Opposition Strives to Put Off Consideration of Pact Till Fall.

NOVEMBER DATE LOOMS

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Supporters and opponents of the London naval treaty redoubled their efforts for and against the pact yesterday by seeking to obtain oral and written pledges respecting the administration's plan for speedy ratification. The immediate issue centered about the opposition's move to postpone action until next November.

Supporters of the pact gained and lost ground. They claimed a distinct gain when news leaked out that the Senate foreign relations committee expected to dispose of the so-called secret documents issue today. A resolution by Senator Robinson, of Indiana, designed to put the committee on record in support of its contention that it has a right to the secret documents, is scheduled to be voted down.

After this, Senator Borah, chairman of the committee, hopes to report the treaty out of committee before the end of the week. Meanwhile Mr. Borah is understood to indorse the position which Secretary Stimson took in refusing to send the requested documents and it is hinted that Mr. Borah gave Mr. Stimson the idea of quoting the message from George Washington, which Senator Hiram Johnson so severely criticized.

Ground Lost by Group.

The ground lost by treaty proponents concerns the plan to procure a vote on ratification before this coming fall. Developments yesterday showed an increase in the strength of opposition to immediate action. Forty-eight senators are said now to favor postponing ratification and others have yet to be heard from. The date of November 17 is given as the time when discussion of the treaty will begin, if the group favoring postponement carries out its tentative program. Meanwhile, Senator Vandenberg is attempting, without success thus far, to obtain pledges from 49 senators to remain and hold a quorum.

This does not mean that the special session will fail to materialize, it is explained, although President Hoover may be requested to take the initiative and set the date of the special session for November 17. In case this is not done, the Senate itself will set the date after the special session begins, if plans are carried out.

If proponents of the treaty could obtain a unanimous consent agreement to set a definite date in November or December for a final vote on ratification there would be increased support for deferring action before the fall elections, but opponents of the treaty have so far shown no desire to compromise.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic leader, who is counted upon to help lead the administration's fight for ratification, must face the primaries in his State on August 12 and is encountering serious opposition. He will admittedly be handicapped if compelled to spend the month of July here, especially as political attacks leveled against him charge that he is acting as chief lieutenant to the Republican administration. The radio speech of former Senator Reed, of Missouri, denouncing the treaty, has further complicated the situation.

Charge by Senator Johnson.

At the meeting of the foreign relations committee yesterday Senator Johnson charged that Secretary Stimson was seeking to establish a precedent whereby the Senate would have to pass judgment on treaties with no other information than that which appears in the actual wording of the document. The committee, Mr. Johnson asserted, was asked to determine the true meaning of the treaty from the expressed terms and to assume that the provisions were beneficial to the Nation because the negotiators so regarded them.

The senator from California maintained that the Senate's duty includes something more than merely approving or disapproving language used in the text. Under the treaty-making power, Mr. Johnson insisted, the Senate had the right to know what had transpired behind the scenes while the negotiations were taking place.

During the discussion in executive session Senator Reed stated that serious embarrassment would result from transmitting certain of the secret documents because they contained data which would be resented in Italy and Japan. Mr. Johnson at once demanded of Mr. Reed whether he had seen these documents, and Mr. Reed said he had seen them. Senator Johnson then demanded to know why certain members of the committee were allowed access to the secret documents while other members of the committee were excluded from the right to see them.

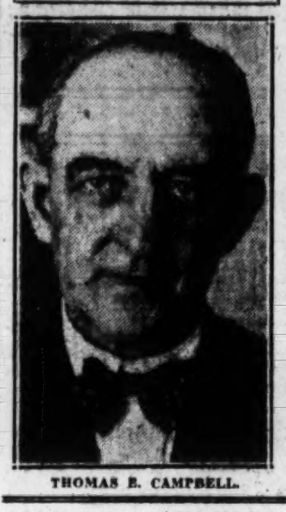
CONFIRMED



THOMAS E. CAMPBELL.

CAMPBELL GRANTED CIVIL SERVICE POST

Former Governor of Arizona Is Confirmed by Senate as Commissioner.

SUCCEEDS W. C. DEMING

Thomas E. Campbell, former Governor of Arizona and for the last few years American commissioner general to the exposition in Seville, Spain, was confirmed as a member of the Civil Service Commission late yesterday by the Senate.

The Senate voted to confirm the nomination a few hours after President Hoover sent it to the Capitol. This was made possible by Senator Dale (Republican), of Vermont, chairman of the civil service committee, who made a hasty poll of his committee and found that a majority of the members approved the nomination.

Mr. Campbell will succeed William C. Deming, who resigned to become a candidate for the seat in the Senate that was made vacant by the death of the late Senator Warren (Republican), of Wyoming.

Thomas Edward Campbell was born in Prescott, Ariz., January 18, 1876, the son of Daniel and Eliza (O'Flynn) Cambpell. He was educated in the public schools and at St. Mary's College at Oakland, Calif.

He was acting postmaster of Jerome, Ariz., from 1898 to 1900, and later, after a term in the Territorial Legislature, was appointed postmaster. He also served as a county assessor, and in 1914 ran as a Republican candidate for Congress and was defeated.

On the face of the returns he was elected Governor of Arizona in 1916 and assumed the office. The following year, however, he relinquished the post when a recount showed a plurality of 43 for George W. P. Hunt.

In 1919, he was elected governor by a plurality that engendered no doubts, and in 1921 he was elected for a second two-year term.

In 1900, he married Eleanor Gayle Allen, of Jerome, Ariz.

Immigration Charge Halts Ford's Cottage

New York, June 9 (A.P.).—Henry Ford's plan to have a Fourteenth Century English cottage set up in Dearborn, Mich., by skilled foreign workmen was interrupted today when immigration authorities detained two workmen on technicalities concerning visas.

C. T. Worthington and W. H. Radcliffe, master mason and carpenter, were engaged in England for the job and arrived here on the liner Tuscania. Immigration officers found they had only visitors' visas, which barred them from engaging in their trades while here.

It was expected, however, that a representative of Mr. Ford would call at Ellis Island soon and post bonds to insure the men's departure by the time their visitors' permits expire.

S O S THAT CUT OFF REED INVESTIGATED

Senators Check Coincidence in Silencing of Attack on "Radio Trust."

SHIP NOT YET TRACED

(Associated Press.)

Government investigation of the origin of an S. O. S. message that silenced the broadcast of an attack by former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, on "the radio trust," began yesterday after Senator Dill (Democrat), Washington, declared in the Senate the "distress call was made for the purpose of stopping" the speech.

W. D. Terrell, chief of the radio division of the Commerce Department, said his investigation was already under way last night. The Radio Corporation of America meanwhile informed Senator Dill it would make its own investigation of the S. O. S.

The Navy Department reported the order that silenced all stations for 28 minutes after 8:22 p. m. on Saturday was given by the superintendent of the naval radio station in New York, after he had been informed that a distress call had been picked up by the Radio Corporation of America's station at Tuckerton, N. J.

Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, joined Dill in calling attention to the resignation of Judge Hugh M. Morris, who would have tried the Government's suit to test legality of radio unification arrangements by ten corporations, in the district court of Delaware.

"Wouldn't the radio trust be justified in sending out an S. O. S. when former Senator Reed began to attack them?" Norris asked ironically. He said Judge Morris' resignation was surrounded by conditions similar to those under which other officials had resigned to accept attractive posts when they were "making it unpleasant" for individuals and corporations.

Dill Blames Enthusiast.

Dill said he "could not believe that an official would stoop to so indefensible, so contemptible a thing as using the S O S, the death call at sea," for the purpose of interrupting the speech, but that he believed "it was done by an enthusiast for the purpose of stopping the attack." He added that the reaction from it would be "more harmful than the speech would have been forceful as it was."

The Washington senator said he understood Judge Morris had resigned to enter private legal practice, and that he had "received some flattering offers of retainers." Morris, he said, has "always been a thorn in the side of the radio trust."

Former Senator Reed's speech, Dill explained, was being broadcast over the Columbia Broadcasting Chain, a competitor of R. C. A. He said it was not "likely" that they would have interrupted the broadcast.

After Senator Ashurst suggested that Reed be asked to repeat the address, Dill said that M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co., had offered to ask the former senator to deliver the speech over his chain.

Columbia System Explains.

New York, June 9 (A.P.).—The Columbia Broadcasting System made public today its record of all communications relating to an S O S Saturday night, which interrupted for some listeners a speech by former Senator James A. Reed. Officials said the broadcast was continuous on the chain except for its key station, WABC, of New York.

C. J. Pannill, vice president of the Radiomarine Corporation of America, tonight issued a statement describing the receipt of an S O S call Saturday which caused suspension of broadcasting in the course of an address by former Senator Reed.

"At 8:15 p. m., Eastern standard time, on Saturday," the statement said, "Operator Charles H. Hess, on duty at the Radiomarine Coastal Station at Tuckerton, N. J., heard faint S O S signals on 600 meters, the international distress signal wave length. He was not listening to any broadcasting stations which operate on different wave lengths than those on which marine communication is carried on."

"Operator Hess explained," the statement declared, "that owing to very strong interference from ships close by obtaining radio compass bearings in the dense fog he was unable to get the ship's call letters. We have not yet been able to trace the origin of the message which Operator Hess heard, but we are continuing to investigate the matter."

Pannill pointed out that "international law and humanitarian principles" dictate the precedence of S O S calls over all other radio traffic.

"In cases of doubt," he concluded, "radio operators take every precaution in the interests of safety of life at sea."

$8,000,000 LIBRARY BILLS PUT THROUGH

$1,500,000 Will Be Used to Buy Collection of Rare Volumes.

PROVIDES FOR ADDITION

The Luce bill authorizing an appropriation of $6,500,000 for an addition to the crowded Congressional Library and the Collins bill authorizing $1,500,000 for the purchase of the Vollbehr collection of fifteenth century books were passed by the House yesterday and sent to the Senate.

Congress already has appropriated $600,000 for the purchase of a site for the addition to the Congressional Library. This site is directly east of the main building, and the property on it now is being acquired.

In urging approval of the bill yesterday, Representative Robert Luce (Republican), of Massachusetts, chairman of the library committee, emphasized the need of the additional structure, and declared that, architecturally, it would be in harmony with the Capitol, the proposed Supreme Court Building, and other monumental buildings on Capitol Hill.

The second bill, sponsored by Representative Ross Collins (Democrat), of Mississippi, provides for the purchase of a collection which is said to be very much needed by the library.

The collection is that of Dr. Otto H. F. Vollbehr, and consists of 3,000 volumes. The gem of the collection is the Gutenberg Bible, printed upon vellum. At present the Library of Congress does not even own an imperfect Gutenberg Bible.

Bank President Held On Charge of Speeding

Henry W. Offutt, 60 years old, president of the Potomac Savings Bank of Georgetown, was arrested by Fourteenth Precinct Policeman H. O. Tutt yesterday morning on Wisconsin avenue northwest on charges of speeding 38 miles an hour. He posted $10 bond.

About the same time, the same motorcycle policeman arrested James Bronson, 54 years old, of Chevy Chase, an associate engineer of the Navy Yard, on Wisconsin avenue on charges of speeding 36 miles an hour. He also was released on $10 bond.

SMOOT SEES TARIFF VOTED BY THURSDAY

Corrections on Watch Item to Meet Point of Order Are Completed.

REED, GRUNDY RETICENT

(Associated Press.)

The tariff bill was started on the last stretch of its journey to a final vote in the Senate yesterday with indications still pointing to a close decision but with Republican leaders maintaining confidence that it would pass.

Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, who reported the measure back to the Senate shortly after noon, after conferees had completed corrections in the watch paragraph to meet points of order, predicted a final vote by Thursday.

Opening debate a day soonor than had been expected on the two conference reports comprising the final draft of the bill, Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, asserted "whether the American business man desires it or not, this tariff report, with the reprisals and retaliatory measures it invites, will compel still larger investments of American capital abroad and check expansion in America of our more efficient industries."

Other Senators Speak on Bill.

The Mississippian was followed by Senators Oddie (Republican), Nevada, who praised the measure as holding "vast benefits for American industry and labor," and Thomas (Oklahoma) and Brock (Tennessee), Democrats, who discussed its effect on America's foreign trade.

Under questioning by Senators Smoot and Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, Mr. Thomas denied he had written to embassies and legations in Washington requesting them to protest against the bill.

The Oklahoman had asserted that 38 nations had filed protests with the State Department on 300 items in the bill. Asked by Mr. Smoot if these included protests "requested by the Senator from Oklahoma," Senator Thomas did not reply directly, but later told Mr. Vandenberg he had been asked for copies of the bill when it passed the House and in furnishing these to inquirers he requested their attitude.

Denies Writing to Embassies.

"Does the senator mean to say he wrote to embassies here on the question?" asked the Michigan senator.

"No, I did not," Mr. Thomas replied.

Both Republicans and Democrats paused during the debate to pay tribute to Senator Smoot for his long and untiring efforts in connection with the year and a half old legislation.

Mr. Oddie said Mr. Smoot had "stood up like a Rock of Gibraltar" and had "done a superhuman piece of work." Senators Bratton, New Mexico, and Ashurst, Arizona, both Democrats, joined in the praise, although differing with Mr. Smoot on his tariff views.

Reed, Grundy Not Commited.

The Pennsylvania Republican senators, Reed and Grundy, continued their silence as to how they would vote on final passage. Nevertheless, majority chieftains displayed no alarm and were confident of support of both if their votes were needed.

Conferees corrected the watch section by reducing from 20 to 15 cents apiece the duty on set or unset jewels and by eliminating the levy averaging about 15 cents each on dials when imported with a movement. The duty of 5 cents each and 45 per cent on dials when brought in separately was left in the bill.

Watches not intended to be worn were transferred from the clock to the watch schedule at the lower watch rates in order to meet another objection.

Democratic Senators Hit.

In another of the statements issued through the party national committees during the closing days of consideration of the tariff Senator Allen (Republican, Kansas, last night said the New York senators, both Democrats, had repeatedly voted for high duties and against reductions in tariff.

"Senator Wagner," he said, "voted to take five commodities from the free list; voted for increased tariffs on five others, and cast a total of 23 unrecorded votes against tariff reductions. Senator Copeland, who recently announced he would vote against the bill on final passage, compiled an even more formidable protectionist record. He voted to take eight commodities from the free list, voted for increased duties on ten other commodities and cast recorded votes against reductions in rates on 35 other occasions."

Mr. Allen said his statement was in partial reply to the claim that Democrats have no "complicity" in making the pending bill.

Two Store Managers Tied, Robbed of $100

Bandit Pair Holds Up Dry Goods House and Branch of Grocery.

Two bandits held up two storekeepers yesterday at gun point and then bound them with rope before looting their cash registers of approximately $100.

The victims of the hold-up pair were Isidore Lipman, proprietor of a dry goods store at 1536 Seventh street northwest, and Marvin Robinson, of 491 F street southwest, manager of the Sanitary Grocery Co. store at 803 Four-and-a-half street southwest.

Lipman was held up at 9:30 in the morning by two colored men who are believed to have been the same men who, six hours later, held up Robinson.

The colored men strolled into Lipman's store and asked to see several articles of wearing apparel. One of the men suddenly whipped out a revolver and thrust it against Lipman's temple. Forcing Lipman into a rear room they bound him with cord, took his watch, valued at $35, and a white ivory penknife, and then looted the cash register of $50.

Several hours later, the bandits appeared at the Sanitary Grocery store. They asked for cigarettes and as Robinson was about to wait on them, flashed revolvers and forced him into a back room.

They tied Robinson's hands behind him to the bar across a back door. As he moved his hands the bar rattled, and one of the men said: "We'll shoot if you don't keep quiet." Robinson, after great effort, freed himself and saw the colored men walking at a fast pace down Four-and-a-Half street, finally disappearing around the corner in H street.

Robinson estimated that the bandits stole about $50 from the till.

Lieut. Edward Kelly and a squad of the detectives began a hunt for the bandits, a description being broadcast immediately after each holdup over the new teletype system to every precinct in the district.

Cold Organism Cultures To Be Submitted to Tests

Research Workers to Check Claims of Baltimore Pathologist That He Has Discovered Cause of Rhinitis and Vaccine to Prevent It.

Baltimore, Md., June 9 (A.P.).—Cultures of the microscopic organism announced by Dr. J. A. F. Pfeiffer, of the University of Maryland Medical School, to be the cause of the common cold, are to be put to the test of other scientists.

Dr. James A. Doull, head of the research into the cause and cure of the cold, conducted for more than two years by a number of scientists under the John J. Abel Fund of the Chemical Foundation, said today he would ask Dr. Pfeiffer for the cultures, and Dr. Pfeiffer said he would grant the request.

An outstanding pathologist, Dr. Pfeiffer made the announcement that he had discovered the cause of the malady said to cost American workers alone $2,00,000,000 a year in lost wages, and had devised a preventive vaccine, in a paper read before the Maryland Biological Society.

In an interview today he visioned the day when anticold serum might be bought at the corner drug store. Administration of the vaccine he has developed is simple, he said.

"Certainly I shall be glad to have Dr. Doull and his associates test this out," he said. "Scientific men may be sure that I have not made this announcemnt lightly, but after years of exhaustive tests.

"I felt sure I had isolated the cold germ seven years ago, and it was only after every possible test was made that I made the announcement and claimed the discovery."

Dr. Doull called the announcement "very interesting" but hesitated to comment further, saying he was not at the meeting at which the paper was read. He pointed out that the Abel fund research was conducted independently of Dr. Pfeiffer.

Dr. Doull pointed out that it is usual when a discovery of apparent merit is announced to ask the author for his culture and data to use in tests.

TUNNEL EXPLOSIONS KILL 13; 7 ARE HURT

NEGLIGENCE IS HINTED

Detroit, June 9 (A.P.).—A dynamite explosion in a nearly completed water intake tunnel 235 feet under the Detroit River killed six workmen and injured six others today.

The explosion occurred when a workman's pick struck a forgotten charge of dynamite at the end of the tunnel, 3,200 feet out in the river and within 200 feet of its destination on Belle Isle. The dynamite apparently had been left there by workmen Sunday after it had failed to explode when a charge was set off.

The workmen, unmindful of the danger, started clearing away the rock this morning, and the blast followed.

Four Died Underground.

Four of the men were dead when brought to the surface. The other two died in a hospital shortly after.

There were 36 men in the tunnel when the explosion occurred. Believing that a score or more were trapped in the debris, a large rescue squad, composed of police, firemen and laborers, went into the tunnel. All the workmen were accounted for shortly after the explosion.

Police executives and investigators from the prosecuting attorney's office were making an investigation tonight, with a view to determining whether the explosion was the result of negligence in not informing today's shift that dynamite was in the tunnel.

Seven Killed Near Oakland.

Oakland, Calif., June 9 (A.P.).—Seven workmen were killed and one injured by an explosion last night in the Calveras Tunnel of the Hetch Hetchy water project in the Alameda County hills, 20 miles southeast of Oakland. All the bodies, badly burned and mangled, were removed today to the Livermore Morgue, where attempts were being made to complete their identification.

A natural gas pocket uncovered by a dynamite blast and ignited by a spark from the motor on the tram or from a pick was given as the probable cause of the explosion.

So terrific was the blast that men on the surface first believed an earthquake had occurred. Piles of gravel at the mouth of the tunnel, nearly a mile from the scene of the explosion, were leveled.

According to eyewitnesses, Crox was moving at high speed. The car turned over three times. The accident occurred about 12 miles northwest of Moorefield. Crox, a widower, who lived on a farm near Romney, is survived by a 4-year-old daughter.

LUCE LAUDS HOOVER IN G. O. P. CLUB TALK

Bay State Representative Avers Prosperity Is Due to President.

DRY ISSUE DISCUSSED

Crediting the Nation's "prosperity" to President Hoover's policy on "common action for the common good," Representative Robert Luce, of Massachusetts, last night told the National Capital Republican Club that G. O. P. principles must remain in effect if the country is to progress.

Mr. Luce was the principal speaker at the initial meeting of the club, which was formed recently under the leadership of Samuel J. Prescott.

"With respect to prohibition," Mr. Luce said, "the theory that the Nation's welfare depends on enforcement of law is Republican theory. The theory that each man has the right to flaunt the law is Democratic theory."

Edward F. Colladay, Republican national committeeman for the District, explained that the National Capital Republican Club had been formed to foster party principles and to provide a meeting place for committees and groups interested in Republican work. He said that the club controlled property at Sixteenth street and Scott Circle, and would erect a large meeting hall as soon as the Japanese legation vacated the premises.

Temporary headquarters, he said, will be at 1331 G street northwest.

The only other speaker on the program was Miss Mary Stewart, assistant director of Indian education for the Interior Department. She spoke briefly on work that the administration is sponsorin among the Indians.

A. E. Chaffee, secretary of the club, presided. Several selections were rendered by the Imperial Male Quartet.

The meeting was held in the Willard Hotel.

Church, 47 Years Old, Dedicated in Danville

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., June 9.—Sledd Memorial Church was dedicated yesterday, nearly half a century after it was founded. The various pastors had refrained from formal dedication as long as the church owed money and it was only recently that it became free of debt and the dedication arranged. Outstanding notes aggregating $1,400, which were taken up several weeks ago, were burned.

The church was formerly the Lloyd Street Church, erected in 1883. In later years it was remodeled and reopened as a memorial to the late Dr. R. N. Sledd.

Illness at Theater Fatal.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 9 (Special).—Taken suddenly ill at a local theater, William D. Myers, well-known resident of this city, died a short time later at his home, death being due to an attack of heart disease. DIPLOMATS ATTEND MUSICIANS' RECITAL

Chilean Singer and Bolivian Pianist Heard at Pan-American Building.

HAVANAN DIRECTS BAND

Three noted musicians of Latin-America took part last night in the fiftieth concert of Latin-American music given at the Pan-American Union Building last night before a brilliant audience of diplomatic and official Washington. Besides these visiting musicians, Senor Roig, director of the Municipal Band, of Havana, and composer of several selections, played last night. Leopoldo Guiterrez, Chilean barytone and Lolita Cabrera Gainsborg, Bolivian pianist, the United States Army Band participated in the program.

Senor Roig acted as guest conductor of the U. S. Army Band when his stirring compositions were played.

The program was broadcast over NAA, the naval radio station, and the final half hour of the concert was broadcast through the National Broadcasting Co. It was rebroadcast over several short wave stations so the program could be heard in the principal Latin-American capital.

Senorita Cabrera Gainsborg, the Bolivian pianist, was an artist with a rare gift of interpretation, a beautiful singing tone and wide grasp of technic. Upon the conclusion of her solo numbers the audience tendered her an ovation.

The vocalist of the evening, Leopoldo Gutierrez, Chilean barytone, displayed a voice of rich mellow-tone quality, finesse in phrasing and won outbursts of applause particularly in his singing of the aria from the Brazilian opera, "The Buyer of Diamonds," by Mignone.

Many of the selections played by the United States Army Band were those played in a concert last summer for King Alfonso of Spain at the royal palace in Madrid during the Army Band's tour of that country. The soloists of the band last night included Second Leader Thomas F. Darcy, cornetist, and John Bauman, Joseph L. Young and Charles Hershey, marimba soloists.

Bush Terminal Head Reweds Just as Mate Wins Divorce

Embarks on New Venture Few Moments After Court Cuts Bonds.

MR. AND MRS. IRVING T. BUSH, the latter formerly Marion Spore, who were married yesterday at Reno just after Mr. Bush was divorced by Mrs. Maud H. Bush. The new Mrs. Bush is known for her charity work.

Reno, Nev., June 9 (A.P.).—Irving T. Bush, head of the Bush Terminal Corporation, of New York, today was divorced here by Mrs. Maud H. Bush on a cross-complaint and a few moments later was married to Miss Marion Spore, who has been making her home in Reno.

Miss Spore is known in New York as the "Angel of the Bowery" because of her charitable work in that part of the city.

Bush filed his complaint secretly here two weeks ago, the petition charging Mrs. Bush, whom he married in 1907, with nagging and finding fault.

Mrs. Bush a few day ago filed a cross complaint, charging that Bush neglected her and went on long trips without telling her when or where he was going. She charged he remained away as long as two weeks at a time on several occasions. Mrs. Bush was not present in court.

Bush today gave only testimony relative to his residence here.

DOHERTY COMPANY OFFICIAL HELD IN ALLEGED SHORTAGE

large operations with that bank, through the company's accounts.

The situation came to light today when Shafer was arrested on a warrant charging embezzlement of $10,162.50. Shafer was removed as manager during the day by orders from the New York office of the company.

Dudley Outcalt, assistant county prosecutor, said this was only one specific item and that when an audit of the books is completed the shortage probably will exceed $1,000,000 and may run as high as $1,500,000.

At the time Shafer was arrested here at his home the State banking department had a corps of examiners going over the books of the Cosmopolitan Bank to determine to what extent "kiting operations charged against Shafer had affected that institution."

From other banking sources it was learned that bankers became aware of the situation Saturday and that hurried conferences were held in an effort to see what could be done to straighten out the difficulty.

The Cincinnati Enquirer said tonight other bankers learned the firm's accounts with the Cosmopolitan Bank were short $535,000, with less than $100,000 in securities which can be applied toward the loss.

The capital and surplus of the Cosmopolitan at its last published statement, as of March 7, was $637,377. In view of that situation, the bankers decided it would be best to let the Cosmopolitan work the situation out itself, the enquirer said.

Shafer, after his arrest, declined to make a statement. He was released on $30,000 bond, signed by his father, O. J. Shafer, president of the O. J. Shafer Pattern Works.

The warrant was sworn by Edward W. Korsmeyer, New York, an official of the Doherty Co., a few minutes after the company had made formal announcement that Shafer had been superseded as head of the Cincinnati branch by Omar F. Rains, manager of the Detroit office of the company.

Korsmeyer said a complete check of the company's books was being made and that the exact amount of the shortage could not be determined until that is completed. He indicated, however, that it would be far greater than the amount charged in the warrant.

While examiners from the State Department were making the audit, representatives of the Doherty Co., the bank, the bonding companies and the county prosecutor's office had conferences to discuss the situation. Those conferences still were in progress.

During the conferences it was reported the difficulties grew out of "kiting" checks and drafts by Shafer, presumably to protect stock market accounts. His father told detectives that Shafer had lost heavily in the market recently.

SENATE TO SUPPORT ITS OWN CONFEREES ON SUPPLY BILL

propriation act approved June 7, 1924.

"The total District of Columbia appropriations for the fiscal year 1925 amounted to $31,183,152.28. In the opinion of the Senate conferees in all fairness this question resolves itself into a problem of simple proportion. If $9,000,000 were a fair and just proportion of the $31,183,152.28 appropriations for the fiscal year 1925, what amount would be fair and just of approximately the $43,500,000 appropriation for the fiscal year 1931?

"(2) If $9,000,000 were fair and just for the fiscal year 1925 would the same amount be fair and just for 1931? The value of the property of the Government of the United States increased many millions of dollars since the fiscal year 1925.

Other Considerations Cited.

"(3) There are also to be considered in connection with the justification for an increase in the Federal contribution certain projects of improvement which will run into many more millions of dollars. For instance, the municipal center, municipal airport, armory for the National Guard, new center market, children's tuberculosis sanitorium, new bridges, including the replacement of the Calvert Street Bridge, new jail building, extension of the Supreme Court Building, additional buildings for Gallinger Hospital, sewage treatment works, improvement of the water front along the Washington Channel of the Potomac River, buildings for the National Zoological Park, branch library sites and buildings, and others. All of these improvements have been recommended to the Commissioners during the past year or two, and some of them are already authorized by law. At a very rough estimate, these improvements would cost between $35,000,000 and $40,000,000. The question arises, where is all this money coming from? The action of the Senate in increasing the Federal contribution for the fiscal year 1931 from $9,000,000 to $12,000,000 is a partial answer.

"(4) Since the limits of the District are forever fixed, it follows that each year the building operations and the condemnation of private holdings force an expansion into Virginia and Maryland, and this results in finally depriving the District of certain sources of revenues.

"The exemption of various classes of property, including the holdings of the United States, are so great that they point to some compensating revenue from the United States. Their value based on a fair estimate shows that they are far in excess of the usual needs of exempt property in an ordinary city.

Chief Means of Livelihood.

"The chief means of livelihood of a majority of the population is dependent on the pay roll of the United States Government, and it will naturally follow that an excess in taxation will have a depressing effect on these employes of the United States who are forced to contribute to the support of a national city.

"The Capital's development should not be confined to certain sections of narrow limits, but should be extended with great uniformity over the entire District.

"President Coolidge, in one of his messages to Congress, thus expressed his feelings regarding the Capital City:

"'If our country wishes to compete with others, let it not be in the support of armaments but in the making of a beautiful Capital City. Let it express the soul of America. Whenever an American is at the seat of his Government, however traveled and cultured he may be, he ought to find a city of stately proportion, symmetrically laid out and adorned with the best that there is in architecture, which would arouse his imagination and stir his patriotic pride. In the coming years, Washington should be not only the art center of our own country but the art center of the world. Around it should center all that is best in science, in learning, in letters and in art.'

"This ideal condition can be accomplished only by the fostering care of Congress."

ARCHBISHOP CURLEY CONFIRMS 550 HERE

Rain Forces Cancellation of Children's Procession at Afternoon Service.

REV. FITZPATRICK TALKS

Archbishop Michael J. Curley, of the Diocese of Baltimore, officiated at confirmation services held yesterday afternoon and last night at St. Patrick's Church, where 550 children and adults received the sacrament.

The inclement weather caused the cancellation of the procession planned for the children. The children, numbering 150, filed two abreast through the sacristy to the church. The girls were dressed in white and wore long veils. The boys wore blue suits.

The children were students at St. Patrick's School, St. Joseph's Home and School and St. Vincent's Home and School.

The evening services attracted hundreds to the church. Approximately 400 adults were confirmed by Archbishop Curley. The Rev. Michael Fitzpatrick, pastor of St. Aloysius Church, preached the sermon, which was followed by benediction. Father Fitzpatrick spoke on the significance of the sacrament.

$1,000,000 AS ADDED PARK FUND SOUGHT

Hoover Wants Money to Be Employed for George Washington Project.

HOOVER PLEDGES HIS AID

The proposed George Washington Memorial Parkway, authorized in the Capper-Cramton act, drew a bit nearer to actuality yesterday when President Hover asked Congress to include a special appropriation of $1,000,000 in the second deficiency bill.

The money would be used to make a start on the Memorial Parkway, which would fringe both sides of the Potomac River, extending from Mount Vernon and Fort Washington to Great Falls.

The request of the President came within ten days after he had signed the Capper-Cramton bill, a measure which provides not only for the George Washington Memorial Parkway, but for the expenditure of $16,000,000 on parks and playgrounds here in Washington, for a $2,000,000 free bridge at Great Falls, and for the extension of Rock Creek and Anacostia Parks in Maryland.

Earlier yesterday Representative Louis Cramton (Republican), of Michigan, who, with Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, sponsored the bill, called at the White House and urged the President to request an immediate appropriation so that the purchase of the park land might be started immediately.

President Hoover, the Michigan member said afterward, expressed keen interest in the park plans and promised his hearty cooperation.

Two Dead, Many Ill From Tainted Meat

More Than 30 Being Treated at Reading; Two Are in Critical State.

Reading, Pa., June 9 (A.P.).—Two persons are dead, two others are critically ill in a hospital and at least 30 more residents in different sections of the city are ill as the result, it is believed by Coroner W. S. Ammarell, of eating tainted meat.

Rudolph Hahn, aged 30, died Sunday morning at a hospital. Today his sister, Mrs. LoLuis Pfueller, aged 36, died.

The woman's husband, Louis Pfueller, and his brother, Richard Pfueller, are patients at the hospital, suffering from the same type of illness.

Dr. Edwin Kreuzer, Laureldale, has about 30 patients under treatment for the same kind of poisoning. Coroner Ammarell is endeavoring to ascertain whether the meat eaten by the people came from th same source.

ballot this year as a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, despite his refusal to support Gov. Alfred E. Smith for President, informed the committee that he would not be bound by a pledge of regularity.

He said he would not support Mrs. Ferguson, or John Putnam, of Houston, candidates for governor, or R. L. Henry, of Houston, candidate for United States senator, in the event they were nominated.

D. W. Wilcox, of Georgetown, chairman of the committee, said he believed it would be "impracticable and impossible" for the proposed pledge for candidates to be submitted to the various candidates in time to comply with the law directing certification of names to county chairmen. He said also he "doubted the authority" of the chairman and secretary under the State supreme court ruling in the Love case to withhold a candidate's name from the ballots where he had complied with the law.

Woman on Houseboat Held in Assault Count

Rage yesterday seized Della Hunt, 38 years old, who lives on No. 1 houseboat, in the Anacostia River near One-half and D streets southwest. She threw an empty pitcher, police say, at Richard Collins, 40 years old, who lives on houseboat No. 2. Collins was removed to Emergency Hospital suffering lacerations to the scalp and skull.

When Private J. G. Middlethon, of Fourth Precinct, approached the woman, he declares, she flourished an ax at him with dire threats. However, she was disarmed by Private R. S. Warner, of the same precinct, who stole upon her from the rear. Now Mrs. Hunt and the ax repose in the Fourth Precinct station house. Mrs. Hunt is charged with disorderly conduct and assault on Private Middlethon. She gave no reason for her conduct.

NYE TO INVESTIGATE MINNESOTA OUTLAY

All Three G.O.P. Candidates in Senate Race Accused of Lavish Spending.

WET PAID, SAYS CHARGE

St. Paul, Minn., June 9 (A.P.).—Minnesota today became the fifth State to come under the scrutiny of the Senate committee on campaign expenditures, with announcement by Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman, that excessive sums have been spent in the State's Republican primary contest for the senatorial nomination.

All three candidates in the race, Senator Thomas D. Schall, Gov. Theodore Christianson and John F. Selb, were named by the chairman. He declined to cite details of the charges, however, or their source, pending a preliminary investigation.

Senator Nye revealed, nevertheless, that the charges included allegations of excessive expenditures for both Senator Schall and Gov. Christianson, and that money was paid to induce Selb to file as a third Republican candidate on a "wet" platform. Selb is former registrar of the State Railroad and Warehouse Commission.

John Andrews, of St. Paul, secretary of the Senate committee, will make an informal investigation of the charges, Senator Nye said before departing for his home in Cooperstown, N. ak. Pending a report from him, the senator added, no publis hearings will be held.

Formal inquiries into campaign expenditures are already under way by the committee in four other States, namely, Illinois, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Oklahoma.

Senator Nye expects to pass several days at his home before returning to Washington.

SOUCEK ALTITUDE MARK IS APPROVED

"Greater pitch may make it possible to go even higher," the lieutenant said.

For the mark to become official, it is necessary for it to be recognized by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale. It has already been accepted by the National Aeronautic Association. H. B. Hendrickson, of the Bureau of Standards, who made the calibration of the barograph, is official observer for the two groups. It is thought certain that the international body will recognize the new claimant as holder of the record.

To surpass a record, it is necessary to go 328 feet higher than the previous mark. Lieut. Soucek bettered Neuenhofen's height by 1,367 feet, and beat the record of the late Capt. Hawthorne C. Gray, U. S. A., by 696 feet. Capt. Gray, who reached a height of 42,470 feet, in a balloon, was dead when his craft reached the ground.

At 43,000 feet Lieut. Soucek found the temperature 89 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit. More than 8 miles above the ground he tried again and again to force the little plane to a higher level.

The engine used was a supercharged Pratt & Whitney Wasp. The flight was carried out in connection with the Navy Department experiments with supercharged engines for fighting planes.

Lieut. Soucek will go with the Lexington to the West Coast. He is a native of Oklahoma, who graduated from the Naval Academy in 1921. Ten days ago he was married.

is the only wet member of the committee.

Caraway denied Cannon's charge that the investigation was inspired by political and religious persecution. He added that four of the five committee members were dry and that he thought a majority belonged to the Methodist Church.

Walsh and Blaine contend the committee was not exceeding its authority and believe Cannon was guilty of contempt of the Senate in leaving the room without being excused.

Senator Robinson (Republican), Indiana, is understood to side with the bishop, while Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, has not made his position known.

Caraway would not indicate what he thought of the bishop's action in turning his back on the committee. He added, however, that a witness "walks out at his peril."

REPORT IS ADOPTED

Denver, June 9 (A.P.).—It became known today that a closed session of the General Federation of Women's Clubs executive committee late Saturday night thwarted a scheduled challenge on the floor of the convention to the activities of members of the federation in the field of motion pictures.

A resolution had been prepared for presentation today expressing disapproval of present and past officials of the federation occupying lucrative positions in motion picture companies, but it was learned that at the Saturday night meeting the committee tabled a letter and telegram from two women's clubs of Baltimore protesting activities of Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, Pasadena, Calif., and today the author of the intended resolution did not attend the convention. Mrs. Winter is assistant director of public relations for the motion picture producers and distributors of America.

At today's session of the convention, Mrs. John F. Sippel, of Baltimore, president of the federation and chairman of the executive committee, waited half a minute for "other remarks" after the adoption of the report of Mrs. Ambrose N. Diehl, Pittsburgh, had been moved, but there was no response from the auditorium. The report, setting forth the accomplishments of the motion picture committee, of which Mrs. Diehl is chairman, was adopted unanimously amid applause.

Mrs. J. Allan Hoover, of Baltimore, who announced publicly that she intended to introduce a resolution condemning the use of the federation's name in the promotion of private enterprises by members, pleaded illness today in explaining her absence from the hall when the Diehl report came up for approval.

By unanimous vote the delegate body passed a resolution requesting President Hoover to appoint a commission to study the problems of delinquent women and girls in Alaska and make some plan for delaing with the situation now existing in the territory.

Chevy Chase Bank Elevates Walker

Director Named President to Fill Position Held by Dr. Farrington.

John C. Walker, retired business man, long prominent in local business circles, was elected president of the Chevy Chase Savings ank to succeed the late Dr. Frederic E. Farrington at a meeting of the board of directors of that institution last night. He will assume office immediately.

Mr. Walker has been connected with the Chevy Chase Savings Bank since shortly after its organization in 1922, both as a director of the institution and as a member of the executive committee.

He was born in this city and was engaged in the grocery business for 35 years, after which he entered the real estate business as an investor. Mr. Walker retired from active business about ten years ago. He was a former president of the Columbia Country Club, serving in that office for four years, and is a member of the board of governors of the Racquet Club.

At last night's meeting the board of directors also declared the bank's regular semiannual dividend of 2 per cent.

found in this country for boys and girls from between 13 and 16 years of age, where they were taught hatred of the United States Government and disrespect for its principles.

Another phase of the Soviet attack was, he said, the cultivation of certain types of professors and teachers of American universities and other "intellectuals" who return to this country and teach, consciously or unconsciously, un-American doctrines.

Before he left the witness stand Dr. Walsh charged that a Red flag was flown for two hours on last May Day from the main mast at the University of Chicago. His information, he said, came from the American Vigilants Intelligence Association, a patriotic organization.

Communistic doctrines, he said, were being placed in schools and in some churches. He suggested that the committee investigate to what extent clergymen might have succumbed to the Communist doctrines.

ZONING UNIT MAKES CHANGES IN STREETS

Plot at Connecticut Avenue and Calvert Street Is Now Commercial.

OTHER AREAS AFFECTED

The property at Connecticut avenue and Calvert street, which has been the subject of many battles over its classification at public hearings in the course of the last two years, yesterday was rezoned from residential to first commercial.

Rezoning of the property was decided at an executive session of the District Zoning Commission, held in the District Building to review three proposed changes considered at the public hearing last week, but not decided at the subsequent executive session of the commission last Saturday.

The commission made the square bounded by Connecticut avenue, Calvert street and Twenty-fourth street, and the southeast corner of Connecticut avenue and Calvert street, diagonally across the street from the other square, first commercial, 60-foot height limit. Proponents of rezoning had asked for a 90-foot height limit.

Hear Proposal in October

The commission instructed Maj. D. A. Davison, executive officer, to bring formally before it at the next public hearing in October a proposal to change the zoning of the south side of Calvert street from Twenty-fourth to Twenty-eighth street. This now is zoned first commercial but has not been used for commercial purposes and the commission will consider rezoning it to residential area.

Petition of the owners of the Patterson tract and the Union Terminal Market Co. for an extension of second commercial area adjacent to the market development adjoining the Baltimore & Ohio freight yards at Florida avenue northeast was granted with provisos.

The commission rezoned the property second commercial west of Sixth street, except the frontage on Florida avenue, which was made first commercial. This new zoning, however, is not to become effective until the owners of the property have formally dedicated to the District necessary land for the streets which are to be cut through the tract.

Streets Included in Change.

These streets include Sixth street north of Florida avenue and parts of Neal place and Fourth, Fifth, Morse and an unnamed street through the northern section of the property connecting New York avenue, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth streets northeast. Gallaudet College officers objected to the request as originally made because it would put second commercial property next to the college grounds. The commission decision limits the second commercial area to the western side of Sixth street, which will leave the street and a strip of land between the area and the college.

Because the commission was unable to get satisfactory information as to the uses to which the other property it was proposed to change would be put it indefinitely postponed action on the request. This property is now occupied by St. Paul's English Lutheran Church, on New Hampshire avenue near U street, and it was requested it be rezoned from residential to first commercial.

Six Fined $50 Each For Brawl in Cafe

Owner Says Salt Shakers, Sugar Bowls, Chairs Used for Weapons.

Two women and four men arrested Sunday night in a brawl in a restaurant on M street northwest, near Thirty-fifth street, drew fines totaling $300 yesterday, when convicted before Judge John P. McMahon in Police Court on charges of fighting and destroying property. Each was assessed a fine of $25 on each of the two charges. The principals were: Margie E. Vance, Silas W. Lineburg, Louise M. Follin, George A. Connor, Charles Selby and Edward R. Lomas.

Testimony was to the effect that the fight began over an alleged remark said to have been made about a member of the Vance girl's party by the other woman. More than a dozen were said to have participated, but all but the six arrested made their getaways.

Charles E. Raney, operator of the restaurant, told the court that a table, a chair, three sugar bowls and six salt shakers were destroyed in the fight. He testified that all the property mentioned, except the table, was used as weapons by the combatants.

Two Training School Boys Beaten With Hose

Two of the fifteen boys who escaped from the National Training School for Boys were whipped with a rubber hose about the size of that attached to a fire extinguisher when they were returned to the school, Supt. E. J. Hickey said yesterday.

Four other boys have been recaptured, but nine still are at large. Further disciplinary measures have not been decided on, Mr. Hickey said. The superintendent of the school said he had received no instructions from the board of trustees of the school to change customary disciplinary practices at the school, and until such instructions had been received he would follow the usual methods. The board of trusees said recently that a reorganization of the school was being planned for the near future.

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, yesterday laid aside his official duties to play the role of proud father, going to Lehigh University to attend the commencement exercises there and see his son, Henry G. Pratt, jr., receive his diploma as an engineer.

The young engineer already has a job and is rather proud that he got a place so quickly and without the aid of his family or friends. The first Maj. Pratt knew of the new job was when his son informed him of it by telephone from Baltimore.

The couple said they would be married today at the Ascension Presbyterian Church in this city.

Mr. Golze was born in Washington, the son of Rudolph L. and Blanche Wenderoth Golze. Miss Lodge was born in Philadelphia, the daughter of George and Sarah Blair Lodge.

501 at Georgetown University Are Given Diplomas As Rain Drives Assemblage of Spectators to Shelter

Dr. Peter Guilday Speaks, Tracing Long History of Institution.

Five hundred and one seniors in five academic departments received diplomas from President W. Coleman Nevils, S. J., yesterday afternoon at final exercises incident to the closing of Georgetown University's 131st year.

Thousands who had gathered on the college lawn for the scheduled outdoor exercises were driven indoors by the rain.

Dr. Peter Guilday, one of three men who received honorary degrees yesterday, delivered the comemncement address. Drawing on the store of religious knowledge which won him the university's degree of doctor of civil and canon laws, Dr. Guilday traced Georgetown University's history from the time of John Carroll's administration in 1789. In reviewing the work of Father Andrew White and Ignatius Loyola, who brought to Georgetown the principles established in 1634 at the little St. Mary's School in Maryland, Dr. Guilday said that the faith of Georgetown's early founders had been more than justified.

Lauds Procession of Alumni.

"This university," he added, "has given to church and state, science and all the fields of learning some of the finest men produced in America. John Carroll said that his hopes for the Catholic religion in America were centered in Georgetown. The splendid men turned out by Georgetown are eminently justifying his faith."

In contrasting Georgetown University with other institutions founded for the purpose of religious instruction, Dr. Guilday said that while other colleges had dropped the religious side of their curriculum, Georgetown had thrived on the theory that intellectual training should be given on a moral basis.

"The return to religious education methods which existed in America prior to the Civil War may be filled with obstacles," he said, "but all citizens should hasten the day when the doctrines of Christ are restored to all houses of learning."

LL. D. Degrees Conferred.

Degrees of doctor of laws were conferred upon two members of the medical school and hospital staffs, Dr. William Gerry Morgan, president of the American Medical Association, and Dr. Charles Maddox Hammett, both of whom have served the university for a number of years.

Prof. Edward Patrick Donovan, of the university's music department, received the degree of doctor of music.

Of the 160 seniors in the College of Arts and Sciences, two Washington boys finished first and second in scholastic attainments. They are respectively, Arthur L. Simpson, of 5336 Colorado avenue, and George R. Cooksey, jr., of 3340 Sixteenth street.

More than half of the prize-winning graduates in the School of Foreign service are from Washington.

Commissions for 38.

Maj. William H. Hobson, U. S. A., professor of military science, presented ten Infantry cadets of the R. O. T. C. for commissions in the Organized Reserve Corps of the Army as second lieutenants and 28 cadets of the medical unit for commissions as first lieutenants. Those receiving commissions in the infantry were Francis O. Geiger, Paul Goodwin, Thomas V. Griffin, Leo H. McCormick, Thomas J. McGeary, Urban S. Mulvehill, Robert H. Perlitz and Robert C. Sullivan. Two others, Charles A. Fish, jr., and William J. McLarney, received certificates entitling them to commissions when they become of age.

Attention: Mr. L. H. Strasburger

Gentlemen:

We wish to take this opportunity to thank you for the prompt and efficient way in which you handled the adjustment of our insurance in our recent fire, and to assure you of our appreciation of same as we did not believe when we put all of our insurance in your hands, some two years ago, that we could get the type of service rendered to us.

As you will recall the fire was discovered at 4:00 a. m., Monday, May the twenty-sixth and on Wednesday, May the twenty-ninth, we had settled this loss and signed the proof of claim. This we believe is almost a record, in view of the fact, that this loss required the advice of several experts to pass upon actual damage incurred.

We would heartily recommend your firm to any one desiring insurance of any type as we do not believe there is any other insurance agents in the District of Columbia who could render more prompt and efficient service than that which you have given us in the past.

Again thanking you for the many courtesies that were extended to us and with best wishes, we remain

Yours very truly,

CAROL'S COMPANION STARTS VAIN CHASE

Mme. Lupescu, Distraught, Orders Car 24 Hours After He Flees.

HER GOAL NOT CERTAIN

Belleme Orne, France, June 9 (A. P.).—Mme. Lupescu, titian-haired companion of Carol, now King of Roumania, left the Chateau de Belleme for an unrevealed destination Wednesday afternoon, 24 hours after the departure of Prince Carol. She was not aware of Carol's proposed return to Roumania until he failed to return to the chateau for dinner Tuesday evening. She has not been here since his departure.

Such is the information gathered from servants of the chateau and the owner of a garage who prepared Mme. Lupescu's car for her departure. Apparently, the only other person in the village who had intimation of impending events was a druggist, who prepared a prescription for her.

According to the garage proprietor, she seemed distraught when she departed. She previously had called him on the telephone and asked him to have Carol's big car ready for a long trip by Tuesday noon. The couple called at the postoffice at noon on Tuesday and received a telegram, which Carol opened. Both left soon afterward at breakneck speed.

Late that evening, when Carol failed to return for dinner, Mme. Lupescu ordered her own car made ready. The garage man said she seemed anxious to catch up with Carol.

Attendants at the chateau were given instructions to maintain the strictest silence. Even today two were stationed at the gates, permitting nobody to enter. It was the belief of local officials that Mme. Lupescu had gone to Switzerland, although there was no record of her purpose, as no visa is required to enter Switzerland.

Local tradesmen appeared genuinely regretful. They said Mme. Lupescu was "very generous." Several French reporters have been keeping close watch upon the chateau in an attempt to interview Mme. Lupescu or catch sight of her. In many circles the opinion prevailed today that she might still be in the chateau, but this theory was unsupported.

INCREASE SHOWN IN RUM ARRESTS

times in the last three months as compared with 3,124 in the same period in 1929. The combined increase in liquor laws arrests was 1,363.

There were 29,774 charges entered on the police blotters in the last three months. This was a decrease of 2,495 from the 32,269 record in the period last year. The number of persons who fell into the hands of the police in the last three months and were charged with law violations was 25,987, the difference being accounted for by more than one charge being placed against some persons.

Arrests for felonies increased from 984 made in the corresponding three-month period last year to 1,073 this year, while arrests for misdemeanors decreased slightly, from 6,927 to 6,058.

Traffic arrests fell off considerably, dropping from 17,487 in the last year period to 13,986 in the last three months, a decrease of 3,582 arrests. Traffic accidents increased by 806, from 1,577 to 2,383. Officials said that a considerable part of this increase was due to the steadily growing percentage of accidents reported, many now being recorded which in the past were never reported.

said, because it was too hard and too stale.

The boys arrived in New York City early Sunday morning, gave the town the once-over, and then turned their course homeward. They caught a machine that took them to Trenton, N. J., another took them to Philadelphia, and a third landed them in this city. They were glad to fall into the hands of the police, because they were almost starving.

Policeman Johnson took them to a nearby lunchroom, where they filled up on steak and potatoes. They are being held here for their parents.

CAROL HITS AT FOES WHO CRITICIZE HIM

PARIS ENVOY RECALLED

him there under his personal supervision.

Today, however, the king personally took Michael back to the Kisseleff Palace, where Princess Helen is staying, and left him there with his mother. This act was generally interpreted as indicating that Carol was trying to induce a better feeling toward him on the part of his former wife.

Child Yearns for Mother.

The former king, just like any plebian child, grew lonesome today for his mamma, after spending the night with his royal daddy at the Cotroceni Palace.

Carol, although he had been installed as king but a few hours before, found himself the abject subject of his little son, from whom he had been separated for so long.

During the last few years Michael's father had been just a name to him. He was a handsome man who went away and was somewhere at sea, on a voyage that for some reason or another never seemed to come to an end.

Reconciliation Is Foreseen.

King Carol, upon going to his son this forenoon, quickly perceived that the young man who had since Ferdinand's death been regarded as a monarch was still just a very small boy and so he took him forthwith to the Princess Helen.

Carol had a long conversation with his former wife, at which the former Queen Elizabeth of Greece and Prince Nicholas, sister and brother of Carol, were present.

The general impression prevailed in official circles today that a reconciliation soon would be effected.

Paris Envoy Recalled.

Paris, June 9 (A.P.).—The recall of Constantin Diamandy, for several years Roumanian minister in Paris, was officially announced today.

Diamandy was an appointee of Bratianu's Liberal ministry, which was opposed to Prince Carol's return to Roumania. It is understood, however, that during Carol's exile in Paris the minister became rather friendly with him.

Opinion among Roumanians in Paris was about equally divided as to whether Diamandy's recall meant his dismissal from the diplomatic service or the desire of King Carol to have an experienced diplomat close to him to advise him on European affairs.

Police Will Question Him After Grocer's Story of Near Swindle.

George Staples, alias Georgie Davis, 19 years old, is being held at Tenth Precinct Station for questioning, in connection with an attempted fraud on James Connors, grocer, of 2160 California street northwest.

Connors said he received a telephone call to deliver groceries to the amount of $1.14 to a man at 1900 Twenty-fourth street and send change for a $30 check.

Connors dispatched a messenger boy who was met on the way by a stranger who asked him to give him the change in return for the check. The boy refused, advised the stranger to call at the store, but the stranger never appeared.

The driver of the taxicab, who was exonerated by the jury, gave his name as Otis Busch, 21 years old, of 2920 Ontario road northwest.

Miss Birney Denies Theft Of Father's $63,000; Yields

Released on Own Recognizance, Horticulturist Says She Used Interest and Part of Principal of Intrusted Sum for Parent Accusing Her.

San Francisco, Calif., June 9 (A.P.).—Armed with documents she declared would clear her of grand theft charges, Miss Marian Birney, 29, surrendered at the hall of justice today and told her reasons for retaining $63,000 in bonds which her father, Dr. Bascom H. Birney, 74, accused her of stealing from him. Police Judge George Steiger released her on her own recognizance.

"My father sent me a package of bonds more than a year ago, asking me to cash them and deposit the money in my own name," Miss Birney said. "Divorce proceedings were pending between him and my stepmother, and he told me the money was for myself and my sister, Mrs. Clementine Deprosse, of Providence, R. I. He wanted to keep his second wife from getting it.

"Part of the interest has been used in the upkeep of the $70,000 Martin Van Buren home at Kinderhook, N. Y., which he deeded to me, and the balance, as well as some of the principal, I have given to him.

"Neither my sister nor myself has used any of the money. I have lived on my salary as horticulturist at Golden Gate Park."

Dr. Birney two weeks ago appeared before the San Francisco grand jury and weepingly told them his daughter had absconded with $63,000 in bonds which he had intrusted to her. A search, which extended to Hoboken and New York City, followed. Several days ago Miss Birney's attorney announced the young woman would surrender today. She returned from New York yesterday.

Dr. Willard Addresses Policewomen's Session

Boston, Mass., June 9 (A.P.).—The problem of policewomen's work in rural environment is one that has not been met, Dr. Dudley W. Willard, assistant professor of sociology at George Washington University, said at the Annual Conference of Policewomen here today. The movement to date, he said, was predominantly a city affair.

The rural problem, Dr. Willard suggested, probably would be solved only after a close coordination had been worked out between policewomen's work and the work of other public officers in rural areas.

Auto Carries Seven To Death in Quarry

Tragedy Discovered as Body of One Woman Victim Floats in Pool.

Philadelphia, June 9 (A.P.).—Seven persons were drowned yesterday afternoon in the plunge of an automobile into 50 feet of water in an abandoned quarry on the Souderton-Hatfield road, near Souderton, 28 miles north of Philadelphia. The victims, members of the Wisham and Cuppit families, started yesterday to visit relations at Tilford.

A truck driver was about to dump rubbish into the water filled quarry today when he saw a woman's body floating. He summoned police.

The bodies of two women were taken from the quarry today along with two men's straw hats and a baby's milk bottle.

The wire cable surrounding the quarry broke and the automobile plunged over the side of the quarry bank.

Lisbon, Portugal, June 9 (A.P.).—The body of Dr. Alvert von Baligand, German Minister, who was assassinated on Saturday by a native of Danzig, will be started homeward aboard the flagship Koenigsberg, on Thursday, it was announced today.

SIMMONS' DEFEAT.

The outcome of the Democratic senatorial primary in North Carolina is interpreted to suit the previously formed opinions or prejudices of observers. The preponderance of opinion is that Senator Simmons has been punished by fellow Democrats for committing the crime of bolting Gov. Al Smith and thereby encouraging the Republican party. North Carolina Democrats have followed the course of Virginia Democrats, who made short work of a would-be insurgent movement based partly on religious prejudice. To the extent that Senator Simmons countenanced the movement engineered by Bishop Cannon his defeat is deserved. No political party or faction can long endure when it attempts to capitalize religious prejudice.

Efforts are made to show that Senator Simmons' defeat is a setback to the Hoover cause in North Carolina. No doubt many Democrats voted against Simmons because they believed his bolt had helped the Republican party; but Senator Simmons is the last man to be listed as a friend of the Republican administration. The primary was a fight among Democrats, a family quarrel. The forthcoming election will be a better gauge of the respective strength of the parties. If Josiah W. Bailey, who defeated Simmons, should defeat the Republican senatorial nominee as decisively as Senator Simmons has beaten Republicans heretofore, he will have good reason to boast that the grand old State is safe against inroads of the enemy; but in spite of all endeavors the Republican party of North Carolina gains in relative strength. Nothing but an exceptional victory by Bailey will show that the State is not drifting toward the Republican party.

HUEY LONG.

Louisiana has come rapidly to the front in recent years as a backward State through the gyrations and genuflections and green pajamas of her young governor, Huey P. Long.

This young man has a way with him. When he is not in a fisticuff with some prominent man he is bathing in public in the presence of distinguished guests. Who can forget his diplomatic error, during the recent Mardi Gras festivities, when he received the commander of the German fleet, then in port, all dressed up in his sea-green sleeping garments?

To the unsophisticated mind of this youthful and indiscreet governor of one of the most socially conscious States in the Union his conduct did not betoken a social error at all. What more appropriate, said he, than for an old salt to be received by a young soak in sea-green undies?

And now our own Maj. Gen. Frank W. McCoy, one of the most dignified and stately gentlemen in the Army, gets a glimpse of Gov. Long's far-famed garments. To make Gen. McCoy perfectly welcome, young Mr. Long divested himself of the sea-green things and took a bath before him, to the astonishment of his visitor and to his own unalloyed satisfaction.

What an interesting character! It is said to be on the cards that he will run for the Senate against the Hon. Joseph E. Ransdell, who for many, many years has been an ornament of first one house of Congress and then the other.

When and if he comes, will Gov. Long emulate the example of Pat Crowe, the former bandit, who disrobed in one of our public parks and after taking a bath, embraced the marble nymphs who had been flirting with him? Washington looks to the future with tremors and alarm. Suppose Huey Long should appear in the Senate in a green toga? Anything may happen in these parlous times.

CAROL OF ROUMANIA.

Roumania has made a poor choice in placing the dissolute and unreliable Carol on the throne. Reports from Bucharest state that the people are delighted, and the vote in Parliament indicates that the country really welcomes Carol. Roumania's domestic affairs are none of the outside world's business. The world will take leave, however, to watch the course of events in eastern Europe with special attention for a while, in order to ascertain whether or not Carol, among his other activities, is a political adventurer. As an exiled prince bereft of his hereditary rights he was negligible; as a king, with his frontiers touching Hungary, Bulgaria and Soviet Russia, he is in a position to do much good and much mischief. His life record gives no assurance that he will do himself or his country any good.

Sooner or later a clash between Roumania and Soviet Russia is to be expected. The Red army may not be willing to fight to acquire foreign territory, but it certainly would fight to regain Bessarabia, which every Russian regards as Russian territory. The Little Entente, composed of Roumania, Czechoslovakia and Jugoslavia, is supposed to have exerted a powerful influence in holding Bessarabia within the new boundaries of Roumania. It is a question whether the entente would hold together in case of an attempt by the Soviet to recapture Bessarabia. If the crisis should come, Roumania would need a real king and not a night club hero. A Belgian Albert might meet the situation that would arise, and he would win powerful allies. Carol of Roumania might find himself without allies.

THE ALL-AMERICAN CANAL PROJECT.

New York State is again in a state of worry over the possibility of the development of a ship waterway between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic. New York has a series of canals which before the days of railroads did much to build up the commerce of the metropolis, but the day has gone by when mule power can be profitably used in the movement of freight. Within the last 30 years New York has expended nearly $200,000,000 in improving its inland waterways, and yet this vast expenditure has not resulted in upholding the commercial supremacy of the Empire State. In plain language, the Erie and Oswego Canals are obsolete. The traffic through these canals has fallen to such a degree as to be almost negligible.

One of the projects proposed is the creation of a sea connection through the Chicago drainage canal and the Mississippi to the Mexican gulf and thence into the Atlantic. Another, and one most generally favored by Western interests, provides for the canalization of the St. Lawrence River and, incidentally, the creation of hydroelectric power, largely in Canadian territory. But New York State fears the effect of such a semiforeign development upon the commerce of its cities, notably Buffalo, Troy, Albany and New York City, and it insists that President Hoover shall abandon his support of the St. Lawrence project and transfer his indorsement to the plan for deepening the Erie and Oswego Canals so as to provide for the passing of ocean-going ships of at least 25-foot draft through an "all-American" canal.

When the river and harbor bill passed the House some months ago it carried a proviso which authorized the transfer of the control and maintenance of the New York State canals to the Federal Government. This proposition had the indorsement of Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of engineers of the Army, and it is because of that approval that some 400 or 500 delegates who attended the third annual convention of the Great Lakes-Hudson Waterways Association in Albany last week demanded that President Hoover should take "immediate" action toward the construction of an "all-American" route between the Great Lakes and the Hudson.

The cost of the work is estimated by Army engineers at about $506,000,000, and its construction, according to Col. Carrington, president of the association, would result in sending 23,000,000 tons of American freight through the new seaway, "which, at the rate of $2 a ton, would represent a revenue of $46,000,000, or 4.6 per cent on the $1,000,000,000" recommended by Mr. Hoover as a revolving fund.

It has been assumed that practically the entire West was committed to the St. Lawrence project rather than the "all-American" route, but Mayor Thompson of Chicago was represented at the Albany gathering by the corporation counsel of Chicago, who emphatically indorsed the "all-American" proposal as the safest and most feasible. The strongest argument in favor of the route through New York State as against that through the St. Lawrence is that 1,600 miles would be saved in traveling between the interior and the West Coast of the United States through the Panama Canal as well as to points in South America, to say nothing of a like saving in distance between lake ports and the ports of Europe.

GRADUATES IN INDUSTRY.

At one time captains of industry were prone to look upon college men as inferior to plowboys when it came to cutting out a place for themselves and their employers in the business world. Andrew Carnegie, before he began to give away libraries and ere he had created a single institute, said: "The graduate has not the slightest chance, entering at 20, against the boy who swept the office, or who began as a shipping clerk at 14."

But times have changed. Boys who form the freshmen classes in all the important institutions of learning today are encouraged to choose a life work at the outset of their college career and are helped to achieve their desires. "Vocational training" has been attempted in many colleges without great success. On the other hand, "placement bureaus" have brought satisfactory results. President William Mather Lewis, of Lafayette College, answers the question, "Do business and industry want college men?" in a pamphlet recently published, with the statement that the average graduating class of Lafayette has "fewer than 200 men, yet 68 different employers representing the largest business and industrial organizations in the United States sent representatives to the campus last year to extend offers of employment to the members of the senior class."

It would appear from the observations of the president of this college that business and industry are keeping a close watch upon the character as well as the attainments of undergraduates. Employers, it is found, are interested primarily, and very naturally, with training. But personality is likewise an important factor in making selections, while the employment chosen by the undergraduate during his vacations is of moment.

"The test of a college need never become the ability of its students to earn money or to win the prizes of life," says President Lewis, "but no college of the future will rank high in the opinion of its own alumni and the world unless the graduate is equipped with the vision to perceive some of the manifold opportunities for work and service and has been given the active cooperation of the college in the choice of a career."

Possibly Andrew Carnegie was right when he expressed the opinion that "college education as it exists is fatal to success" in the domain of business. But conditions in college training and business demands alike have changed in the 40 years since that opinion was rendered.

Ruth Hanna McCormick says that the women of America control one-half the national wealth. Ruth is a hide-bound conservative.

FROZEN TONNAGE

By Commander HOLLOWAY H. FROST, U. S. Navy.

During recent weeks a new catchword has been coined. Among the discussions of the London Treaty we see again and again that mystic phrase: "Frozen tonnage."

If we build ships now, we must keep them for twenty years before they are due for replacement. During that period other navies may build better ships—while we must remain "frozen" with what we have. Such is the general meaning of "frozen tonnage."

But there is a specific meaning also. Let us try to reduce this to simple terms. First, Great Britain hopes that we will build as quickly as possible all the 6-inch cruisers allotted to us by the treaty. Then we will have to keep these ships—73,000 tons of them— for 20 years. Second, Great Britain will not build the 6-inch cruisers permitted by the treaty. Third, in the 1935 conference she will demand the right to transfer this unbuilt 6-inch tonnage over to the 8-inch class. Thus she will gain superiority over us in 8-inch cruisers, while we will remain frozen with a lot of 6-inch cruisers we never wanted anyway.

What are the facts? Since the war the cardinal point of British naval policy has been to obtain a large number of cruisers. Whenever British naval officers have discussed the cruiser situation they have emphasized the importance of numbers. To get numbers they have always been willing to sacrifice size of ships and guns—provided other navies would agree to similar sacrifices. At Geneva they spoke of 70 cruisers as their minimum. At London they reduced the figure to 50. But always it has been their desire to reduce the large 8-inch cruisers to a minimum, so they could get more of the smaller 6-inch cruisers for the same financial outlay. As it is, the tonnage of their 15 8-inch cruisers makes such a hole in their 339,000 tons of the entire cruiser category, that their 35 6-inch cruisers can average only 5,500 tons. It is apparent that any further transfer of tonnage from the 6-inch to the 8-inch class must result either, in a great decrease in the average size of the remaining 6-inch cruisers or a failure to maintain 50 cruisers of all types. Thus, the whole idea of "frozen tonnage" is based upon a complete reversal of British naval policy. We know of no indication of such a drastic change. On the contrary, a building program of ten 6-inch cruisers has just been announced—and most severely criticized by naval leaders as insufficient.

But for the present, let us assume that it is desired to effect such a reversal in the 1935 conference. In the first place, such a proposal would certainly have a highly unfavorable effect upon the other delegations and upon world opinion. After preventing us from obtaining 8-inch superiority in 1930, a British demand to be granted such superiority in 1935 would be received by the world with amazement and indignation. It would hardly contribute to the success of the 1935 conference. In fact, it would probably—if insisted on—mark the end of naval limitation treaties.

But let us pass over these political disadvantages, for the sake of argument. How could Great Britain present any kind of plausible case for the transfer of some of her 6-inch cruiser tonnage to the 8-inch category? Her allotment of 6-inch tonnage is 192,000. Subtract the 15,130 tons of the Emerald and Enterprise, which do not become overage until 1946. As it happens, all the remaining tonnage—177,070—becomes overage by 1938. By the provisions of the London treaty all of this tonnage can be laid down by the British between now and 1935. On December 31, 1936 only 91,000 of it can be completed. But this provision of the treaty is not so restrictive as it sounds, for the next day—January 1, 1937—67,070 more could be completed, and a year later—January 1, 1937—the remaining 19,000.

Now the point is that any part of these 177,070 tons which is laid down before December 31,1936, can be used only for carrying 6-inch guns. This interpretation of the treaty has just been confirmed by diplomatic exchanges with Great Britain and Japan. Therefore, if Great Britain should lay down all the tonnage permitted by the treaty during its life, she could not transfer a single ton from the 6-inch to the 8-inch class. It is only by foregoing her rights under the present treaty that she can build even a partly plausible case for the next treaty. And the British have learned by this time that a treaty with ratifications is worth eight or ten drafts of one which they hope will be signed and ratified five years from now.

But let us pass over even this elementary axiom of diplomacy. Assume that before December 31, 1936, the British lay down not the 177,070 tons they are permitted, but only the ten 6-inch cruisers they have mentioned in their recent program—say 70,000 tons. Then in 1935 they state that it is their desire to change the remaining 107,070 tons to 8-inch cruisers to be laid down after December 31, 1936. Assume further that this demand found the other delegates in particularly good humor and anxious to accommodate their British confreres. Their first reply would be that the yardstick of the present treaty must be applied in this transfer. Thus for 107,070 tons of 6-inch cruisers the British could have only two-thirds as many tons of 8-inch vessels, or 71,400. This would bring their total of 8-inch tonnage to 218,200 tons. Their 6-inch tonnage would be reduced to 85,130. Their total cruiser tonnage would be 303,330—against their present total of 339,000. In numbers they would have 34, as compared with their present stated minimum of 50. It is not probable that such a situation would give the British admiralty any cause for self-congratulation.

But again, assume that those 34 cruisers were just what the British wanted. How could we meet this situation? If we assume that the duration of the next treaty would be until December 31, 1944, then we could replace the 70,500 tons of 6-inch cruisers of the Omaha class with 47,000 tons of 8-inch ships. That would raise our 8-inch tonnage to 227,000. It would give us the 23 8-inch cruisers about which so much has been said and in addition seven or eight large, heavily-armored, 12-gun 6-inch cruisers. So at last everybody would be pleased. In fact, if we consider the 8-inch cruiser best suited to our needs, should we not welcome this much-feared reversal of British policy toward that type? And, really, do we need to worry further about that cryptic catchword—frozen tonnage?

Beware the moment's coup d'etat, its sudden dictatorship. What we do on the spur of the moment is apt to have break-neck consequences.

Nobody Would Make an Untrained Boy Risk His Neck in a Football Game.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE chief fault of a republic is the fact that what is everybody's business is nobody's business.

In America there are so many things that need doing—so many things suggested by common sense and required by common prudence—and yet there is nobody whose business it is to see that they are done.

Legislation is by compromise, and the only way even to get a compromise with progress is by the slow process of educating public opinion until a majority demands action.

One thing that sorely needs doing is the training of young men in the obligations and duties of citizenship.

Anybody with sound sense can see the need, yet nobody has authority to see that the thing is done.

One of the duties of citizenship is that of defending the country.

If that duty should fall to the lot of the generation now maturing, there would be no lack of willingness to serve, but patriotism is neither a weapon nor an armor.

If our youngsters were required to take the field on short notice, as they would be in case of war with any first-class power, they would be slaughtered like rabbits in a den of wolves.

There are men yet living who remember how the incompetence typical of a democracy sacrificed thousands of untrained boys in the first days of the Civil War.

In Germany there is a "youth movement" that inspires hundreds of thousands of young men to go tramping and do athletic drill in unison.

In Italy, boys in their early teens are trained to march, to obey commands, to live out of doors, to understand the mechanism of rifles.

Dreams of military conquest inspire their leaders and America neither needs nor will tolerate that spirit, but our young men could be trained without absorbing any passion for warfare and the training would benefit them and the country in many ways if they never were required to bear arms.

When anybody suggests universal training, the lovers of peace shout "Militarism!"

But it isn't militarism to give a man a decent chance when he is forced into a fight.

Statesmen think in terms of conquest or national defense, but the common man thinks only of the lads who must do the fighting if fighting is done.

They need the protection that only training can give.

In the name of patriotism or sport or health they should be hardened to outdoor life and taught the safety that is in discipline.

Teaching the boy to avoid foot blisters is a saner patriotism than filling him with cake on his way to die.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THOUGHTS ON YACHTING.

A yacht is a luxury designed to keep its owner in a constant state of worry because the brass isn't satisfactorily polished. It is a transportation medium which gives the minimum distance at the maximum expense.

• • • •

Yachting is a search for something exclusive and different by rather florid gentlemen who think these things can best be located through binoculars.

• • • •

It is a quest of more imposing sunsets by successful business men who like to get between two indefinite points with the maximum uncertainty and discomfort.

• • • •

Ownership of a yacht is a most convincing demonstration of wealth. It is affluence plus.

• • • •

And these are the days when our best millionaires are out on the briny trying to outdo one another in nautical splendor and striving to appear nonchalant with a boatload of fashionable guests in wicker chairs, while secretly wondering if the price they are paying to wallow around in a nasty sea under such circumstances isn't a bit stiff.

• • • •

A yacht takes from four to twenty men to operate. On a twenty-man boat eighteen are kept busy most of the time polishing the brass fixtures and the toy cannon. Theirs is also the job of keeping an eye out for the owner and determining in advance whether he has had so much gin it will take more skill than usual to get him aboard.

• • • •

Yachts are kept moored off curious looking buildings with large porches. These porches are usually filled with persons in yachting caps who seldom leave shore. They are members of the yacht club in good standing. Some of them have small boats, but their constant hope is that the three club members who own real yachts will ask them out for a cruise. They will compromise, however, and accept an invitation merely to come out and inspect the ice box and engines.

• • • •

Once every ten days these owners of smaller boats get into their vessels with much ado, go out to the breakwater and return in about 30 minutes. This is called a cruise.

• • • •

In the late summer they stay out overnight. This is called the annual cruise.

• • • •

Verily, yachting is a great and noble sport. The trouble is that so few of us can afford to put so much money into anything that will make us so much less comfortable than we are at home.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Maryland Political Situation Becomes More Complex, With Moist Mayor Broening Out for Gov. Ritchie's Scalp.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Albert Ritchie, the handsome and efficient Democratic Governor of the old Free State of Maryland, may not get what he has been hoping for in his coming contest for a fourth term as chief executive. He expected to have as his opponent a bone dry Republican from Cumberland, but William F. Broening, of Baltimore, the very moist Republican mayor of that city, has shied his sombrero into the political ring and says he would tilt against the redoubtable governor.

This contest will hardly be any different, in respect to prohibition, from any of the governor's former races. He has wanted, so his friends say, an out and out wet and dry fight, a referendum on this vexing question, but every time he has run the Republicans have opposed him with a wet candidate or a straddler.

Should Mayor Broening be nominated, and that is within the bounds of possibility, he will have no easy matter to defeat Gov. Ritchie, for that popular ocicial carried Maryland by 60,000 majority in 1926 and elected with him a wet Democratic senator, Millard H. Tydings. It is true that Hoover, a dry, carried the State in 1928 by nearly 80,000 majority. But the national election was no test by which to gauge the State election.

If Gov. Ritchie should by chance have a dry opponent, and should win the election by an increased majority, it would put him in the forefront of Democratic candidates for the next presidential nomination. But even if this is denied him, there is said to be a growing sentiment in favor of his presidential aspirations. Maryland is part of the old South, though not of the Confederacy, and Southern Democrats have grown restive at the positive neglect of their section in parceling out the honors of the Presidency. A candidate from the South to win the nomination must have the united support of the South. Could a wet candidate get the support of the South? There hangs the rub.

June Is the Bride's Month Because It Is Named for Their Patron Saint.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Does any one know why June is the bride's own month? It is said that more marriages take place in this month than in any other of the twelve.

June is the favorite month of the brides because it is named for their patron saint. She was a heathen goddess, but she sat on a throne, the highest known to mortal man in the days of the Greeks and Romans. She had to look after Jupiter and keep the heaven on Mount Olympus straight. That was a large order. Then she had to watch over the female sex and protect young maidenhood from Paris and Apollo and Damon and Pythias and Castor and Pollux. When a marriage was made she had to preside at it and when the wheels of matrimony were leaving the track she had to see that they got back where they belonged.

In childbirth she was the faithful nurse of her subjects and in matters of chastity their guide, philosopher and friend. In her temples the Romans coined all their money, and no coin could pass that did not have her beautiful face on it. Thus she became the guardian of the finances, the keeper of the family purse, the one thing every June bride hopes to be.

The cuckoo and the peacock are her sacred birds; the willow, the pomegranate and the lily her sacred plants. They are symbolical of the June bride. ALBERT HARRISON.

"Tall Corn" Disagrees With Majority of Iowa Republicans Who Nominated a Defender of the Tariff Bill.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your leader about the significance of Dickinson's win over Hammill in the Iowa senatorial race is an even worse example than usual of your tendency to go into a trance when the subject of the tariff is to the fore. As everybody in Iowa knows, the real fight was between Brookhart and Hammill who for a number of tangled reasons have very little political use for each other. Dickinson won because Brookhart backed him. If you can get any salve for your standpat Republican sensibilities out of a Brookhart victory, I'm sure we sons of the wild jackass don't object. But it's silly to try to persuade your readers that Dickinson won because the Iowa farmers love the holy tariff. For the most part they don't give a hoot about the matter. But what feelings they have are decidedly hostile to it.

INEVITABLE.

If the mother of a boy
Quite approved the girl he chose
And upon her looked with joy
Never turning up her nose
At her manners in disdain,
Never wishing she would change
Little faults which seemed so plain,
Wouldn't such a thing be strange?

If the mother of the maid,
Quite approved her daughter's choice
And was never once afraid,
Never heard the thought to voice,
That her son-in-law to be
Came from much inferior stock
Than her people's family,
Wouldn't that be quite a shock?

Until everlasting night
Ends this curious cosmic whirl
Man will never seem just right
To the mother of his girl.
And however fair the stuff
Of the maid who makes him glad,
She will not seem good enough
To the mother of the lad.

Second Volume, Embodying Recommendations, to Be Published June 24.

LIBERAL VIEW EXPECTED

London (Tuesday), June 10 (A.P.).—All other political problems of the British Empire were driven into the background today with publication of the first report of the commission of Sir John Simon on Indian statutory reform.

The commission, after two and one-half years of labor, has made unanimous recommendation to King George as regards the future government of India. The first volume, however, deals only with the historical and geographical background of the Indian Empire, and lays the foundation for the recommendations, which will follow in the second volume, to be published June 24.

Sir John Simon, relieved of his long and arduous task as head of the commission, is prepared to sail for America soon to attend the Annual meeting of the Canadian and American Bar Associations.

Recommendations Secret.

Observers believe that the recommendations, which will remain as a closely guarded state secret until June 24, will be considered liberal from the British viewpoint. It remained to be seen whether Indian reaction would be the same. One possibility advanced was that the commission would recommend dominion status for India within a definite number of years.

That part of the report published today reaffirmed that fundamental British policy in India is based upon the Montagu-Chelmsford reforms of 1918, and has as its fixed object "progressive realization of responsible government in India as an integral part of the British Empire."

The report concludes with a significant statement that the British people, so long accustomed to self-government, are bound to sympathize with the Indian demand for self-determination and equal status with Europeans, even though the British people may deplore some of the manifestations of the movement.

Religious Clash Examined.

The Hindu-Moslem question is treated fully. The strange complexities of the two religions which bring out their animosities and place each in opposition to the other at almost every turn are delved into thoroughly and the point is emphasized that there can be no solution of the Indian question until this vexing and perplexing problem is taken into full account.

One of the most interesting sections of the report deals with progress of women in India, and it is remarked that the progressive movement for Indian women "holds the key of progress; the results it may achieve are incalculably great."

The report deals also with the relations of the 562 native states with more or less sovereign princes whose territory is not British and whose subjects are not British subjects. No solution of the problem presented in India, it is stated, can fail to take care of their peculiar position.

100 Drown as Chinese River Vessel Founders

Shanghai, June 9 (A.P.).—One hundred passengers and crew of the Chinese steamer Litung were drowned today. The Yangtze River vessel struck a rock off Tungchow on the north shore of the river's mouth and sank.

The Litung was threading its way among the numerous shoals and small islands of the estuary between Tsungming Island and Tungchow when it struck the rock. It was not known immediately whether any foreigners were on board. The north channel in which the Litung was sunk is generally avoided by ocean-going vessels, the south channel being considered safer.

Count Dropped in Sale Of Hops, Paraphernalia

Chicago, June 9 (A.P.).—Charges of violating the national prohibition law were dismissed today against Joe Grein, proprietor of the first hops and malt store, seized after the Supreme Court held that sales of material for making alcoholic liquors were illegal, so that they could be replaced by grand jury action.

The stock, valued at $75,000, is impounded and the Government will seek to destroy them. Meantime, Grein has restocked his store on advice of his attorneys, one of whom is Clarence Darrow, displaying placards that the materials are not for making of illegal beverages.

Bandman-Banker Jailed For $285,000 Larceny

Northampton, Mass., June 9 (A.P.).—Harold Dick Newcomb, dance orchestra leader and former manager of the closed Hampshire Country Trust Co., today was sentenced to from eight to ten years for larceny of $285,000 from the bank. Newcomb changed his plea to guilty when he came up for trial today.

The State charged he used the money to support his elaborate and popular orchestra, which played at social affairs throughout New England. Recently receivers for the bank filed suit for $400,000 against him and his new home and automobile were attached.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

IT'S getting so a man just can't tell what to do in this political game. Consider the thwarted ambitions left in the North Carolina fracas.

For well-nigh onto 30 years there have been men waiting around to take Senator Simmons' place. Occasionally in that long stretch an impatient one would get up the nerve to oppose him in the primary, but as the senator bowled all opposition over time and again it came to be accepted as the best strategy to just wait until the old man retired.

Quite a flock of hopefuls developed over the years, too, but despite their increasing numbers they just waited, biding their time.

* * * *

SO often had opposition to the senator proved unavailing that even after he bolted the party in 1928, no one from the hopefuls dared step out and challenge him. Overtures were made to certain men that this would be a good year to oppose the senator, but none of them could quite make up his mind to take the chance.

Former Secretary of the Navy Daniels, for one, is believed to have long entertained senatorial aspirations, but he thought, as did the other hopefuls, that it would be better to wait until Simmons retired.

* * * *

ONE does not realize here just what trouble those North Carolinians who were determined to punish the old man did have in finding a candidate against him. The opportunity went begging for some time.

Then Josiah W. Bailey decided to take the plunge. He was one of those who thought the senator had punishment coming to him. But the understanding is that he wanted some one else to run instead of himself.

The impression is that he considered he was offering himself up as a sacrifice. But he entered the fight and won easily.

* * * *

NOW instead of there being a vacancy with Simmons' retirement, for which the flock of hopefuls could have scrambled, the place will be filled. The hopefuls will have to wait until Senator Overman's retirement. It's too bad. North Carolina has an unusually large number of former governors, and other public men who have just been waiting around. It is a pity that after waiting so long it should develop that they have waited in vain.

The clouds are not confined to North Carolina, though. Look at Senator Heflin. If a fellow ever needed a friend he does. The clouds are rushing toward him with the velocity of one of those tornadoes of his State. He showed signs yesterday of fright for the first time. He can't escape it. It is pursuing him with the relentlessness of death. Next November it is going to catch up with him and embrace him; in fact, envelop him in its fondling arms. Good-by, Tom.

SHIPS OFF TO INDIA; OFFICIALS SEE HOPE

Destroyer Fleet on Way With Troops; Afghan Forces Gathering at Pass.

TEN MORE SENT TO JAIL

Bombay, India, June 9 (A.P.).—Encouraged by reports that the war office had dispatched troops and warships to India, harassed officials tonight assumed a more optimistic attitude toward a situation in the Peshawar district which was regarded as critical.

With their hands full, coping with the irritating passive resistance campaign for which Mahatma Gandhi is interned at Yeroda Prison, Poona, Indian government officials surveyed the reported massing of thousands of Afridis beyond Khyber Pass, on the fringe of the northwest frontier.

The Afghan tribesmen, stung by repeated bombing raids of British airmen, when some 5,000 projectiles were dumped on them in their mountain retreats, were said to be swarming like hornets through the district and watching the pass as a cat watches a mouse.

Advices from London indicated that the third destroyer flotilla and a Lincolnshire Regiment were on the way and there was hope of another contingent leaving soon. How soon actual mobilization of India would take place hinged upon developments in Peshawar.

Tonight India was somnolent. There was an air of suspense, awaiting the report of Sir John Simon, although it would be forthcoming only in its first section, with findings, but without the recommendations on which depended the trend toward peace or further civil resistance.

A bomb was exploded at a Lyallpur meeting of youth league members. Police and congress demonstrators escaped injury.

A nephew of V. J. Patel, former assembly president, with nine others, including Mukund Lalaviya, Pandit Malaviya's son, were sentenced here to six months' rigorous imprisonment. They were arrested Friday at a congress house raid here.

Levine Plane Fuelled For Mystery Flight

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 9 (A.P.).—Charles A. Levine's transatlantic monoplane, Columbia, was loaded with 325 gallons of gasoline today and freshly overhauled for a mystery flight, the destination of which, it was whispered, would be Europe.

Levine is in Paris and Roger Q. Williams, who flew to Spain in the monoplane Pathfinder and who superintended the overhauling of the Columbia, was noncommittal. Rumors were that Williams would pilot the Columbia on an ocean flight.

The fuel in the Columbia today was not sufficient to carry her to the other side, but if a refueling was planned, it would be enough to carry her to Old Orchard Beach, Me., or even to Harbor Grace, Newfoundland. An overhead window, suitable for refueling, recently was cut in her fuselage.

U. S. Agents Seize Sardine Shipment

Price Fixing by Norway Packers Charged by Government.

New York, June 9 (A.P.).—Seizing 5,000 cases of sardines, the Federal Government today inaugurated a war on alleged price-fixing by Norwegian packers and shippers of the tiny fish. The seizure was made at the warehouse of Chr. Bjelland & Co., Inc., fish importers. The Government alleges that in January, 1929, all sardine packers in Norway entered into a compact to fix prices and thereafter have exacted compliance with their rate schedules under threats of boycott.

Israel B. Oseas, special assistant to the Attorney General, declined to say what further action would be taken, but declared the case had been under investigation by the Department of Justice for five months and that all sardines brought into the United States while the allegedly monopolistic agreement is observed, would be subject to seizure.

Shot at Father Fatal To Daughter of Deputy

Prescott, Ark., June 9 (A.P.).—Running between her father, Deputy Sheriff John Jobe, of Nevada County, and J. L. Daniels, 70, as the latter shot at Jobe while they were quarreling, Mildred Jobe, 16, was killed instantly near here today. Daniels was placed in jail here on a charge of murder. Feeling was said to be strong against Daniels and a heavy guard was placed around him to avert possible violence.

Officers said Daniels came to the home of Jobe today to recover a shotgun taken from his son, Roy Daniels, when Jobe arrested him yesterday on a liquor charge. The aged man was said to have fired at Jobe when he refused to give him the gun. Daniels was said to have been intoxicated. He claimed the gun was discharged accidentally.

Wireless Operator Stayed Behind to Lighten Craft's Load.

Lima, Peru, June 9 (A.P.).—Capt. Lewis A. Yancey and his copilot, Emil Burgin, arrived here today from Talara, Peru, without the third member of their party, on a good will tour of South America.

The man left behind was Zeh Bouck, radio operator. Capt. Yancey said that because of the bad condition of France Field, Balboa, C. Z., and the necessary heavy load of gasoline, he was forced to leave the radio man behind. Bouck will arrive here on the next Pan-American Grace plane due at Lima, and in two or three days all three fliers will take off for Antofogasta, Chile.

The aviators had been unreported for 24 hours yesterday and Capt. Yancey was much surprised. The uncertainty of their arrival in Talara last night was caused by scanty communications in that part of South America.

Woman, 3 Men Tied up As Bandits Take $6,000

Chicago, June 9 (A.P.).—Four robbers bound and gagged a woman and three men today and escaped with between $6,000 and $7,800 from the safe of the Krause Mortgage and Bond Co., 1700 West Chicago avenue.

Sunshine and Science Make this Better Macaroni

There are two outstanding reasons why Mueller's is America's largest selling brand of macaroni. First, the principal ingredient—a selected blend of choice farina—the heart of the wheat. Second, exclusive manufacturing processes that bring out all the flavor of the wheat and result in a macaroni that cooks up lighter and fluffier than any other. You'll appreciate the difference the first time you try Mueller's. Ask your grocer. He has Mueller's or can get it for you.

Macaroni Au Gratin
1 Pkg. Mueller's Macaroni; 2 Tbsps. butter; 2 Tbsps. flour; 2 Cups hot milk; 1 Tsp. salt; ½ Tsp. pepper; 2 Cups grated cheese; ½ Cup bread crumbs. Parboil macaroni 9 min. in 4 qts. boiling water with 1 tbsp. salt. Drain. Melt butter, add flour, milk, seasonings. Cook until thick. Put layer of macaroni in greased baking dish, then layer of cheese, alternating with macaroni on top. Pour sauce over, cover with bread crumbs, dot with butter. Set dish in hot water. Bake 20 min. or until crumbs are brown.

ALUMNI HOLD STAGE AT U. OF MARYLAND

H. C. Whiteford Reelected Association President at Annual Meeting.

GRADUATION BALL HELD

"Old grads" had their day at the University of Maryland at College Park yesterday. The entire day was devoted to alumni activities, from the annual meeting of the Alumni Association in the morning until the commencement ball at night in the Ritchie Gymnasium.

W. B. Burrus, of Washington, and Dr. Raymond A. Pearson, president of the university, were the special speakers at the alumni meeting. Both urged the members to continue their loyalty to the school and declared that the duty of the student does not end when he graduates, but continues throughout his life.

H. C. Whiteford, of Whiteford, Md., was relected president of the Alumni Association. Other officers elected were W. D. Groff, of Owings Mills, Md., vice president; Dr. T. B. Symons, College Park, Md., secretary-treasurer; G. F. Pollock, Boyds, Md., assistant secretary, and Morrison M. Clark, Washington, member of alumni board from College of Arts and Sciences.

Annual Dues Retained.

A resolution which would do away with annual dues and make the alumni treasury dependent upon the loyalty fund was voted down, although the fund was approved.

George F. Pollock, assistant secretary of the alumni association, has been appointed assistant in the office of the president to do field work in connection with the university, President Pearson announced at the luncheon which followed the meeting.

Mr. Pollock, who is a resident of Boyds, Montgomery County, Md., entered the university in 1919 and received his bachelor of science degree in agriculture in 1923. He was awarded his master's degree a year later.

Prominent as Athlete.

He was prominent in athletics and other student activities, winning his letter in baseball four years and in football three seasons. He was one of the last to win his letter four times in succession, as the university joined the Southern Conference in 1922 and freshmen became ineligible for varsity competition. He was awarded the medal in his graduation year for the man typifying the best in athletics and also received the University of Maryland saber for the member of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps Unit, in which he held the rank of major, who had done the most for the military department advancement.

The ivy planting ceremonies and the transfer of class traditions to the incoming senior class was postponed because of the rain.

The cornerstone of the $225,000 library building, which is part of the $1,000,000 building program, was laid, however, in spite of the inclement weather. The ceremonies were in charge of the grand lodge of Masons of Maryland and the cornerstone was laid by the most worahipful grand master of Maryland, George R. Gorsuch, of Baltimore. The address was made by Maj. E. Brooke Lee, speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates and a member of the board of regents.

Senator Tydings Present.

The oldest graduate present was Henry Holzapfel, of Hagerstown, Md., a member of the class of '93 and now a member of the board of regents. Roland L. Sutton, of Sanford, Fla., class of '22, was the graduate coming the longest distance. Mrs. Elizabeth H. Day, of Prince Frederick, Md., member of the class of '20, was introduced as the "oldest co-ed." She was the first woman to graduate from the university. Mrs. Day is the wife of Frank Day, superintendent of schools for Calvert County, Md.

Among the other "old grads" to appear was Senator Millard Tydings and former Congressman William C. Cole, of Towson, Md.

A reception to the members of the faculty, senior class and alumni was held in the afternoon at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Pearson at Hyattsville. The early part of the evening was devoted to class reunions and class reunion dinners and the day's events culminated in the commencement ball last night.

Graduation exercises will be held this morning at 11 o'clock in Ritchie Gymnasium, when James Brown Scott, secretary of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, will make the principal address.

Civil War Pension Measure Is Signed

Bill Increases Allowances and Lowers Age Required.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday signed a bill increasing the pensions of all Civil War veterans.

The bill increases to $75 monthly the pension of veterans who formerly received $65. Those receiving $72 and $90 will receive $100 under the bill.

Widows of veterans who formerly had to be 75 years of age to get a $40 monthly pension, now may get it at the age of 70.

It was said at the White House that the President regards the bill as an old age pension measure and not objectionable, as was the Spanish-American War veterans pension bill which he recently vetoed.

Rambeau Suit Demands Voiding of Movie Pact

Los Angeles, June 9 (A.P.).—Marjorie Rambeau, stage and screen actress, filed suit in Superior Court today, asking cancellation of a contract with Harry M. Gould and Emanuel Price, her Hollywood managers. Under the contract, the actress stated, they were to provide her with motion-picture work, but have failed to do so for a period of six months.

"No work," Miss Rambeau said, "so why keep the contract going?" She complained that her managers, despite their failure to live up to the contract, have refused to void it, and thereby prevented her from seeking other channels of employment.

Killing Is Blamed On Row Over Rum

Page County Man, 76, Held on Charge of Slaying His Grandson.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 9.—Argument over a fruit jar believed to have contained moonshine liquor had a fatal ending in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Page County yesterday when Fred Lee Cubbage, 19, was shot to death by Jacob Cubbage, 78, his grandfather. The aged man is now in the Page County Jail at Luray.

The shotgun charge severed the main artery in the youth's thigh and he died from loss of blood shortly after reaching a doctor at Stanley. Officers learned that Jacob and Fred Cubbage engaged in an argument Sunday afternoon after which Jacob went to his home. Shortly afterward Fred is said to have gone to his grandfather's home and demanded a fruit jar, which he claimed was his.

After another argument Jacob ordered his grandson to leave the house. When the lad refused the grandfather grabbed his shotgun and fired into the youth's leg.

CHINA BANDITS AID NEW REBEL DRIVE

Decisive Battle Being Waged at Yochow in Hunan Province.

NORTHERN ARMY HALTED

Hankow, June 9 (A.P.).—While continuing its month-old fighting to hold back the Northern rebel invaders who crossed the Yellow River into Honan and Shantung Provinces, the Nationalist government today was fighting a defensive battle against the Southern rebels at Yochow, Hunan Province.

The Kwangsi Province rebels, reinforced by thousands of bandits, were reported to have charged 50,000 strong against 40,000 Nationalists, intrenched south of Yochow. Flanked by Lake Tungting and backed by the Yangtse River, the government forces were expected to be aided by gunboats dispatched to Yochow.

Rebels Drive Toward Cities.

The Southern rebels' drive is directed toward Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang, important sister cities of Central China, 175 miles down the Yangtse River from Yochow.

Meanwhile the march of the Northern coalition rebels through Honan Province toward Hankow apparently has been checked, at least temporarily.

These troops, directed by Gens. Feng Yu Hsiang, and Yen Hsishan, were reported by Nationalists to have suffered a defeat yesterday at Sincheng, 20,000 rebels being killed and 16,000 taken prisoner.

Little Change on East-West Front.

Little change was reported on the east-to-west front in Northern Honan along the Haichow-Tungkwan Railway, where heavy forces have fought since May 8 indecisively.

The Chinese press reported that in Shantung Province, the Nationalist commander had secretly connived with the rebels to surrender to them Tsinan, capital city of the province. Although cannonading of the rebels and Nationalist forces was heard in Tsinan Saturday, the Nationalists still held the city.

Members of the House prepared to fight the war tax bill because of Senate changes.

Emperor Charles of Hungary pledged himself to efforts toward early peace.

NOTED INVENTOR MADE CONSTABLE

John Hays Hammond, Jr., Will Guard Own Treasures in Gloucester.

PLANS TO WEAR BADGE

Gloucester, June 9.—Down by the rest of Norman's Woe, made famous by Longfellow's poetic description of the wreck of the schooner Hesperus, there is on duty perhaps the most distinguished constable in the United States.

"Johnny Hammond" they call him in this city of fishermen, in which every one knows him and his father, John Hays Hammond, noted engineer, but in "Who's Who" and other books which print the names of the great he is John Hays Hammond, jr., inventor of radio marvels which have startled the world.

Despite all that, he is going to wear just an ordinary tin badge like that pinned on the coat of any guardian of the peace, but he isn't going to carry handcuffs, firearms or a club.

Officially, he has the right to do so, but Mr. Hammond, besides knowing all about radio waves and many other scientific things, is handy with his fists.

With all the ceremony called for, Mr. Hammond was appointed a constable by the city council, and he can now make arrests, chase away trespassers, or even capture a bootlegger and seize his load.

But Mr. Hammond is not going to do any of those things. He is just going to be his own guardian of the scientific treasures he has on his estate at Normans Woe Cove.

He asked for the appointment and the council members said they were delighted at the opportunity to add him to the force of brave men who have kept Gloucester one of the most peaceful communities along the New England coast.

"And take it from me," said a veteran policeman, "if Johnny lands on a burglar or a bootlegger, said persons will think after it is all over that they had mixed it up with a wildcat. Any person who gives him and his tin badge the laugh will have to ride to the police station."

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

THERE has been a great deal of editorial concern recently expressed over what is to be done about the juvenile audiences attending the motion picture theaters now that the screen has become almost exclusively articulate. It appears that the rising generation is coming in for one of its periodic intervals of sympathetic interest and that the purveyors of cinematic entertainment have suddenly become alive to the nebulous importance of the kid patronage.

In several cultural centers—if that is what they are—the theater people have gone in heavily for special juvenile programs as a means of attracting youthful customers; in others they have reduced the prices for children to what amounts to an irreducible minimum; in still others, they are wondering what it's all about and don't know precisely where they're at. Were I a theater manager, I should be included in the last group.

After a dozen years of direct contact with the problem, I am of the opinion that no one knows quite what to do about the youngster and his relationship to the adult picture theater.

In the first place, juvenile attendance is vastly overestimated. Shortly prior to the advent of sound, an accurate statistical computation convinced the organization with which I happened to be associated that juvenile patronage constituted about 2 per cent of the total. It was obviously impossible to plan, assemble and present bills on the basis of the 2 per cent attendance and ignore the other 98 per cent of grown ups. So we did what many are doing again now—arranged special programs for juvenile audiences in specified theaters at regularly appointed times. The results were a trifle disconcerting and immensely surprising.

It was found that regardless of parental aid, careful planning and an eye single to the tastes of the underage movie fans, the youngsters with the price in their pockets would walk straight past the entertainment devised for their particular beguilement and buy tickets for some regular adult picture show that they thought might better suit their immediate inclinations.

The situation, I take it, remains about the same today, school hours, parental restrictions, juvenile habits and like contributing factors being what they are. That the coming of the talking picture has alienated juvenile interest, and patronage seems to be effectually contradicted by a brief item in the last issue of Martin J. Quigley's valued Exhibitors Herald World, edited in Chicago by my good friend, Jay M. Schreck:

"Twenty-six hundred children in one day, as against 800 during the days of silent pictures is the answer of a neighborhood theater management to the statement that talking pictures have brought a decline in juvenile patronage. 'Pick the right pictures,' says this theater owner."

That, in short, is all the problem there has ever been in any sort of picture exhibition. Just pick the right pictures.

Try and do it!

When Sam Jack Kaufman assumes the duties of "permanent" master of ceremonies at the Fox on Friday of this week, he will inaugurate locally a new policy that is being put in force in all of the Fox de luxe theaters. That is, his "permanency" will be limited to four weeks, at the expiration of which time he will move on to another of the de luxe establishments and a new m. c. will come to Washington.

In other words, the Fox organization, under the regime of its new president and cabinet, will rotate its masters of ceremonies just as the Loew interests are now doing, except that the rotation will occur every four weeks, instead of every week.

While this arrangement renders it impossible for the major domo of the goings-on to become as familiar with the given stage unit as he otherwise might, there are advantages that quite balance this meager handicap.

I forget exactly what they are.

Whether you like Gary Cooper, Fay Wray and Emma Dunn in "The Texan," at the Palace, or not—and you probably will—you will scream at the ridiculous episodes and the keenly satirical originality that have gone into the making of "Night," the "Silly Symphony" that to my Lilliputian intelligence stands as one of the most diverting cartoon comedies ever sketched by a lunatic limner!

Then, too, there is Fred Britten, in the Hearst Metrotone News paying his disrespects to the naval limitations treaty, in the wake of the highly-heated Senator Johnson and others of the antis.

It won't be long now at the RKO-Keith Theater. A crew of 25 men is working from closing time each night until 10:30 next morning, rushing the installation of the latest improved, double-back-action, Arctic-while-you-wait refrigeration system, guaranteed to be "cool but not cold," "comfortable but not chilly," "20 degrees cooler than the street," and all the rest of it.

Boy, light the fire in the grate!

Princess Helene evidently intends to go for no such coup d'etat as that! Carol will have to do his cooing elsewhere.

Two Men Jailed in Tire Tampering.

Convicted of petit larceny in attempting to remove a tire from a parked automobile, Joe Regland and Leslie Poindexter, Negroes, were sentenced yesterday in Police Court by Judge John P. McMahon to serve terms of 180 days in jail. Policeman R. D. Edwards arrested the men Sunday night on Fifth street northwest.

WEATHER CODE CUTS SEA FLYING PERILS

Daily Forecasts Contemplated Obtained From Vessels Out on Ocean.

STORMS SWEEP EAST

New York, June 9 (A.P.).—A new radio code is crackling over the North Atlantic, carrying a message of hope for this year's ocean fliers.

The code is the weather reports from ships at sea under a new international agreement whereby the first complete daily forecasts of any ocean are contemplated. These forecasts promise to reduce the weather hazards in North Atlantic hops.

If they do, the oceangoing planes will have won a long step toward the goal that has cost North Atlantic fliers 21 lives since 1926, brought 13 successful crossings and 19 failures. For the death list of all except three of the 21 is charged on the records as "lost without trace," and the weather stands foremost among causes suspected.

The new service demonstrates how completely the winds and storms trend eastward and never westward over the North Atlantic airlanes. It shows that this prospective travel belt is virtually a river of air, flowing either slowly or at hurricane speed, against the planes bound outward from Europe.

Only One Plane Succeeded.

There is evidence enough on this one point to account for the fact that but one plane has crossed the Atlantic westbound.

The fate of the Vestris illustrates another ever prevalent menace, no matter what the direction of flight. This peril comes from the "lows," that is storms, which originate off Hatteras, induced, it seems, by perpetual mixing there of warm gulf stream air and the cold land breezes.

All these Hatteras storms sweep eastward; they cross the whole North Atlantic they cut every present proposed airlane.

They start small, but fast; and they often grow to fill half the ocean. It was one of these, springing from an apparent calm, that 24 hours later developed the power to strike the Vestris her final fatal blow.

Daily forecasting of the entire North Atlantic was authorized last October at a meeting of maritime nations. A new code was adopted to replace the many in use. It is entirely in figures.

Typical Weather Report.

A typical ocean weather report, received by Dr. James Kimball, forecaster at New York, who makes the new forecasts, reads:

"20417 59812 32200 25043."

The first figure 2 means Monday. The next, 0, fixes position north of the equator. Thus the entire message translates:

"Monday north of Equator latitude 41.42 longitude 59.48 7.00 a. m. Eastern standard time. Wind direction north force light breeze; weather cloudless; barometer, 30.27 visibility, excellent temperature, 43 Fahrenheit."

These messages began late in May. From them the turbulent air above the whole northern ocean can be plotted. A ship captain can read what to dodge or where to steer to catch favoring winds and save coal, while to the aviator life itself depends on the information in these charts. The organization work for the United States was directed by E. B. Colvert, chief of the forecast division at Washington.

PLOT ON SUCCESSOR LAID TO PORTES GIL

Sought to Have Ortiz Rubio, Then President-Elect, Slain in U. S., Charge.

MORONES CITES POLICE

Mexico City, June 9 (A.P.).—Luis Morones, former secretary of industry, commerce and labor, in a political speech today accused former President Portes Gil of plotting the assassination of President Ortiz Rubio while the latter was in the United States last January and while Portes Gil was still in the presidency. Portes Gil promptly denied the charge when informed of it.

Speaking before the assembly of the Nationalist Revolutionary Alliance, Morones charged that emissaries of Portes Gil agitated Communists in Los Angeles to plot the death of Ortiz Rubio when he planned to visit there. He added that the Los Angeles police discovered the plot and caused the United States Department of State to recommend that Ortiz Rubio not visit that city, with the result that the president-elect canceled his proposed visit.

Following the cancelation, Morones, asserted, Los Angeles Communists demonstrated before the Mexican consulate in that city. When police arrested them, he charged, they found the demonstrators were emissaries of Portes Gil carrying credentials from the Mexican interior department. He alleged that at present Portes Gil was attempting to get control of congress and the cabinet.

When the accusations were brought to the attention of Portes Gil he declared they were absurd, adding that Morones merely was trying to stir up trouble.

The alliance assembly was the first important political meeting in the campaign for congressional elections, which will be held in July.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

—By JOHN J. DALY—

"The Bachelor Father," at the National this week suggests a doubtless fertile field for speculation as to how many families would hang together if parents and offspring had equal voice in the selection of each other. To be sure the idea is a bit preposterous, but it is in the matter of quantity rather than quality.

Briefly, the piece is about an English gentleman of both title and money who has loved, perhaps wisely but certainly too well in many climes. In his declining years when ruthless nature has conjugated his adventures in the past tense he falls for the idea that perhaps there would be a thrill left in life for him if he could gather his informal family together. He does, and therein lies the action of the piece—plenty of action it may be remarked.

Of course, the first shock is almost fatal both to father and children, but all bear up well under the strain. The children have a trifle the best of the argument; so much so, in fact, that after three months when a series of incidents contrive to take all of the children away for the time being, the shock is almost too much for father. All turns out fairly well, however.

The National Theater Players turn in their usual well-rounded performance. Probably honors should be divided between Walter Gilbert, as the crusty ex-Lothario, and Marion Wells, in the role of "Tony" Flagg, a charming souvenir of one of her father's excursions to the New World.

Freddie Sherman and Marion Sterly account for the other two children.

Then there is Merwin Browne, Adelaide Hibbard, Romaine Callender, Edith Gresham and H. Dudley Hawley in the minor roles.

Chiefly the piece is a good laugh from start to finish, although there is a slightly far-fetched effort to point a moral in the last act. It is worth seeing.

GAYETY

Tiny Huff, petite blonde, and Harry Ryan will undoubtedly get the call when I. H. Herk, czar of the Mutual Burlesque Association calls for his classiest pair of steppers. Yesterday this pair demonstrated to the fans that classy stepping is an art. Bobby Nissen, beautiful blonde, continues to bring down the house. Irene Jackson and Syde Burke round out the remaining portion of the female parts of the cast.

Aded to the talented list of comics is "Happy Hyatt" Mos. Young Costello is gaining much popularity here with his burning cigar. Virginia Wright, the end poney, continues to dominate a snappy chorus which backs up the principals in a clever way.

This week's program given by Jimmy Lake is full of action all through the performance. Jerry McCauley, coming direct from the Trocodore in Philadelphia, will be here next week. A greater wrestling night on Thursday, with auction Wednesday, and the amateurs getting their chance on Friday night, will prevail again this week.

LITTLE THEATER

"Sex Madness" opened at the Little Theater, Ninth and F streets northwest, to a large and appreciative audience yesterday.

This is a new picture, shown for the first time in Washington, featuring Jack Richardson, who is a popular leading man, and Corliss Palmer, internationally famous prize winning beauty.

"Sex Madness" dramatically lifts the veil that shrouds the shameful secrets of those who have fallen victims to a dangerous doctrine. It is a gripping, powerful drama that every mother, father, son and daughter should see.

So alive are the people of today to the hectic race for pleasure that the philosophers are calling ours the pleasure-mad age. "Sex Madness" captures the spirit of the hour that prompts this generation to take pleasure where it is met and disregard the penalties.

American Woman Backs Camel Race

Widow Puts Up Purse for Unusual Event in Desert.

Algiers, June 9.—A thrilling mehart race recently took place along the golden tracks of the Sahara. (As is probably known, mehari is the singular of mehara—the desert camels which are especially broken in for use by the army in desert regions as runners in the place of horses.)

This camel race was organized and financially supported by Mrs. James S. Harlan, widow of a rich American, who is much interested in all African affairs.

The race was run from Ghardaia, the romantic capital perched high on a barren hillock of the famous "Quakers of Islam," to El-Golea—the most enchanting oasis of the African desert—a distance of 280 kilometers, across a country without life or water and where only sand or sunburnt blockstones are to be found.

This distance was covered in forty-eight hours by nine out of eleven of the competitors (all being natives), who started from Ghardaia. This Saharan race, to be known in future as the "Harlan Foundation," will be run every year for the next five years.

On the arrival of the entrants at El Golea, Mrs. Harlan, who was staying there for a time, was warmly congratulated by six French generals, who happened to be present on a mission at El Golea.

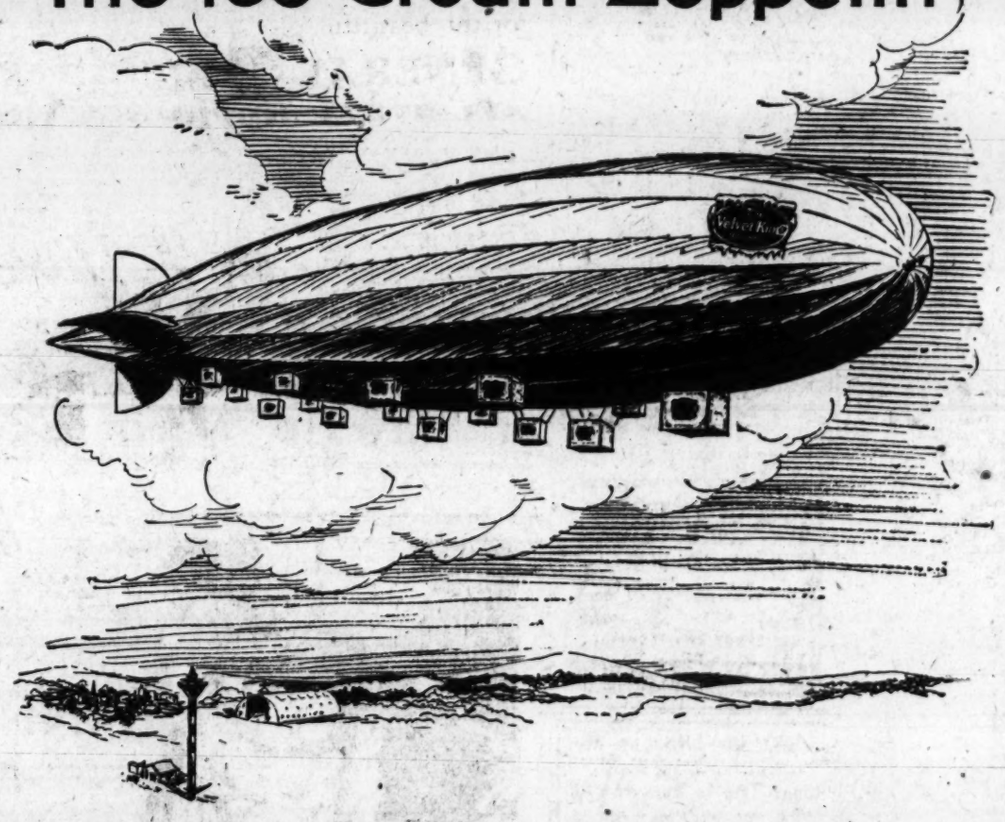
"The Ice Cream Zeppelin"



IT would require a Zeppelin, sailing at full speed and carrying no passengers, to deliver daily all The Velvet Kind Ice Cream to its distributing points through the South—were the ice cream all made in one city.

There would have to be mooring masts in every important Southern city from which the delivery trucks, with their modern methods of refrigeration, could deliver to thousands of stores.

Civilization is not yet up to that point of delivery development.

Yet the same result has been achieved, in a most satisfactory way, by Southern Dairies. The same high quality ice cream, the same seasonal flavors, the same delicious smoothness of texture—

The Velvet Kind

is delivered daily in hundreds of Southern cities and towns, through the systematized, organized work of Southern Dairies—carefully built up, managed and supervised by a widespread, expert organization. Instead of mooring masts, there are Southern Dairies plants in the centralized cities. Each plant, a local institution in itself, has the advantage of this inter-relation with all the other plants, with such economies effected that this high quality ice cream is purchased by the public at a price which otherwise would be impossible.

Even with the Zeppelin, we could do no better!

DEAREST GENEVIEVE: Did you have a nice week-end? Do you feel full of gay and happy spirits, ready to tackle the problems ahead of you with your usual vim and vigor? If you don't, your week-end was not a success, and you'd better change your formula.

You will want to step out and take advantage of some of the wonderful sales now in progress around town. It seems to me that the prices in effect now are usually not available until after July Fourth.

The Willard Roof Opened Yesterday

—at luncheon. Many people had planned parties, and every one anticipated the event with the greatest interest, but no one was prepared for the surprise in store for them. The entire room has been redone in the most divine shade of blue; blue hangings at the windows and blue slipcovers on the chairs. With white table linen and sparkling glass and silver, the effect is too cool and lovely for words! Through the great windows one glimpses across the green tree tops the Lincoln Memorial, the waters of the Potomac, the new Arlington Bridge. The summer breezes waft through the spacious room. It is extremely pleasant.

The cuisine at the Willard is too famous to need comment. Meyer Davis Orchestra plays for both luncheon and dinner. There is dancing from 7 to 9:30. Table d'hote luncheons are $1.50. Dinners are $2.50. A la carte service is, of course, always available.

Have Luncheon At Stoneleigh Court

—if you like good food, cool, quiet surroundings, and a place to park your car while there.

The cafe in Stoneleigh Court has not always been good. There was a time when people complained that it lacked something to make it a desirable place to eat. They can't say that under the present management, for better food could not be found anywhere. You will be delighted with the menus, and especially with the cool haven it presents on a hot day.

The business men in the neighborhood have taken Stoneleigh Court Cafe for their own, and it looks more like a men's club than anything else on certain days. That needn't frighten away any women who want to lunch there, for there is room for every one. Stoneleigh Court is on Connecticut avenue, between L and K.

June Weddings Hold the Center —of attention at the present time. The usual large number of weddings are scheduled for this month of brides and roses. Photographs of some of the brides make an interesting window at Underwood & Underwood's this week.

A wedding involves so many uses for photographs. This publication and that publication wants your picture from the time your engagement is announced until you say "I do" at the altar.

The bridal party, the bridesmaids, the bride, the bride and groom, singly and in groups, all must be photographed, either in the familiar setting of the home or in the studio at Underwood's. It has become the thing to have a picture of the happy pair photographed together as soon as the engagement is announced. This is always in great demand by magazines and other publications. Of course it goes without saying that since your picture is sure to be wanted, you may as well take the trouble to have good ones made, pictures you will be proud of, pictures you will like, pictures to cherish, as mementoes of the occasion.

Don't forget to stop by Underwood & Underwood's and see the window of pictures of all the pretty brides of this month.

Pasternak Prices Have Been Reduced

—again in all departments. It seems that every one more than usually interested in prices this year, so this is real news of importance. When I was in Pasternak's, 1219 Connecticut avenue, yesterday, they were putting new prices on some handsome evening gowns which you could certainly use in your wardrobe this summer and later as well. Some evening gowns which were $125 have been marked $45. Unless you see these gowns for yourself you can not believe what values they are.

At $35 and $45 are a great variety of beautiful gowns which have been $65 and $85. There are wonderful chiffons in gorgeous patterns and colors, daytime silks and other materials.

New Markings in The Misses' Department

—show lovely models at $12.50, $16.50 and $25. There are all types of dresses in this collection, that is for all occasions, including the cleverest, most attractive styles at small prices you have ever had the pleasure of seeing.

Once You Shop At Schwartz's

—you will go back again. You like the chance to select from a large assortment of styles, and the fact that such a wide range of sizes prevail in all sorts of frocks.

Crepe silks and some lovely chiffons have been marked to $15, so go in today and choose for yourself one or two pretty inexpensive frocks for wear now.

Tub silks are $10.75 up to $19.50. Satin-striped materials in pretty colors, sleeveless or with cap sleeves, and other attractive fashionings are included. Schwartz, 1325 Conn. Ave.

Everything Is Reduced At Betty Hanna's

—This does not mean a collection of old things you would'nt want, but attractive frocks for day and evening to wear right now, with, of course, some marvelous suits and wraps left from the earlier showings, which will be excellent buys for you.

As I have so often told you, all models found at Betty Hanna's, 1613 Connecticut avenue, are superlative style and quality to begin with, so when you buy anything at a reduced price you are actually getting something for your money.

I hope no one buys that lovely blue crepe with the French pleating before I have a chance to try it on. There is a sweet evening gown, just perfect for the roofs, which will be priced ridiculously low.

Go in the first thing this morning.

Have You Ever Been to Alaska?

—What, you mean to say you have never taken that divine sea trip from Seattle to Seward? People who live on the Pacific Coast and in Western States run up to Alaska in the summer the way you would take a boat for Boston.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad has arranged such a wonderful trip from Washington to Alaska, at a minimum cost and maximum enjoyment. You leave Saturday, August 23, returning September 22. The trip includes Jasper National Park, the Canadian Rockies, the Canadian Pacific Steamship Co., Vancouver to Seattle via Victoria (which is more English than England), the Alaska Steamship Co., Seattle to Seward via the Inside Passage, Gulf of Alaska and Prince William Sound. If it is your first trip West you will be thrilled with the gorgeous trains and boats, the majestic scenery, wonderful hotels.

Go into the B. & O. offices at Fifteenth and H and talk to Miss Elizabeth M. Haney about it. She is special passenger representative.

More Than Half Of Your Happiness

—on your vacation trip depends on the luggage you take with you. Just the right pieces for your requirements, the minimum number of bags to comfortably carry all the things you will need are an important consideration. But beyond this, your baggage must do you proud, and look the part. At Camalier & Buckley's, 1141 Connecticut avenue, you will find on exhibit all the finest types of luggage for all purposes. Wheary luggage, which includes the original open top wardrobe trunk, may be found in a complete exhibit.

You may buy ensemble sets of overnight bag, fitted; wardrobe hat box; small shoe box, which would do you well for a fortnight's trip, and the additional big wardrobe, if you need that. If handsome luggage happens to be one of your weaknesses, you will enjoy the pleasure of just looking at all the beautiful things in Camalier & Buckley's.

Kentucky Beaten Biscuits May Be Purchased

—from Mary C. Hobday, 1735 Seventeenth stret. Call up North 4152 and ask about prices and all that. All the best caterers and hotels in town buy them at this place, but as they are sold in any quantity you may order them for yourself, too. They are perfectly delicious, and people who like Kentucky Beaten Biscuits feel they have made a great discovery in finding these.

Affectionately,

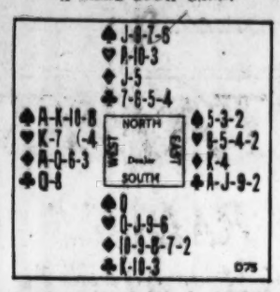
WORK ON BRIDGE

A HARD LUCK HAND.



In a recent tournament in Detroit in which the competition was extremely keen and which was won by a team capitained by that veteran expert R. R. Richards, the above hand was played; it aptly illustrates what may happen when the luck, or the "breaks" of the game as some put it, run against you.

South (dealer) passed, West bid two Spades, North passed, East bid three Spades, and West, of course, went to four. Had the hand been played at Auction, West would have obtained the Contract without being obliged to bid more than one Spade.

North started the play by leading the Jack of Diamonds. Some might question whether the four-card Club suit would not have furnished a sounder lead in view of the fact that the leader had four trumps; but the Diamond Jack would be a strengthener if South had any high cards in that suit, and North's Clubs were so weak that establishing them seemed practically hopeless.

The Declarer passed the trick up to his closed hand so as to keep an entry in dummy. He then led two rounds of trumps and was chagrined when South's refusal showed that North then held the Jack-Nine over West's Ten-Eight-Four. Declarer then tried to pick up a trick by the Club finesse, and failed; next he tried putting up his King when South led a Heart, and failed again. So the Declarer lost in all two Spades, two Hearts and one Club, was down two.

Declarer's hard luck was triple-plated; the adverse trumps were divided 4-1 instead of 3-2 as might have been expected, and in two of the three plain suits the vital adverse card was in the wrong hand. Had the Ace of Hearts been held by South, the Declarer could have made a Heart trick; had the King of Clubs been held by North, Declarer would not have lost a Club trick.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

IRONING CLOTHES.

(Department of Agriculture.)

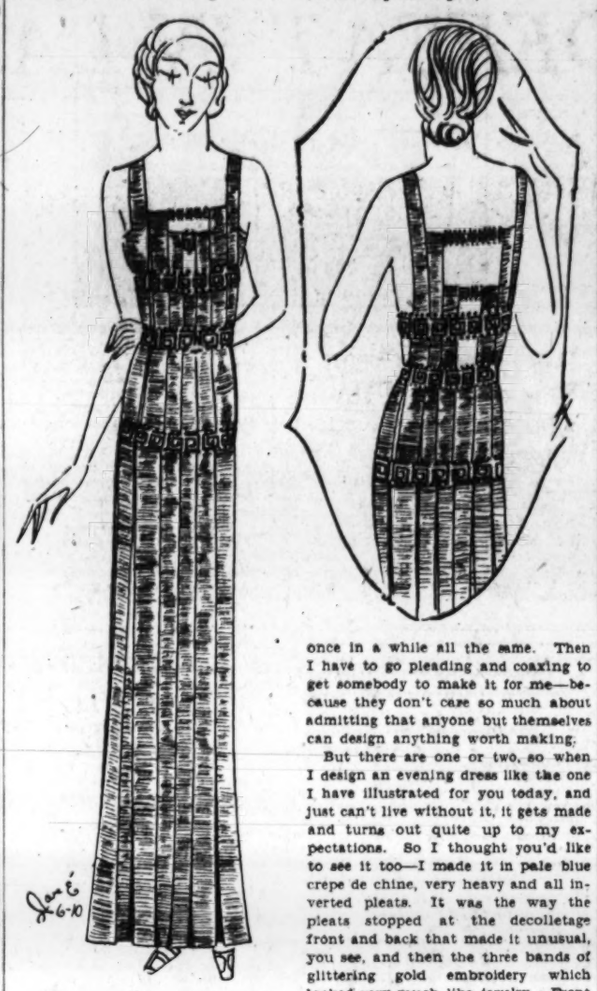
Use a clean, hot iron as heavy as can be handled comfortably. To keep the iron clean, rub occasionally with wax or paraffin. An iron is hot enough to use when it "spats" when touched with a moistened finger. Too cool an iron may leave a rust stain. With starched clothes the iron must be hot enough to glaze the starch, otherwise it will stick and discolor the fabric.

Iron with the thread of the goods and until the garment is dry. Otherwise it will have a puckered appearance. Iron first those parts of the garment that will hang off the board while the rest is being ironed. For example, when ironing a blouse or a man's shirt iron the cuffs and sleeves first, then the collar, and then, beginning with one side of the back or the front, depending on where the garment fastens, continue around to the other side. After ironing a garment look it over carefully and press again where needed. Gloss on hems, tucks and seams can be removed by moistening a piece of cheese cloth with with clear water, wringing it dry and wiping quickly over the glazed surface. Scorch is usually removed by moistening the fabric and exposing it to strong sunlight, although bleaches are sometimes necessary.

Iron on the right side, except when it is desired especially to bring out the pattern. Embroidery appears best when ironed on the wrong side on a thick soft bad. Flat laces are sewed or pinned in place on a cloth or pad before washing and do not require ironing.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Inverted pleats and simple but elegant trimming make this gracious evening dress. (Dah-ray Design.)



Paris, June 9.

At least once in every woman's life there should be a gown with a train. For the wearing of a train is an experience in itself of which no woman should remain for ever ignorant. To those "to the manner born," as it were, it but emphasizes a feeling of dignified and regal importance and bearing. To a lesser light a train on a gown transforms a Cinderlla into a real live princess gracing the salon of a Prince Charming or his aunt.

An unusual version of the train is seen in the present collection of the Maison Tollman. There is a 5 or 6-inch train falling from the hem of the gown—and from just above each elbow a corresponding train flows graciously down to the edge of the train of the gown. The arm trains are held in place by a close-fitting jet bead band. The effect can never fail to produce approving murmurs of all those who view it.

And at this same house even a rather short train—a flowered print it printed summer's chiffon has its is that seems to strew its petals after Miladi as she walks.

Not for the serious business of dancing away the night are gowns like these, nor for muddy weather, but the charming hostess of an at-home dinner and musicale would do well to appear to so gracious an advantage.

Of course, we live in Paris and all that sort of thing, where the world's most famous designers and makers of clothes for women do their designing and making—and maybe it's a vice or something, but I just can't help designing something myself every once in a while all the same. Then I have to go pleading and coaxing to get somebody to make it for me—because they don't care so much about admitting that anyone but themselves can design anything worth making.

But there are one or two, so when I design an evening dress like the one I have illustrated for you today, and just can't live without it, it gets made and turns out quite up to my expectations. So I thought you'd like to see it too—I made it in pale blue crepe de chine, very heavy and all inverted pleats. It was the way the pleats stopped at the decolletage front and back that made it unusual, you see, and then the three bands of glittering gold embroidery which looked very much like jewelry. Front and back this held the decolletage of the dress together, and I defy anyone to tell me that this isn't a lovely evening dress!

A frock or a suit or a blouse in your wardrobe is either right or wrong, there's no in-between. If it's right for the mode, then it gets cleaned and pressed and hung up carefully. If it's all wrong—too tight or too narrow or too short—then it gets itself ripped apart, then cleaned and pressed and then made into new things that Dare tells you about in this week's illustrated leaflet. And what do you do first but send her a stamped, self-addressed envelope for the leaflet, care of the Dare department, The Washington Post.

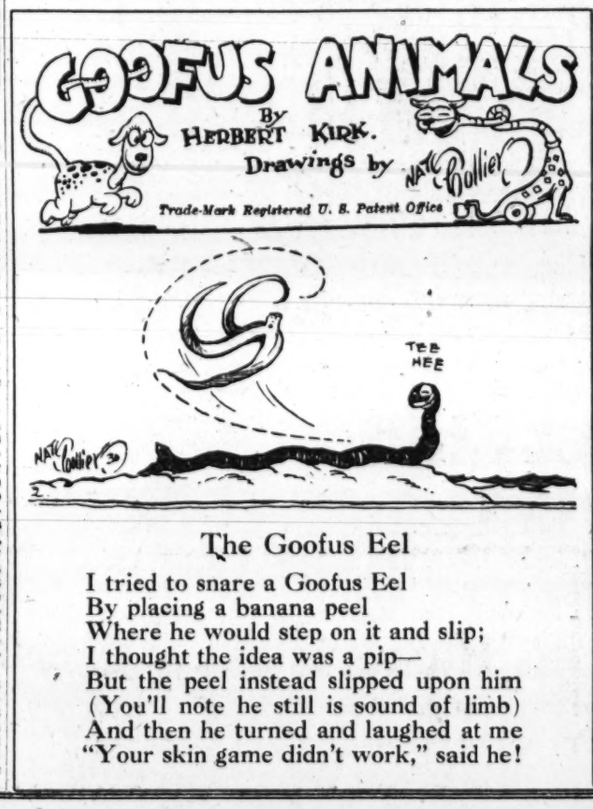
We have lots of things to tell you in the weekly Dare fashion letter. You'll find it in The Washington Post each Sunday.

Au revoir.

Georgetown Will File Library Plea Today

A petition signed by more than 1,000 persons asking for a new branch library in Georgetown is to be presented to the District Commissioners at 10 o'clock this morning.

The petition was circulated by a committee headed by Isaac B. Nordlinger, former president of Georgetown Citizens Association. A bill authorizing construction of a branch library in Georgetown was introduced in the House recently by Representative McCormick (Republican), of Illinois.



The Goofus Eel

I tried to snare a Goofus Eel
By placing a banana peel
Where he would step on it and slip;
I thought the idea was a pip—
But the peel instead slipped upon him
(You'll note he still is sound of limb)
And then he turned and laughed at me
"Your skin game didn't work," said he!

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT.

PLEASE tell me how to care for an Easter lily to have it bloom the following Easter.

MRS. C. J.
MRS. P. M. B.

An Easter lily which has been forced in a greenhouse for the Easter trade is of little use for future house culture. The best thing to do is to plant the bulb in a sunny place in your garden and enjoy its flowers in the late summer. After your lily has ceased flowering, gradually cease watering it. When all the leaves are dry and yellow, set the pot aside for six weeks, then remove dead tops and plant the bulb in the garden. This year it should bloom in late August. Other years, when it has been permitted a longer rest, it will bloom earlier in the season. The bulb is perfectly hardy, all that is necessary in the way of winter protection is to give it a light covering of dead leaves.

Kindly send me the name of a chemical that will cause dead leaves to decay so that they may be used as a fertilizer. W. F. B.

I am sorry, but it is impossible to publish names or addresses in this column. There is such a preparation on the market and if you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I should be glad to send you its name.

I am inclosing you the terminal sprout of a plant of which I am desirous of knowing the name. It is supposed to bloom around Christmas, but so far has never bloomed for me. I have had the plant four years, but I know that it is past 28 years old. Please tell me how to coax it into bloom. Must elephant's ears be started in the house? MRS. A. McK.

The Christmas cactus (epiphyllum truncatum) demands a soil composed of equal parts of fibrous loam, leaf mold and sand, with some finely broken charcoal or broken brick for drainage. Keep it well watered at all times and in a sunny place. See that it has plenty of fresh air. Plant elephant's ears in the open at the end of May.

Please tell me the name of the plant of which I am inclosing a specimen. Is it hardy? MRS. N. S. O.

The plant of which you inclosed a piece is a variety of sedum. It is a variety of little plant quite suitable for house culture or for growing outside in a rock garden, as it is perfectly hardy.

I have just been given a Martha Washington geranium. Please tell me its care. MRS. F. L. J.

The pelargonium (Martha Washington geranium) should have its blooms removed as soon as they show signs of fading. When the weather permits, set the plant outside in the full sun. Here let it ripen its wood and gradually withhold water, giving the plant a good rest. In September prune it into shape, cutting back all weak or soft shoots. Then shake the soil from among the roots and repot it in a smaller sized pot, one in which you can just get the roots comfortably. In January again transplant into a larger pot, in which it should bloom.

(Copyright, 1930.)

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"GEMINI."

IF JUNE 10th is your birthday, the best hours for you are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 6 a. m. to 7:40 a. m., and from 8 p. m. to 9 p. m.

The astrological influences on this date are of a fluctuating nature, and will seem to be with you one moment and against you the next. Beware of scandal! Spiritual discontentment and material advancement is augured.

The children born on this June 10th will have "pushing" natures, and they will insist upon their inherent rights. They will be rather hasty tempered and slow in forgiving and "never forgetters." They will be thorough and plodding students.

Your life picture is one of hills and valleys, ups and downs, but you are never shown crying at the bottom of your downs. Your grit, your determination and your hopeful outlook are your successful allies. The impulsiveness of your nature is usually the cause of your downfalls, and you jump before you look. Although you sometimes land high and dry, there are other times when you find yourself in the quicksands of failure and disappointments, using your wits to scramble out to safety. You are optimistic and big spirited enough, however, to write off the tragedies of your life and to show a balance of happiness and service.

You know how to shoulder work and responsibilities without bending your back with needless worries. Your acts are more impulsive than your words, for you are a discreet talker, and it has been said that discretion consists of always thinking what you say, but not always saying what you think. You are usually in a good temper, and it takes considerable rough treatment to make you lose your poise, dignity or reason. You are very fond of reading and are particularly fond of nature studies, biographies and detective stories. You are very fond of music and have an especial liking for the stringed instruments.

The complaints incident to Gemini people are affections of the bladder and excretory system, fevers and poisonings. Foreigners are your enemies.

Successful people born June 10:

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

"GAS ON THE STOMACH."

ABOUT six out of ten people with digestive disturbances of all sorts and kinds are belchers. Dr. Winklestein tells us that old people with high blood pressure are belchers, as a rule. It is general among people with heart disease. Nervous people, on-edge people, and neurotics are given to this indulgence. Gall stone cases and persons with infected gall bladders are apt to have attacks of belching, especially at night. Persons who have abdominal adhesions and who have periods of reverse peristalsis also have attacks of belching.

In none of these groups is fermentation within the stomach a factor. Probably gas never forms in the stomach in the sense we think, and, by the same token, taking charcoal tablets, stomach antiseptics, pepsins, and other remedies to prevent stomach fermentation is a waste of effort, not to mention money. The term "fermentation of the stomach" has disappeared from the vocabulary of physicians and about the only place where it still hangs on is the labels and wrappers of patent medicines.

Most of the "gas on the stomach" is ordinary everyday air. We swallow much air with our food, especially if we eat rapidly. Babies do, and when they suffer we say they have colic. When a grown man follows the example of the baby he becomes uncomfortable, but for his complaint we have no good term—none comparable to "baby-colic."

If the stomach is vaguely uncomfortable from any cause we are liable to swallow air, consciously or unconsciously, as a means of relief, and then, having blown up the stomach like a balloon, we belch it empty.

When a man with a belching attack, due to an infected gall bladder, pleads with his doctor to give him something to "bring up the gas" the doctor might tell him to quit swallowing air and he would quit belching gas. However, that would not help with the real trouble. The man feels something "wrong" down there and he swallows air in his effort to get relief. The doctor knows that if he would stop swallowing air he would stop belching, but that would not relieve the real "something wrong."

And that brings us down to cases. The discovery that food rarely ferments in the stomach and that the use of antiseptics to prevent such fermentation is useless, merely means that a wrong explanation has been overthrown. The need to find what's wrong is still there. Belching is a symptom of something; it may be bad eating habits, nervousness, stomach ulcer, cancer, heart disease, gall bladder infection, or gall stones. The symptom calls for search for the cause. Swallowed air may cause intestinal symptoms in adults just as it may cause colic in babies. If there be no cause except nervousness there may be symptoms due alone to gas.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

"He Bores Her."

DEAR Miss McDonald: A most unfortunate thing has occurred to me and I can't exactly see my way through it. Needless to say a great deal of advice has been offered, but none of it has proven satisfactory, and I feel that you can help me more than any one, because your opinion is unbiased.

There is a young man who is truly in love with me and I thought that I was in love with him. Now I don't know whether I am or not.

We were both brought up in entirely different surroundings. He left school quite early and since then hasn't made much of an effort to improve his education. I left school, too, but since that time I read numerous good books, sought out interesting people and endeavored to increase my knowledge of all things.

He likes to stay home just to be with me, which was all right for awhile, but it finally bored me to death. It doesn't take long to run out of conversation.

To be brief, I feel his lack of social and educational background very deeply, but he is extremely sensitive and the one time that I mentioned it to him he was furious. And I thought I could help him!

Besides all that he is insanely jealous, while I haven't an ounce of jealousy in me.

So recently we have been about as agreeable as two wildcats. I have tried so hard to explain my feelings, to tell him that three times a week is quite enough for us to be together, but he can't see it. He wants to come in every night, to the exclusion of all my friends, and though he has every intention of marrying me this summer, I feel as though it would be a great mistake. And yet I know that if we broke off it would nearly kill him.

Is there any tactful way of explaining my view point to him; do you think that he could change, or is there really nothing more dead than a dead love? I haven't been very clear, but I do hope you can see it all and help me. I do hate to make him so miserable. Sincerely,

DORA.

Well, never marry a man you do not love, just to avoid making him miserable, for he will only begin to know what real misery is right then.

Tell the boy you do not want to continue the engagement. Then as time goes on and he sees less of you, he will adapt himself to the inevitable. It is terrible, of course, to see some one unhappy because of their love for one, but that is one of the things over which we have no control.

You do not love the man, so it is useless to wonder whether he would "change." Trying to change people is life's most disappointing pastime. You never win. You see, the man who does not want to improve himself is just that kind of man, and nothing you could do would ever make him a different kind of man. He probably is of inferior mentality and what is a pleasure to you is a burden to him. There are thousands of high school graduates who have never read a book of any kind since leaving high school. There are women who write me complaining that their husbands eat dinner, fall asleep, go to bed, go to work, come home, eat dinner, fall asleep, &c., over and over day after day for years. They never read, never talk. Just work, eat and sleep. The wife will say, "What is the matter with him; he is a high school graduate as I am, but I read everything I can lay my hands on, and h has never read one book in the years we have been married."

There are two possible solutions, inferior mentality, or poor health. We all eat tons of food that the body can not handle, and as a result go from bad to worse. Toxic people are dull and stupid due to their physical condition which affects their mental condition. Your fiance may gulp down apple pie and cold milk and go dead. Thousands do. But no one can "change" them. They like apple pie and they hate to read or think. Try again, Dora.

This column is for you. Your experiences, opinions and suggestions will help those who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

INDIANS DEAL NATS 8TH DEFEAT IN LAST 10 STARTS

JACK SHARKEY SAME OVERCONFIDENT SELF, IS BELIEF OF PEGLER

Is Unchanged Since Fights With Scott and Stribling.

Says Sailor Will Sulk If Hit First by Schmeling.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., June 9.—Perhaps it is the heat and it may be the beer or a little of both that addles the judgment of those who frequent prize fighters' camps, but certainly the world does get out of plumb after a few days' close scrutiny and analysis and I am wondering if perhaps a man can't get punch-drunk just from watching boxers box day after day.

Fat men seem lithe, commonplace characters become quotable authorities, commanding space on good white newsprint in which to express their considered opinions on enormous trivialities, dirty little hog-wallows become gems of water on nature's bosom and a fighter with a record composed largely of excuses becomes a killer, restrained only by his self-control.

I recently received a letter from Henry M. Trammel, M. D., a surgeon living in Chicago, presenting the disturbing idea that the inmates of a madhouse always regard the world outside as a world of lunatics. Applying this thought to my present situation at Jack Sharkey's training camp, I am not too confident. I wish the doctor hadn't put the thing in just that way because it suggests that perhaps I am a nut at large, rattling around in my own booby-hatch.

Sharkey Appears to Be Quite a Fighter.

To me, Jack Sharkey seems a pretty good heavyweight prize fighter, a 200-pounder, somewhat too thick in the barrel down where the body goes into the hips and more complacent than an ambitious man should be, has a cold, blue-gray eye which is capable of the most malevolent glare and a volcanic temper.

But what I see of him here, his boxing, his superb health and his capacity for storming anger is conditioned by what I have seen of him in his prize fights, notably the prize fight with Fainting Philip Scott last winter which clearly demonstrated the difference between mere petulance, such as he evinced, and the furious abandon of Jack Dempsey and Luis Angel Firpo at their best. This is the difference between the brief meaningless fizz of a soda bottle and the deep, earnest bubbling of champagne. Sharkey's fighting fury is of the same kind that smashes niblicks, fills the air with wild language and upsets people playing on the adjoining fairway in the game of golf.

I am an authority on his kind of temper, having smashed my share of niblicks and I know that it does not lick any street car conductors or truck drivers of itself.

Sharkey Not So Wild, Scott Found Out.

In Sharkey's case, it almost licked Fainting Philip because old Philip is easily impressed by a dirty look and it was only a desperate, scared poke as Philip advanced rapidly to the rear that caught Sharkey on the teeth and wrought a change in both of them. A man fighting with the insensiate fury of a Dempsey or a Firpo would not have felt that punch, but Sharkey staggered back to consider matters and Philip exclaimed to himself, "Wot ho! The blighter ain't as wild as I thought 'ee was," and smacked Mr. Sharkey again.

At that, Sharkey's synthetic wrath, which had been self-induced and artificially maintained in the first few rushes, gave way to a quarreling anger. He not only ripped in several low punches but, when Philip went down, jumped all over the ring, waving his arms, screaming profane remarks regardless of the near presence of the lady customers, and ran over, poking his face close to Philip's startled countenance, calling him several opprobrious names.

This kind of fury might impress a layman, and I think laymen are inclined to place too great a fighting value on it. But it all comes under the head of mere intimidation. A professional, such as Max Schmeling, fighting for an asset of an estimated worth of between one million and two million dollars, cannot be expected to succumb to bad language, and angry glare, or anything else short of a deadening punch on some sensitive spot, within bounds or out.

Dempsey Unimpressed By Hateful Look.

The night Sharkey fought Jack Dempsey he sat in his corner before the bell, putting the eye on Mr. Dempsey, as the saying goes. He contracted his lower lip, showing his teeth, drew down his brows, squinted his eyes and glared with great concentration, even shoving aside his fat

Sharkey and German Prepare to Rest Before Weighing.

Referee Still in Doubt; Odds Remain 8 to 5 on American.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, June 9 (A.P.).—The ardor of the faithful, undimmed by the consistent mediocrity of recent heavyweight exhibitions, stood the final test of a cheerless and steady rain today to rally round the box offices of Madison Square Garden.

The coffers of the milk fund were swelled by some $40,000 during the day as growing interest lined up the vanguard of the last-minute customers in a steady parade to purchase tickets for Jack Sharkey's fifteen-round title joust with Max Schmeling in the Yankee Stadium Thursday night. With $90,000 in cash taken in Friday and Saturday, the promoters jubilantly announced that the big show is certain to draw a gross gate of over $700,000. The prices are $2, $5, $13 and $25, plus tax.

The fighters themselves, putting in their final training licks, will shut up shop tomorrow, rest Wednesday and slip into town Thursday morning in time for the weighing in at 2 p. m.

Sharkey to Motor To New York.

Sharkey, after drying out Wednesday, will motor to the city from Orangeburg, N. Y., and Schmeling will come down from Endicott by train, arriving Wednesday evening. He will spend the night somewhere on the outskirts of the city. The German heavyweight today abandoned his plan of flying to New York with friends in a Junkers plane Thursday morning because of threatening weather.

While a small army of carpenters and architects worked in the rain at the stadium to fit the ball park for the crowd of 70,000, the Garden wrestled with the final details of the radio broadcast and Schmeling's handlers prepared for a last-ditch fight at the meeting of the New York State Athletic Commission tomorrow to restore Joe Jacobs to temporary grace.

The solemn fathers have refused so far to determine the standing of the Teuton's manager of choice, who has been suspended here for some time. Indications were that the commission would grant Jacobs a temporary license in time for him to enter Schmeling's ring.

McNamee to Broadcast Over the Radio.

Although the Garden has decided upon the National Broadcasting Co. as the air medium for transmitting the action to the stay-at-homes, details have been withheld. One of the largest national hook-ups in fight history is expected, however. Graham McNamee will broadcast.

So far there have been no arguments over the choice of a referee, both camps abiding without protest to the commission's ruling that an unknown will be tapped for duty just before the battle begins. Lou Magnolia, who handled the bewildering struggle of Sharkey and Phil Scott in Miami last February, as well as most of the previous important heavyweight matches here, appears definitely ruled out of consideration. The railbirds have nominated Ed Forbes, who refereed Gene Tunney's slaughter of Tom Heeney, Jim Crowley and Kid McPartland, as the likeliest candidate.

Sharkey Odds of 8-5 Hold Firm.

The betting odds held firm at 8 to 5 in Sharkey's favor, with the odds 1 to 3 against his scoring a knockout and 1 to 7 against Schmeling finishing his man before the fifteen rounds are over. With most of the opinions definitely set among the critics, the ballyhoo turned into old but always refreshing channels with the discovery that the Teuton challenger has been training mornings in secret in the old barn on the estate where he has been living at Endicott.

The critics who already have picked Sharkey insist, however, that Max was caught with a putter in his hands instead of boxing gloves.

ARMY SPORT SYSTEM IS BACKED

Sec. Hurley Firmly Supports Program After Report.

(Associated Press.)

ON the basis of preliminary reports by Maj. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, inspector general of the Army, Secretary Hurley today announced that he firmly supported the conduct of sports at West Point.

The War Secretary cited charges by Representative Fish, of New York, that subsidies had been granted athletes, that stars were permitted to leave the service when their playing was finished and that scouting had taken place for new players. He declared these charges to be "untrue."

Simultaneously Mr. Hurley reasserted the Army's policy not to adhere to the three-year eligibility rule and said it did not violate the rules for amateur athletics laid down by the Carnegie Institute.

A full report, whether favorable or unfavorable to the academy, will be made public when a complete analysis has been made of Gen. Drum's report.

"When the report has been finished and if it is found there is anything reprehensible at the academy, it will be corrected, but up to this time nothing has been found," the Secretary said.

Borotra Beats Cochet In Belgian Net Final

Brussels, June 9 (A.P.).—Henri Cochet, recognized generally as the world's best tennis player, was upset in the final of the Belgian championships today by his French countryman, Jean Borotra. The scores were 4—6, 6—3, 6—4, 4—6, 8—6. Borotra was exhausted and nearly collapsed at the end of the match.

Cochet played in great form in the recent French championships, where he mowed down Bill Tilden in straight sets in the final. Tilden previously had beaten Borotra.

Borotra's victory accentuates the difficulty of America winning back the Davis Cup this year. It had been felt that the Bounding Basque, now 32 years of age, might prove a less dangerous opponent for the Americans than in past seasons.

ROSENBERG BOUT POSTPONED.

New York, June 9 (A.P.).—Rain forced postponement tonight of Dexter Park's boxing show, in which Maxie Rosenbloom, Harlem light-heavyweight, was to have met Georgie Smith, of Newark, in the feature bout.

MAX PLANS FIRST-BELL ATTACK

Believes He Can Beat American by Constant Punching.

By MAX SCHMELING
(As told to Jimmy Powers).

ENDICOTT, N. Y., June 9.—The big fight is only three days away and I am ready. I am going in there and starting at the first bell I will crowd my man, crouching, weaving, boring in and slamming punches.

I am going to keep that up round after round and I am so trained to last at top speed for fifteen rounds if necessary. I think by keeping on top of Sharkey I can beat him. I am going to throw as many punches in each of those three-minute sessions as it is possible for my fists and arms to unleash.

Ace Hudkins was an 8 to 5 shot to lose to Rene Devos, a superior boxer. Ace asked Joe Jacobs to come in his corner the night of that surprising upset and Joe told me all about it. Ace had none of the skill of the Fox. He was figured to be speared on Rene's wicked left, but what happened? Ace tucked his chin on his chest, walked in and punched Rene full of holes. He crowded him and won. I intend to do the same thing to Sharkey.

Dempsey Crowded Tunney.

Remember the night Dempsey knocked Tunney down in Chicago? How did he get in close? He crowded him. He charged him into the ropes and plastered him. If Jack were younger or had the spring that is in my legs he would never have had to stand in the middle of the ring and beckon mockingly at Tunney to come on and fight.

That Dempsey knock down (and I really believe knockout) of Tunney will be my inspiration. If I and Sharkey elusive in the early rounds I will not be discouraged. If he outboxes me I will not change my tactics. I will remember that it took Dempsey six rounds to catch up to Tunney and spill him and I am willing to wait and take whatever punishment comes my way until I can pin Sharkey and bang him with my right.

Remember the night Paul Berlenbach beat Young Stribling? Strib was and still is as good and clever a boxer as Sharkey or even Tunney. He was figured to crucify Berlenbach, but Paul—and I admire him as a courageous champion—took a few jabs and hooks, bent over and slammed and banged his man to a licking. Berlenbach crowded Stribling and drew; Johnny Risko crowded Sharkey and won. Tom Heeney crowded Sharkey and won. Yes, I think a crowding slugger can beat a boxer any time if he keeps it up long enough.

No Gates in the Ring Thursday Night.

There are fifteen rounds to go Thursday night and sometime in that fifteen rounds and somewhere in that 22-foot ring I can catch up to Sharkey. There are no gates in the ropes for either of us. I hope my style of slugging wins the favor of the fans. I have adopted it because I think it is the most effective.

I have several good ring precedents that confirm my plan of offense and back of it all will be that inspiration of the Dempsey who crowded his man and nailed him. One thing I know. My legs will not go back on me. I still have youth and it will not be necessary for me to stand in the middle of the ring and beckon to my opponent to come closer. I will go after him, so!

Yanks Rout Crowder To Beat Browns, 8-5

St. Louis, June 9 (A.P.).—Getting away to an early lead while Al Crowder was pitching, the New York Yankees today defeated the St. Louis Browns, 8 to 5.

The Yanks scored seven of their runs in the first three innings, but thereafter found Chad Kimsey, who relieved Crowder, a puzzle. Ruffing, formerly of the Red Sox, went along easily until the eighth, when the Browns threatened and he was taken out in favor of Johnson. The Browns loaded the bases in the last inning, but Johnson tightened, holding them scoreless. Lazeri, of the Yankees, and Kress, of the Browns, hit home runs.

A'S TRIUMPH TO LEAD BY 3 GAMES

Two Runs in 9th Win Duel, 3 to 2, From White Sox.

CHICAGO, June 9 (A.P.).—The Philadelphia Athletics increased their lead in the American League to three full games today as they defeated the White Sox, 3 to 2, while Cleveland was downing Washington.

Bob Weiland, the White Sox erratic southpaw, held the champions at his mercy for eight innings, setting them down with four scattered hits. He weakened in the ninth, however, allowing the Athletics to bunch two hits with a walk and a sacrifice fly, which scored the tieing and winning runs.

Walberg, who started for Philadelphia, was touched for eight hits during his sojourn on the mound, but was relieved by a pinch hitter in the eighth. Quinn finished the game.

Big 7th Inning Allows Red Sox to Win, 7-6

Milton Gaston pitched the entire game for Boston, allowing nine hits. Wyatt, Sullivan and Hogsett pitched for Detroit. Bill Berry hit a homer with none on in the fifth.

Catcher Neglects to Cover Plate in 8th on Infield Tap.

Marberry and Miller Stage Box Duel in Early Innings.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

CLEVELAND, June 9.—The Nationals put up another good battle with the Indians here this afternoon, but the result was just another defeat, this time by a 4-to-3 count. The Nationals' defeat, their eighth in the last ten starts, enabled the Mackmen, who beat the White Sox, to increase their league lead to three full games and also allowed the Tribe to pull up to within half a game in the second-place fight.

Poor judgment by Catcher Roy Spencer let the Indians score their winning run in the eighth. With Peckmen on third and first, instead of remaining at his post on Seeds' tap to Braxton and possibly making an out at the plate, he went after the ball himself, letting Hodapp tally with the Tribe's winning margin.

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

Special to The Washington Post.

LEAGUE PARK, Cleveland, June 9.—In his last four games, Sam Rice cracked out a hit in the first inning to carry along his consecutive-game-hitting streak, which reached sixteen contests yesterday. Today, after Loepp had opened with a single, he hit into a double play. Such is life. Sam kept his streak intact, however, when he scratched a single off Miller's glove in the sixth.

A high wind played queer tricks with fly balls today, causing Judge to miss Morgan's pop foul opening the game for the Indians. The nationals' captain called for the catch and then backed fully 10 yards only to see the ball sail just out of his reach. On the next pitch Morgan lofted toward center, Myer and Loepp both called for the catch, but the Nationals' center fielder finally snared it.

Lind made a fine stop of Judge's grasser almost over second starting round two, but fast sprinting enabled the Washington first sacker to beat the peg to first by a close margin.

The Nationals' system of using the hit-and-run instead of the sacrifice did not work out right in the first two frames, starting each of which the Nationals had a man on first. In the opening frame Rice hit into a double play after Loepp singled and, in the second, Cronin almost did so, following Judge's one baser, after which Myer's hot grasser was turned into a second double killing.

Buddie Myer tore over on the opposite side of second for Porter's pop in the third canto.

Marberry issued his first pass of the game to Averill with one out in the fourth. Then Seeds shot a hot one to Bluege, who came up with it to start a snappy double play, Myer and Judge completing it.

The removal of the screen on top of the wall in center enabled Joe Cronin to get his homer in the fifth round; otherwise, the ball would have struck the wire and bounded back for a probable double.

Cronin made a dandy stop of Luke Sewell's hard bounder opening Cleveland's fifth.

"Sad Sam" Jones, who had been scheduled to pitch tomorrow's game, reported ill this afternoon and is not expected to see action again until the end of the week.

Marberry, Miller In Duel.

The game was a mound duel between Fred Marberry and Southpaw Walter Miller. Both were stingy with their hits, but were unfortunate in that some of those they did allow were long ones. Ed Morgan lashed out a homer and triple which figured in three of the alien runs, while Joe Cronin's four-base clout and George Loepp's three-bagger helped the Nationals score two of their tallies. These were the only extra-base hits of the game.

Twice the Nationals went into the lead, but they simply could not stand prosperity. Marberry had allowed but seven hits when he was retired in favor of Braxton in the eighth, but two of these hits followed a pass and enabled the Tribe to knot the count.

Marberry also figured in the attack by singling home two runs in the fifth, putting his team in front for the time being. His inability to stop Morgan was responsible for his downfall, however. Miller held the Nats to but six hits, Loepp getting two of these.

Two players were injured during the game, Judge suffering a "charley horse" in running out a hit in the second. The length of his layoff is uncertain but his return to the line-up tomorrow is only a possibility. Luke Sewell was the victim when a foul from Hayes' bat split his finger in the sixth.

Only Two Left in First Five Innings.

The Indians were the first to score, but the Nats kept on fighting, the result being that they were leading by a run when the first half of the contest ended. The affair started as a mound duel between Marberry and Miller and so generally effective was each that only two men, one of each team, had been left on the sacks in the first five frames.

Marberry had granted but one bingle when the Tribe broke into the run column in the third. Then Lind singled, Miller hit into a force-play and Morgan poled a homer over the right field wall.

The Nats had gotten their lead-off man on the sacks in each of the first three frames, but two double plays had prevented any good coming from these incidents, while they had gone down in order in the fourth. Then they suddenly came to life and took the lead. Cronin, first up, lashed a homer over the wall in center for one run. Myer beat out a swinging bunt, Bluege walked, and Spencer sacrificed them to third and second, respectively, putting it up to Marberry.

Big Pitcher's Hit Clears Bases.

The big pitcher, who has done all of the stick work for the Washington pitchers since the team left home, decided that this was an opportunity which he could not afford to pass up. All he did was to line a single to left which cleared the bases and gave him a lead under which to work.

Hardly had the Nationals gotten through patting themselves on the back, however, than the Indians knotted the count. Morgan opened the

Derby Winner Again Meets Whichone

Colt to Be Held Out of American Derby Saturday.

May Be Greatest All-Time Money Winner Before 1931.

By ORLO ROBERTSON.

NEW YORK, June 9 (A.P.).—Champion of them all, Gallant Fox today rested in his box at Aqueduct with the prospect of becoming the greatest money winner of the American turf before closing his 3-year-old career.

Although William Woodward, the Fox's owner, and Trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons have decided to pass up the rich American Derby at Washington Park next Saturday, the champion 3-year-old will have plenty of opportunities to surpass the earnings of the great Zev before closing out his racing career.

During his meteoric turf career Zev earned $313,639 to top the list of American money-winning thoroughbreds. The son of Sir Gallahad III, undefeated as a 3-year-old and out of the money only once in eleven starts, is now seventh with $203,730, a short distance below Man o' War, with which many are ranking Gallant Fox.

Blue Larkspur and Display Running.

Of the six horses that have won more than the Woodward star, only Display and Blue Larkspur are still racing, and the former is in temporary retirement. Blue Larkspur, the ruling 3-year-old of 1929, pulled up $220,420 before going wrong last August, and is due to make his 4-year-old debut in the Brooklyn Handicap at Aqueduct next Saturday.

Gallant Fox's next important engagement will be the $80,000 classic at Arlington Park, Chicago, on July 12. The classic will be the greatest of the Midwestern 3-year-old events, as it promises to bring another meeting between the Preakness-Kentucky Derby-Belmont winner and his main rival, Harry Payne Whitney's Whichone.

Woodward also may decide to start the Fox n the Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct on June 28—the same day the derby is scheduled for Latonia, in Kentucky. Rifht, in turf lore, the vice president of the Jockey Club, is expected to choose the Aqueduct event with its $20,000 purse over the Kentucky Stakes, which has a value of nearly $30,000. Blue Larkspur received one of his defeats in the Dwyer last year, an unknown by the name of Grey Coat leading him to the wire. Whichone is also eligible for the Aqueduct Stake.

—Washington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE Trial, a race for 3-year-old candidates for the forthcoming American Derby at Washington Park, $1,800 added, has attracted a small field today at the Chicago track, but among the number are NED O, which ran third in the Kentucky Derby, and TANNERY, which was second choice but unplaced, PRINCE ATHELLING, a fast colt, and two from the Camden Stable which seem to have a chance.

NED O is selected to win this mile and 70 yards test. He was beaten out in his last race in Chicago by J. N. Camden's filly, Ellice. NED O is regarded one of the strongest candidates for the American Derby, in spite of this, especially since it was announced officially at Belmont Park yesterday that neither Gallant Fox nor Whichone would go West for this race, but that Gallant Fox's next start would be in the Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct, the meeting at that New York track to begin tomorrow, following the closing of Belmont Park today.

NED O should win this test if he is to be further highly regarded for the big stakes for which he is eligible. PRINCE ATHELLING looks like the contender. He is all horse, but the heavy track seems to favor NED O. TANNERY should get third money over the Camden entry.

FIRST RACE—NETTIE PEBBLES should win the first race at 6 furlongs. BETTY ANN will be the contender against anything that gets in front. NIFTY has been improving and should find a place in the money among this field of fillies. Track conditions are especially favorable to NETTIE PEBBLES.

SECOND RACE—MISS JOAN is selected to take this race for 2-year-olds. NADIA will be one of the choices, and is rated second. BROWN EYED MARY is a money probability. She had plenty of speed earlier in the season.

THIRD RACE—VERMILICUTE seems to stand out in this test, which is for maidens, 3-year-olds and up. This is the largest field on the card. VERMILICUTE has been in the money several times as a 3-year-old and this seems like the best spot to graduate from the maiden class. ROYAL CANOPY also has been running well. PICADOME may get in the money.

FOURTH RACE—The Hyde Park is for 2-year-olds, and has attracted the best juveniles at this track. PORTCODINE is picked to win. The Rancocas Stable has an entry, and CHARMER, the better of the two in the entry, should be the contender. BY MISTAKE or HYMAN should get the show money.

SIXTH RACE—The Stephens Hotel Handicap appears to be a soft spot for BOBASHELA, of the Audley Farm Stable, as he outclasses his field, and the track is made to order for him. M'GONIGLE, which is coupled with MARTIE FLYNN as the Peabody entry, should be the contender. CANAAN should hold third safe.

SEVENTH RACE—UPSEDAISY is overdue, is picked to win the closing race for the Greentree Stable. TOMMY TICKLE may be the favorite. CARAMEL has a chance with these.

OVERBOARD was under light pressure from the start and, hustled to the front on the inside, gamely repulsed LONG RUN repeatedly, shook latter off finally and easily outstayed VALDOSTA. VALDOSTA, hard ridden throughout, stayed in close-up pursuit of the pace on the outside, challenged winner in stretch, but failed to get up and just outlasted CORAL BEACH. CORAL BEACH worked his way up gradually after being outpaced in early stages and closed going steadily.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—IN BETWEEN, $11.18, $6.18, $5.64; BUBOLA, $66.30, $33.36; JOSEPHINE D, $5.86.

IN BETWEEN began fast, headed JOSEPHINE D. in first eighth, began to draw away strongly reaching the stretch turn and, increasing her advantage as the race waned, ultimate winner. Won eased up. BUBOLA, who slowly was badly outrun for the first three furlongs, came through on inside at top of stretch to close an immense gap in the run home. JOSEPHINE D. began with a rush, raced with IN BETWEEN and forced the pace for a time, but was tiring in the final drive. CHICAGO GIRL also began fast, but dropped from contention immediately, but was gaining steadily and wore down tiring horses, finishing gamely.

THIRD RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:23. Off at 3:26. Winner, P. M. Grabner's b. g. PARAPHRASE was rated along steadily under light restraint, set all his own pace throughout, easily resisted YAM TOY entering the stretch, drew out strongly and won with much speed in reserve. DEVON, reserved for the first six furlongs, came with a rush entering the stretch, but was caused interference by ROLLING SEA. HY SCHNEIDER going on inside and made a strong finish. YAM TOY had a clear course and made a strong bid entering stretch, could not get to the winner, and faltered in final drive under strong pressure.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TAN FACE, $6.80, $4.74, $3.16; GREY KITTY, $12.16, $5.82; ZEBRA, $3.42.

TAN FACE began fast, forced a good pace to the stretch turn, then headed and disposed of FOOLHARDY in the next sixteenth for safe lead, but tired near the end and was hard urged to hold GREY KITTY safe. Latter was never far off the pace while keen prominent on the outside, closed ground steadily in the stretch and nearly got up at the end. WACKER DRIVE	111	2	1	3h	4	4	4	4	Meyer	29.90

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PIGEONHOLE, $4.58, $2.64, out; GALLAHAD, $2.70, out; MARTINIQUE, out.

PIGEONHOLE, sharp as steel and going in best form, always kept decisive command and, moving away into a long lead through final quarter, won hard held with Finnerty pulling up. GALLAHAD began slowly, soon raced into immediate pursuit of leader, could never threaten PIGEONHOLE, and easily vanquished other opposition.

SIXTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,600; allowances. The Windsor Park. For 3-years-old and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:51. Off at 4:53½. Winner, Morven Stud's br. g. (6), by Whiskbroom—Prudery. Trained by A. Baker. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:23 4-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:13 1-5, 1:26 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—WHISKERY, $9.30, $2.82, $3.16; ELLICE, $2.32, $2.36; IRONSIDES, $6.90.

WHISKERY was kept prominent from the start while working his way up on outside in the stretch, headed ELLICE and then engaging latter in long, hard drive, finally shook latter off and drew clear strongly at the end. ELLICE had the best early speed, retained a safe lead to final turn, but could not match the winner's challenge and tired. IRONSIDES gained steadily, gradually disposed of PLAY BALL and held on well. PLAY BALL showed early speed, but was tiring badly after first half mile.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:24. Off at 5:29. Winner, J. Heelan's b. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—AVIATOR, $15.14, $8.76, $6.00; GOLD RIDGE, $11.36, $5.28; COTTAGE BOY, $7.88.

AVIATOR, in his best form, was rated along not too far off the pace and, when released from restraint entering the stretch, responded well to race into lead on outside to win as rider pleased. GOLD RIDGE opened up a winning lead and kept strongly for the first six furlongs, but weakened when the leader challenged. COTTAGE BOY gained steadily under slight restraint, reached contention and loomed up strongly when straightened out in stretch, but faltered in the final drive.

She had a card of 40—43—83, five strokes lower than her nearest competitors, Mrs. Alma von Steinet, Beaver Dam, and Mrs. Betty Meckley, unattached, as follows:

Hunter Wins Pro Tourney.

J. Monro Hunter, professional of the Indian Spring Club, yesterday won the eighteen-hole, medal play tournament staged by the Middle Atlantic Professional Golfers Association on the course of the Bannockburn Club, with a card of 35—36—71. There was a tie for second money between A. L. Houghton, Harper Country Club, 34—38—72, and Ralph Beach, Suburban, Baltimore, 40—32—72.

Beach's playing of the second nine was the most remarkable scoring of the day, for after making the outward journey with an indifferent 40 due to four three-putt greens, he started home with four birdies on the first five holes. Even with three putts on the seventeenth green, missing one putt that was not over 8 inches, he negotiated the second nine in 32 strokes, three under par. His card was 4—3—4—2—3—3—5—4—4—32.

Al Treder, Manor; Robert T. Barnett, Chevy Chase, and Mel Shorey, East Potomac Park, each finished with 73. Twenty professionals competed, the scores being as follows:

J. Monro Hunter (Indian Spring), 35—36—71; A. L. Houghton (Manor), 34—38—72; Ralph Beach (Suburban), 40—32—72; Robert T. Barnett (Chevy Chase), 73; Al Treder (Manor), 73; Mel Shorey (East Potomac Park), 73; R. Cliff McKimmie (Army, Navy and Marine Corps), 74; Alex Jamison (Bannockburn), 74; Arthur B. Thorn (Woodmont), 74; Glenn Spencer (Maryland Country Club), 74; Frank Cunningham (Burning Tree), 76; Walter Mather (Woodholm), 79; Cliff Spencer (Maryland Country Club), 79; William Hardy (Chevy Chase), 82; Tony Sylvester (Bannockburn), 83; Gene Larkin (Chevy Chase), 83.

No card—Frank Hartig (Army, Navy and Marine Corps), Julius W. Platte (Forest Greens).

Pass Wins Veterans Bureau Title.

Leo F. Pass, of the Bannockburn Club, yesterday won the championship of the Veterans' Bureau in a 36-hole final round played on the course of the Columbia Club, defeating U. C. Deike, 8 and 7 play. The feature of the match was the phenomenal putting of Pass, the ball dropping into the cup from all angles of the green.

Mt. St. Mary's Nine Defeats Marines, 2-0

Special to The Washington Post.

Emmittsburg, Md., June 9.—The annual commencement baseball game between Mount St. Mary's College and the Quantico Marines was played in the rain here today before a large number of alumni. Because of the soggy condition of the field, the contest was called in the sixth inning, with the Mountaineers leading by a 2 to 0 score.

Although the Marines outhit their opponents, the Collegians managed to put a run over in the first inning and another in the fourth. Grady, second baseman, connected with one of Resio's benders for a circuit drive.

SUNDAY LAST DAY TO ADD PUNCH

Limit for Trades Is Near With Johnson Needing Power.

CLEVELAND, June 9.—President Clark Griffith and Manager Walter Johnson have less than a week to obtain the help which they need to keep the Nationals in the thick of the pennant race, for, after midnight Sunday, no deals either by trades or waivers may be made.

It is an open secret that the Nats would be willing to part with at least one of their regulars, whose name is withheld for obvious reasons, with another a possibility, in case they could get what they considered an advantageous offer. In Detroit, some deals were discussed, but Harris seemed to want to give the Nats a biscuit for a barrel of flour, while there is little chance of any business being done here, as Manager Roger Peckinpaugh announces that he is satisfied with his present team and will stand pat.

Schulte, of Browns, Is Mentioned.

There is some talk among the Washington players, but confirmation is lacking, that Manager Johnson has his eye on Outfielder Fred Schulte, of the Browns, and is planning to make Manager Bill Killefer a proposition when the Nats arrive in the Mound City next Saturday morning. This may or may not be true, but there is no doubt but what, if Johnson did not have to give too much to get Schulte, he would be "just what the doctor ordered," from a Washington standpoint, as the St. Louis flychaser is clever both afield and at bat.

As to obtaining any help by claiming players on waivers, the chances are slim of the Nationals getting anything worth while. Still, one never can tell, as some of the clubs are well over the player limit of 25 and will have to cut down by next Sunday night, and if they happen to have filled their option quota, they will have to waive out their excess talent.

Regular Berth Sought For McLeod.

Not only is President Griffith hopeful of getting a right-handed hitting outfielder via this route, if all other efforts fail, but he also is keeping his eyes open in search of a worth while infielder to replace Jimmy McLeod, as utility man. This is no reflection on McLeod, in fact, it is complimentary, for it is because "Mac," who is only 19 years of age, has shown such promise that the Nationals want to put him out on option where he will be used regularly and be given a chance to show his real worth. Bench duty has the opposite effect on youngsters and too often causes them to slip back.

The current set with the Indians ends here tomorrow afternoon. A Washington victory is needed to prevent the Indians from sweeping the series and taking second place, something which the Peckmen are particularly anxious to do.

Manager Johnson has announced that Irving Hadley probably will draw the Washington pitching assignment, while Willis Hudlin, who has been on the shelf because of a slight indisposition, is likely to do the Cleveland slabbing.

Granting that the Mackmen, Yankees, Nationals and Indians are the class of the league, the Cleveland Club surely has a hard row to hoe in the near future and is facing a test which should either make or break the team as a flag contender. Including the series with the Johnsons, which ends tomorrow, the Tribe's schedule calls for 24 games in a row with the other three teams.

The leading Mackmen come here for three games and the Yankees for four as soon as the Nationals leave and the Indians then start their second Eastern invasion, opening their jaunt in Philadelphia with four games, then going to Washington for two single contests and a double-header, and following with six games in New York, including two twin bills.

If Peckinpaugh's men wade through this assignment at better than a 50-50 gait, then they certainly will have proven that the Western sector has a representative which will bear much watching.

NATS ARE BEATEN BY INDIANS, 5 TO 4

sixth with a triple to deepest center and J. Sewell immediately singled him home. After Porter had sacrificed the runner to second and Hodapp had fouled to Spencer, Cronin made a fine one-handed stop of Averill's hot grounder, but Hayes dropped the almost perfect peg. This let J. Sewell reach third and put Marberry in a hole, but he took matters into his own hands and retired the side by fanning Seeds.

Cronin Atones For Loose Play.

Cronin put Marberry in another hole in the seventh and gave the Indians an excellent chance to break the deadlock. First the Nat shortstop muffed Myatt's easy pop fly and then he dropped Marberry's perfect throw on Lind's attempted sacrifice. Instead of two out, this put men on second and first with none down. Miller's "would-be" sacrifice was a pop to Marberry, however, and then Morgan, who had done most the previous hitting damage, rolled into a double play, Cronin to Myer to Hayes.

Loepp opened the eighth with a triple to deep center, held third on Rice's roller to Morgan, and then came home to put the Nationals in front again on Goslin's one-bagger, which almost knocked down the Indian first sacker. Again the Johnsons could not stand prosperity.

With one down in the lower half of the frame, Marberry walked Porter and then followed singles by Hodapp and Averill, both clean ones, and the count was tied, with still only one down and Peckmen on third and first. Braxton relieved Marberry at this stage and might have prevented another run scoring had Spencer covered the plate on Seeds' topped one, as Braxton could have caught Hodapp at the plate. The Nat catcher, however, left his station to kill the batter at first, and the run which decided the game trickled over the counting block.

BLUES TAKE FIRST POLO CONTEST

Maj. Devers Stars in 9 to 7 Victory Over Third Cavalry.

DESPITE a four-goal handicap, rated by the Third Cavalry Polo Team, of Fort Myer, the War epartment Blue outfit yesterday eliminated the Cavalrymen from further competition in the Argentine Cup tournament on the Potomac Park oval, where it took a hard-fought 9-to-7 game.

At the start of the final period the teams were deadlocked at 7-all, the Blues having this total by virtue of its handicap present of four, and the drizzle of rain that had continued throughout the game had turned into a steady downpour, making the going precarious in the final and important chukker.

It remained for Maj. Devers, of the Blues, to break the tie shortly after the start of the final period, and just before its close he scored a second time, to put the game safely away. His total for the day was three.

Capt. Hasty, who also scored three goals and played a brilliant game for the victors, opened the scoring in the early minutes of the first stanza when he drove the willow through the Cavalry uprights from 60 yards out. Late in the same period he scored a second time, from a scramble, to cut the Cavalry handicap down to 3. The latter squad did not score in this chukker.

Capt. Gibney Makes Solo Goal.

Gen. Booth, the referee, had just bowled the sphere in between the squads to start the second period when Capt. Gibney, of the Calvary outfit, made a solo run from midfield through the Blue uprights for the first earned goal of the Cavalrymen. But this lone tally merely acted as a spur to the Blues who proceeded to score three markers before the period ending whistle sounded.

Today the War Whites will meet the Third Cavalry Yellows in another Argentine Cup game. This promises to be one of the outstanding games of the tourney as both carry close to eleven goals in handicaps and should there be an advantage given to either the burden will be carried by the Whites, but not in excess of one goal.

79 MARYLAND ATHLETES HONORED

Four D. C. Men Are Among Three-Letter Winners.

SEVENTY-NINE varsity athletes got letters in seven sports at the University of Maryland during the 1929-30 term—football, basket ball, lacrosse, baseball, track, cross country and tennis.

There were five three-letter men among them—Julie Radice, Albert Heagy, George Madigan and Bill Evans, seniors, and George Chalmers, sophomore. Radice, Madigan and Heagy will be lost, but Evans will return for postgraduate work, but is eligible only for football in which he has played only two years.

Thirty-two of the insignia winners were lost by graduation.

The complete list of letter winners were:

FOOTBALL—*Albert Heagy, Albert Pease, *John McDonald, *Bill Heintz, *Herman Lombard, *Fred Ribnitski, *George Madigan, Jess Krajcovic and Ernie Carlis, linemen, and *Julie Radice, Bill Evans, *Charlie Dodson, George Chalmers, Charlie Miller, Charlie May and *Augie Roberts, backs.

BASKET BALL—*Albert Heagy, *Bill Evans, *Julie Radice, Louis Berger, Ed Ronkin, Bob Gaylor, Charlie May, George Chalmers, Jack Norris and Pat Rooney.

LACROSSE—*Jim Kelly, *Charlie Dodson, Joe Deckman, *Albert Heagy, *Harry Wilson, Jack Norris, *Ossie Beck, Jim Lee, Ed. Ronkin, Fred Stieber, *Bill Evans, *Bob Healy, Parker Faber, Jim Loughran, Morris Nicholson, Vincent Colosimo and *George Madigan.

BASEBALL—Paul Cronin, Louis Berger, *Julie Radice, George Chalmers, *Wilfred Higgins, *Roy Tansill, *Fred Hetzel, Bob Gaylor, Ralph Sterling, Jack Batson, Arthur Hauver, Harry Milburn and *George Phipps.

TRACK—*Bob Quinn, *Urban Linzey, *Bill Kinnamon, *Dick White, Bob Havell, *John McDonald, Phil Cooper, Ralph Shure, Charlie Fouts, Jess Krajcovic and Henry McDonald.

CROSS COUNTRY—*Urban Linzey, Jack Savage, Ralph Shure, Howard Mays, Phil Cooper and Don Hammerlund.

TENNIS—*Irving Rosenbaum, Irving Freeman, Bill Roberts, *Bill Lucas, *John Robertson and Simon Duckman.

*Lost by graduation.

Numerals for freshman sports went to 63, 15 in football, 6 in basket ball, 15 in lacrosse, 12 in baseball, 10 in track, 4 in cross country and 6 in tennis and quite a few fine prospects will go up to the various varsity combinations.

Qualifying Starts Today In Columbia Tournament

THE gentle rain which descended from heaven late yesterday afternoon proved a godsend to the course of the Columbia Country Club, where the annual spring invitation tournament will begin this morning, softening the otherwise baked fairways and giving the greens a cushion-like surface which held a pitched ball.

With fair weather today, as predicted, the competitors in the first day's qualification round, numbering nearly 200, will find the course in wonderful shape.

There were a number of additional entries yesterday bringing the list up to nearly 350, the most notable player in the personnel being William R. Howell, better known as Billy Howell, the 18-year-old youngster who last week won the Middle Atlantic amateur championship and who won the title of amateur State champion in his native Virginia two years ago, when only 16 years of ago. Even though his drives were not always in the fairway yesterday in his round with Roger Peacock and Elliott Spicer, he had a fine 73, missing a short putt on the final green which would have given him 72.

Berger Shoots in Low 70s.

Quite a number of players yesterday scored in the low 70s in their practice rounds, including F. Joseph Beger, of the Shackamaxon Club and Georgetown University, who two years ago was the runner-up in the Indian Spring invitation tournament, when he was defeated by Page Hufty in the final round.

In the Columbia tournament last year nine players with cards of 77 were in the play-off for five places in the first fifteen and four players at 85 were drawn out for positions in the fifth and last sixteen. It is possible, however, that the course will not be as fast today as it was last June. There are, however, at least 80 players in the large field who will score 85 or less.

RAIN BRINGS SMILES TO HUNT

Delay in Net Tourney Gives Injured Leg Chance to Heal.

RAIN prevented play yesterday in the boys and juniors District championship tennis tournament at Rock Creek courts. It dampened the spirits of the eager contestants, all but one—and he, Gilbert Hunt, 13-year-old Eastern High School student, had a smile for every drop from the wet clouds.

Young Hunt has visions of lifting the crown of boys champion from the head of Jock McLean, who defeated him in the finals last year. But Hunt at present is handicapped with a sore leg, the result of a spill during the course of a basket ball game last Saturday.

Confident He Can Win.

Yesterday's lay-off gave Hunt a chance to rest his leg, and if it rains again today this youngster would be still happier. He feels that he can go straight through to the title if he is in perfect condition.

Today's schedule calls for action in both the boys and juniors sections, starting at 4 o'clock. Hunt is paired against Spencer Howell, while McLean is due to meet Albert Robins, Ned McLean, jr., younger brother of Jock McLean, is slated to engage William Boyle.

Frank Shore, defending junior champion, will engage Archie Rose at 5 o'clock. Barney Welsh, runner-up to Shore last year, will play Worthington Williams at 4.

PEGLER SEES SHARKEY AS OLD SELF

Unchanged Since His Battles With Scott and Stribling.

manager, Mr. Buckley, when that patient attendant clumsily interposed his round physique in his line of vision.

Now, Mr. Dempsey had been an actor in the moving pictures and had received professional instruction in all the primary emotional expressions of the art, such as love, hunger, hate and so forth. The book had said: "To manifest love, roll the eyes and heave the chest in two counts, hep, one-two, preferably wearing flannel shirt with two top buttons open, revealing chest action.

"To manifest hunger, draw in cheeks and rub center. To portray hate, contract lower lip, revealing teeth, draw down brows, squint eyes and glare with great concentration."

So when Mr. Dempsey looked up and caught Sharkey's eye he was slightly puzzled for a moment, but not intimidated. "Well, will you look at that guy," says he to the late Leo P. Flynn, who stood beside him. "He's been going to dramatic school. That's the old No. 3 hate."

Can Almost Imagine Improvements.

I have been hearing and reading that Sharkey has learned two new knacks, one with each hand. With the left he delivers a sharp punishing hook, as quick as a fang. The right cross has been shortened, gaining accuracy and power.

When I look closely, I can almost see these improvements but I mistrust my own opinion because I am trying hard to be as expert as the next one and straining to see significant things. If one looks fixedly at a star at night one may presently see it move. Although it doesn't move, and when I search Mr. Sharkey's for new meanings, I see them doing these new things contrary to my judgment.

This prizefighter has been fighting for eight or ten years. He rounded out his style and repertoire a long time ago and he looks precisely the same in his training today as he looked in Miami Beach only four months ago.

Overconfident Then And Now.

He was overconfident there and he is overconfident now. Overconfidence is a trait with him. He doesn't unlearn it. The punches that seemed so sharp and neat in Miami Beach became round-about swings when Painting Philip poked out his long, strong arms in the ring down south, and the gloves went sliding up Philip's arms to his shoulders and fell off, doing no harm.

Schemling is the boxer that Painting Philip is and, because he weighs at least 15 pounds less than Sharkey, he will have to hit him a few good hurtful smacks early in the fight or go out himself. The only men Sharkey knocks out are little men. He was great against Jack Delaney, Michael McTigue and Tommy Loughran, although one did hear sinister gossip to the effect that Delaney's subsidence was not entirely due to external inducement.

If Schmeling does hit first, Sharkey will take back and settle down to a sulky, mauling fight, because that is the kind of a fighter he is and men don't change character at his age. I hope I do not seem to abuse this man Sharkey; he puts himself up there for examination, receiving a fortune for it, and I only descrine him as I see him. If it is necessary to report that he weeps, rages and curses in the ring, that is his doing.

For the Sake of Good Old U. S. A.

Now Sharkey issues a proclamation. For this contest he will take the ring fired by the ardor of a patriot, prepared to do something very special to the Outlander, and keep the heavyweight championship in the U. S. A. That paper seems unimportant to me because he faced exactly the same situation in Florida only four months ago and would have lost the fight disgracefully under any fair interpretation of the rules.

But somebody certainly is mentally out of step; a lot of people see Sharkey vastly improved, a better fighter, boxer and man today than he was last winter. I see the same Sharkey doing the same thing over, and I wonder just who is looney at the present writing.

MIXED DOUBLES BOOKED.

Josephine Dunham, holder of the women's singles title, and Pat Deck are scheduled to meet Phoebe Moorhead, coholder of the Women's doubles crown, and Joe Rutley, in the final of the mixed doubles of the City of Washington tennis tournament today on the Rock Creek courts, starting at 4 o'clock.

Nurmi Breaks 6-Mile Mark for 12th Record

London, June 9 (A.P.).—Paavo Nurmi, the famous Flying Finn who holds more track records than any other man, smashed the world's mark for the 6-mile run in a race at Stamford Bridge today. The great Finn covered the distance in 29 minutes 36 3-5 seconds, as compared to the record of 29.39 2-5 set by Alfred Shrubb, of England, which has stood since 1904.

Running in a handicap event, Nurmi finished third behind opponents to whom he had conceded more than 3 minutes start.

Peerless Paavo's latest running feat makes his twelfth world's record.

Now in his middle thirties and lacking some of the shorter distance speed that enabled him to set the classic mark of 4.10 2-5 for the mile in 1923, he apparently has only shifted his activities to the lower jaunts.

Only a few days ago the International Amateur Athletic Federation inscribed the Nurmi name in the record book for the 10-mile run, replacing that of Alf Shrubb, and now another of Shrubb's five records above the 5-mile distance falls before the sphinx-like Finn, who runs "time-table," with his eyes on a wrist watch.

Over a period of seven years, Nurmi now has annexed the world's records for running 1, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 10 miles; also for 3,000, 5,000, 10,000 and 15,000 meters; and for distance covered in one-half hour and one hour of running.

$25 Given Judge Fund By New York Sheriff

A check for $25 as a contribution to the Joe Judge testimonial was received yesterday from Sheriff Farley of New York by Jim McNamara, chairman of the committee in charge of the testimonial. McNamara expressed gratification with the collection of funds to be presented the Washington first baseman at the ball-park on June 28.

Tickets for the game scheduled between Washington and Detroit on the day of the testimonial are now on sale. They may be procured from Jimmy Lake, Gayety Theater; Roscoe Reichard, Hecht Co.; Fred Pelzman, Fashion Shop; Fred Buchholz, Occidental Hotel; Judge Robert Mattingly, of Police Court, and McNamara, Jewish Community Center.

Preceding the presentation at the park, a parade of Judge's supporters and Washington fans in general will be held through downtown streets.

Rain Mars Opening Of Md. State Tennis

Baltimore, Md., June 9.—Opening play in the annual Maryland State tennis championship at the Baltimore Country Club today was marred by a steady rain which began falling early in the afternoon. In consequence only a few matches were completed.

Manuel G. Martinez, second foreign seeded player, one of two Mexicans from the embassy in Washington who are competing, was eliminated in a second-round match at the hands of Louis Levin, of Baltimore, 6—3, 4—6, 6—3. Both had drawn first-round byes. But Mexico still has representation in Fred Erico Sendel, of the Davis Cup Team. He defeated H. R. Fitch, of Annapolis, in the first round, 6—2, 6—2.

Eddie Jacobs, local youth, representing the University of Pittsburgh and first seeded player, was one of those who began early and completed his match. He swept aside the hard-hitting Fritz Stude, of Johns Hopkins University, in two sets, 6—1, 6—1.

Neither Dooly Mitchell nor Robert Considine, both of Washington, who are seeded third and fourth, respectively, were able to play today because of the rain. In the first round tomorrow the former will meet H. Goldman and the latter will play N. Salzman.

Japan and Australia Davis Cup Survivors

(Associated Press.)

Two old Davis Cup rivals of the United States-Japan and Australia came through to the semifinal round of the European zone play yesterday to join Italy and Czechoslovakia.

The Australians downed England by four matches to one as Harry Hopman defeated the British player, H. G. N. Lee, 6—3, 4—6, 7—9, 6—2, 6—4, and Jack Crawford trimmed J. Colin Gregory, of England, 6—2, 7—5, 6—8, 6—3, in the concluding matches of the contest at Eastbourne.

At Barcelona, the Japanese turned back the Spanish by the same margin, duplicating the feat of the Australians in winning all four of the singles matches. The final victories were scored by Takeichi Harada over Juanico, of Spain, 6—0, 6—3, 6—3, and by Yoshiro Ohta over Maier, 6—1, 6—1, 6—1. Italy previously defeated Austria, 3 and 2, and Czechoslovakia took 3 out of 5 from Holland in the other quarterfinal ties.

Ella is in the home of Millionaire Cole, grandfather of Giggles, the baby she has been taking care of for the heartbroken mother.
IT'S TRUE THAT I SEPARATED MY SON FROM HIS WIFE, THE MOTHER OF THIS BABY! I THOUGHT I WAS RIGHT, BUT YOU'VE CONVINCED ME I WAS WRONG! NOW I WANT YOU TO MEET MY WIFE—MY SECOND MARRIAGE—AND EXPLAIN THINGS TO HER!
YOUR SECOND WIFE? THAT MAKES HER GIGGLES' STEP-GRANDMOTHER, DOESN'T IT? I WONDER IF THAT'S A STEP IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION?
THIS IS THE NEW MRS. COLE, ELLA!
I HOPE WE'LL GROW TO BE OLD FRIENDS!
WHAT A CHARMING GIRL! I'M SURE WE SHALL LIKE EACH OTHER IMMENSELY!
MY DEAR, ELLA HAS CHANGED MY MIND ABOUT FORCING MY SON APART FROM HIS WIFE! I'M AFRAID WE ACTED HASTILY! ELLA HAS RETURNED THE BABY, SO WE OWE HER THE $10,000 REWARD WE OFFERED TO WHOMEVER RETURNED HER SAFELY!
WHAT? I GET THE $10,000! I MUST BE DREAMING, BUT DON'T WAKE ME UP UNTIL I SPEND IT!
OF COURSE! SHE DESERVES IT! YOU MUST MAKE OUT THE CHECK IMMEDIATELY—AND I WILL TAKE CARE OF IT FOR HER!
OH, I COULDN'T PUT YOU TO THAT BOTHER! I WON'T MIND A BIT TAKING CARE OF IT MYSELF! MONEY MAY BE THE ROOT OF ALL EVIL, BUT IT NEVER CAUSES ME THE LEAST TROUBLE—EXCEPT WHEN I HAVEN'T ANY!

THE KING WAS GREATLY INCENSED AND UPSET OVER THE PLAY THAT HAMLET HAD HAD THE ACTORS PERFORM, AND DECIDED TO SHIP THE MAD PRINCE OFF TO ENGLAND IMMEDIATELY
I LIKE HIM NOT, NOR STANDS IT SAFE WITH US TO LET HIS MADNESS RANGE!
JUST THEN POLONIUS ENTERED THE ROOM
MY LORD, HE'S GOING TO HIS MOTHER'S CLOSET: BEHIND THE ARRAS I'LL CONVEY MYSELF, TO HEAR THE PROCESS!
FARE YOU WELL, MY LIEGE: I'LL CALL UPON YOU ERE YOU GO TO BED, AND TELL YOU WHAT I KNOW!
THANKS, DEAR MY LORD!
LEFT ALONE THE KING WAS OVERCOME WITH REMORSE FOR KILLING HIS BROTHER AND IN FEAR HE ATTEMPTED TO PRAY
BUT O, WHAT FORM OF PRAYER CAN SERVE MY TURN? "FORGIVE ME MY FOUL MURDER?" THAT CANNOT BE, SINCE I AM STILL POSSESSD OF THOSE EFFECTS, FOR WHICH I DID THE MURDER, MY CROWN, MINE OWN AMBITION AND MY QUEEN!
THE WRETCHED KING FINALLY DROPPED TO HIS KNEES IN AN AGONY OF TORMENT
HELP, ANGELS! MAKE ASSAY! BOW, STUBBORN KNEES, AND, HEART WITH STRINGS OF STEEL, BE SOFT AS SINEWS OF THE NEW-BORN BABE! ALL MAY BE WELL!"

STOCKS TOBOGGAN WHILE SALES RISE

50 Issues Sell at Lowest 1930 Prices; Favorites Lose 2 to 8 Points.

RAILS ARE HEAVILY HIT

New York, June 9 (A.P.).—Liquidation, forced as well as professional, sent stock prices skidding today in one of the sharpest breaks of the year. The selling reached its largest proportions in the final hour, as weakened margin accounts were unloaded. Sales in the last 50 minutes approximated 1,800,000 shares, swelling the total to 4,646,200, and the ticker under this heavy burden was nearly an hour late.

On the surface there was nothing to account for the drop of 2 to 8 points in the favorite shares, especially utilities and amusements. Those inclined to pry under the surface, however, found an undercurrent of dissatisfaction over the general business situation, especially among operators who had counted on an improvement by June, and the sentiment that since the market could hardly be expected to make much progress at this time, another shakeout was inevitable.

Prominent banking interests were reported to be standing on the side lines picking up pivotal stocks on a scale down. Some of this support was said to have been given to U. S. Steel, which, nevertheless, broke to a new low for the year. It had plenty of company, for more than 50 stocks sold at their lowest 1930 levels, and the price index for 90 representative shares broke nearly 4 points below the bottom touched on the May break. The rail group slumped to a new low.

Opening Proves Lower.

The opening was lower, but short covering checked the decline for a time and the market turned dull. By midafternoon the bears had singled out a few stocks in which public participation had been increasing, finding in them the deep air pockets. The weakness spread rapidly throughout the list, dislodging stop-loss orders as well as weakly marnined accounts, and the market entered the last half hour with pronounced weakness, which became more acute as large blocks, held by pools, were offered.

The very meagerness of the day's news seemed to play into the hands of the professional shorts. Weekend reviews had been rather noncommittal, professing to see feeble signs of an upturn in a few business lines, but for the most part declining to make much of a forecast. Divers rumors were circulated, one of them to the effect that theater admissions were being cut, a report that helped unsettle such amusement shares as Radio-Keith-Orpheum and Warner Bros., which broke about 8 and 6 points, respectively. Radio was also heavily sold.

Prospects of another sharp decline in the Steel Corporation's unfilled tonnage for May, to be announced at noon tomorrow, contributed only a minor item to the day's crop of rumors. The company's backlog dropped 216,000 tons in April, and another decrease for last month would be in line with seasonal trends, although a somewhat learger drop than usual is looked for in Tuesday's figures.

Utilities Heavily Sold.

Selling throughout the day was most pronounced in the utilities. American Telephone dropped 4 points to within 4 of its year's low. Detroit Edison, American Power & Light, Western Union, Electric Power & Light, Laclede Gas and American & Foreign Power showed extreme losses of 6 to 9 points. In the same class were Underwood Elliott Fisher, Westinghouse, Johns-Manville, Auburn Auto and Houston Oil.

The usual number of specialties broke spectacularly. J. I. Case slumped 32¾, finishing 31 points net lower. Peoples Gas was off 26 and American Machine Foundry 15. Vanadium, Eastman Kodak and Ingersoll-Rand dropped 10 to 11. Manhattan Electrical Supply lost 5 points. The State attorney general's office is taking steps to appoint a receiver for a brokerage house allowed to have been prominent in a recent pool in the stock.

Among the stocks selling at new lows, in addition to United States Steel, were Bethlehem Steel, Studebaker, Nash Motors, Hudson Motors, Checker Cab, Pullman, Baldwin Locomotive, St. Paul common and preferred, Lackawanna, Northern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Rock Island, Wabash, Missouri-Kansas-Texas and Columbia Graphaphone.

Grain prices were firm to higher. Wheat rallied more than a cent and corn advanced fractionally. Cotton, on the other hand, showed net losses of 12 to 18 points in the later months. Sugar was quiet.

Foreign exchanges were dull and featurless.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, June 9 (A.P.).—The feature of the price movement in cotton today was a break of 56 points in July contracts under selling which was attributed to liquidation of trailing long accounts.

Except for some price fixing and covering there seemed very little demand for July and the weakness of the near position had an unsettling effect on later months, which were also sold on favorable weather and crop advices.

July contracts broke to 15.04 and closed at 15.05, while the new October sold off to 13.83 and closed at 13.87. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 55 points on July and of 12 to 18 points on later deliveries.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 3 to 7 points under selling influenced by reports of favorable weather in the cotton over Sunday. Owing to the Whitsuntide holidays there were no cables from Liverpool to affect sentiment here either way, but offerings increased after the call and some top orders were uncovered on the decline. Prices eased off in consequence, with spurts of covering supplied on moderate bulges and the market became unsettled during the middle of the day when there was liquidation of July, believed to be partly for Far Eastern or other foreign accounts and was supposed to include one line of about 10,000 bales.

News of weakness in the stock market also appeared to be a factor and new crop positions sold about 15 to 21 points net lower, with the old October declining to 14.13 and the new December contract to 13.93, making new low ground for the movement. Offerings then tapered off somewhat and later fluctuations were irregular, with new crop months showing rallies of a few points from the lowest at the close. Closing quotation for July showed a premium of 118 points over the new October, compared with 157 points at the close of Saturday.

A review of crop progress for the period, May 13 to June 5, published by a cottonseed oil interest said indications were for a decrease of about 2 per cent in acreage and that considering the crop as a whole it was getting slightly better than an average start. Some traders thought the prospect for showers in the Western Belt was rather unfavorable, but taken as a whole the day's weather news evidently made a favorable impression on sentiment.

Exports today, 14,242, making 8,485,239 so far this season. Port receipts, 6,398. U. S. port stocks, 1,711,345.

MANY STOCK OPTION BOND PRICES SLUMP

Liberty Issues Touch New 1930 Highs as Most Groups Decline.

RAIL CONVERTIBLES LIVE

New York, June 9 (A.P.).—High grade lien issues suffered today from inattention as bond trading centered in convertible and warrant issues which lost ground in sympathy with the continued liquidation in the stock market.

The heaviest turnover was in stock privilege issues and most of those in which trading was extensive lost from a fraction to more than two points. Investment bonds were sluggish and dragged listlessly through the day, with prices rising or receding narrowly and with the dominating tendency slightly downward. The most constructive aspect of the market was the continued firmness of United States Governments with Liberties establishing new highs for the year.

Call money continued at 3 per cent, and money rates were unchanged from Saturday. Investment issues needed a stimulant to stir them from their lethargy and in its absence, drifted aimlessly, some seeking slightly lower levels and very few rising higher. Prime rails, utility and industrials lost ground with few exceptions. Florida East Coast 5s lost more than a point. Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Pennsylvania, Canadian National railways, and Erie issues yielded fractionally under the lack of demand.

Baltimore & Ohio 4s Lose.

Some of the convertible issues of railroads were among the most active. Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, Chicago & Northwestern 4¾s, St. Paul 5s, Rock Island 4½s were turned over in large blocks and lost from ¼ to 1¾ points.

Philadelphia Reading Coal & Iron 6s dropped 2⅛, American Telephone 4½s, 1¼, and International Telephone, 1½. General Theaters 6s of '40 ruled unchanged.

An extensive demand developed for some oil bonds and they proved the strongest of industrials. In contrast, American Metal 5½s sagged to close to the year's low. Certainteed 5½s lost 1¼. National Dairy 5¼s was the most active of the group and slightly lower. Utilities were quiet.

Foreign List Mixed.

The appearance of the foreign list was a mixture of up and down movements. South Americans were irregular, and the principal European governments tended lower. Several German municipals and industrials were active. German Lloyd 6s moved up ½ point to near the year's high. Rhine Westphalian warrant 6s, and German Central Agriculture Bank 6s gained. Japan 6½s were firm.

Their position enhanced by the strength displayed toward the close of last week, three Liberty issues established new 1930 high marks today as banks continued their buying of Governments. Liberty 3½s rose to 100.23. The fouth 4¼ of '33-38 to 102.7 and fourth 4¼ registered to 102.17, all new highs. Treasury 4¼s registered made a spectacular advance of a point and a half on one bond.

A group headed by Chase Securities Corporation has purchased a new issue of $50,000,000 Canadian National Railway 4¾ per cent bonds, and will offer them shortly.

MORE TIMELY NEWS FOR BANKERS URGED

Association Will Consider Suggestions Made by George O. Vass.

ORIENTAL BUILDING AIDS

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The District of Columbia Bankers Association will consider a plan for securing more timely information on trade conditions, suggested by George O. Vass, vice president and cashier of Riggs National Bank, and chairman of the association's committee on commercial trade activities.

Delivering the annual report of that group at the association convention at Asheville, N. C., last week, Mr. Vass said the committee could render a service of greater value to association members if, instead of attempting to supply statistical data on business conditions two or three times a year, it presented at more frequent intervals business reports which are timely.

He suggested that the committee might better fulfill its part in the organization by informing the association through the medium of the Bulletin, its monthly publication, of special reports which may be of interest with respect to general as well as local business conditions. This suggestion was offered for the consideration of the incoming administration.

Local merchants, his message stated, report good business for the first four months of the current year and only a slight falling off in volume as compared with the same period in 1929. They said, however, that the percentage of cash sales is somewhat less than usual and that collections are slow.

"Hand-to-Mouth" Policy Followed

"The policy of hand-to-mouth buying has been followed generally by our local merchants, with the result that, as a whole, they enjoy a comfortable inventory position, and any continued falling off in wholesale commodity prices should not seriously affect earnings."

Regarding real estate and building, the report announced, "The depression in the real estate market, which began nearly three years ago, has shown no marked signs of improvement until recently." During the first three months of 1930, 274 new homes were sold as compared with 214 sold during the same period of 1929, representing an increase of 28 per cent in sales. During the same time only 204 houses were started, whereas 404 were started in the same period a year ago.

Two new members have been added to the directorate of Oriental Building Association No. 6, organized in 1861 and the oldest in the city. They are Thomas B. Young and Benjamin H. Parker.

At the recent annual meeting all other officers and directors were re-elected as follows: President, Charles H. Bauman; secretary, Henry E. Deckman; treasurer, Charles W. Schafer; directors, Carl Haneke, G. H. Schulze, John J. Kolb, William F. Ochsenreiter, August G. Herrmann, Chapin B. Bauman, Charles Schafer.

New Bank Branch Opened.

The new branch of the Washington Mechanics Savings Bank at 3401 Connecticut avenue was formally opened yesterday.

In winning the Hibbs Cup the third time at the recent annual convention of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, Clyde B. Asher, of Liberty National Bank, becomes permanent possessor of this golf trophy.

Charles L. Taylor, National Metropolitan Bank, had charge of the top spinning and horseshoe pitching contests at the conveniton.

Past President Wilmer J. Waller, of the association has been presented by its members with a gold watch in appreciation of his services.

Association members were given a splendid scenic trip by the Asheville Chamber of Commerce.

Thirty-three member banks out of 40 were represented at the Asheville convention.

The convention sent telegrams of regret to President Maurice Otterback, Anacostia Bank, and former Comptroller of the Currency McIntosh, both absent through illness.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, June 9 (A.P.).—Optimism that suited well the magnificence and beauty of the Chicago Board of Trade's new building fund reflection in higher prices for all grains today. The upward swing of values was the more remarkable as being in the face of severe setbacks shown by securities.

Aside from the effect of extra cheerful fresh surroundings here, wheat market was influenced by indications of enlarged export business from North America, by continued curtailment of the United States visible supply and by serious crop damage reports from Canada.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm at the day's topmost figures, 1c to 1½c a bushel higher than Saturday's finish. Corn closed ½c to ⅞c up, oats ½c to ⅝c advance and provisions unchanged to a rise of 2c.

So crowded was the board of trade today with thousands of visitors from near and far that transactions of business in the ordinary way proved to be impossible. Even in the wheat pit, usually filled with yelling and gesticulating brokers, many feminine guests today held vantage points to observe what was going on, and thereby established a new precendent, as well as adding to the gayety of the occasion.

Under such circumstances execution of orders was much delayed at times and price fluctuations were less lively than usual, but this circumstance was counterbalanced in great degree by the fact that many of the visitors, both on the exchange and in scores of commission houses, were taking an active hand in the day's dealings and showing a decided preference for the buying side.

Estimates of new export business in North American wheat put the day's total at as much as 1,500,000 bushels, notwithstanding the handicap of holidays abroad. Friends of higher prices took as a further stimulus the fact that the United States wheat visible supply showed 2,363,000 bushels decrease for the week. The significance of this reduction was that for the first time in a long while the domestic stock in sight was shown to be less than at the corresponding period last year, the aggregate today being 114,483,000 bushels against 116,846,000 bushels a year ago. Meanwhile, too, Canadian reports continued to refer to hot winds and soil drifting that have ruined thousands of acres of newly sown wheat. On the other hand, dry weather south of the Canadian border appeared to be much less injurious, and advices from the domestic winter wheat harvest region Southwest were more favorable than of late. However, price advances formed the rule right up to the final minute of trading.

Corn and oats took their cue chiefly from the action of wheat.

Provisions derived firmness from the upward trend of grain, notwithstanding that the hog market had an evident opposite tilt.

EDUCATION HELD AID IN LAW OBSERVANCE

Wickersham for Persuasion as Best Way to Bring Real Prohibition.

ENGLISH GAINS QUOTED

Boston, June 9 (A.P.).—Large measure observance of the law can be brought about by education and persuasion, rather than by force and harsh penalties, George W. Wickersham, chairman of the National Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement, declared tonight in addressing thousands gathered here for the fifty-seventh National Conference of Social Work.

Devoting a part of his address to the national prohibition law, Mr. Wickersham said that since its enactment there had been no attempt at education as to its merits, that temperance work had been abandoned and that dependence for enforcement had been placed upon the power of the government to punish.

He contrasted the success of England and Wales in bringing about increased temperance in part through education and improved recreation, and suggested that the British success furnished "a very cogent suggestion to those charged with the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment in the United States."

Of the prohibition enforcement problem, Mr. Wickersham said:

"One thing is perfectly obvious, and that is, that from the enactment of the Volstead act, down to the present time, reliance upon carrying out the purpose of the eighteenth amendment was placed upon the power of the Government to compel by the imposition of penalties of fine and imprisonment the general observance of the statute law.

"This method reached its peak in the enactment of the Jones law in March, 1929, which in effect made every violation of the prohibition laws, with the exception of illegal possession and maintenance of a nuisance a potential felony.

"No process of education or attempted education of the public into the value of prohibition was attempted. The long course of demonstration of the evils of the use of intoxicating liquor which led to the adoption of the eighteenth amendment was abandoned."

Quoting British authorities, Wickersham pointed out that marked decreases in drunkenness in England and Wales had been attributed "mainly to a general process of education of the public into the evils of excessive drinking and the advantages of other forms of innocent amusement." Other factors, he said, included improved housing conditions and cultural advantages, certain restrictions in hours of the sale of liquors and higher liquor costs.

Wife, Answering Bill, Again Asks for Decree

Mrs. Belle Austin Burden, of Nineteenth street northwest near I street, again yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to grant her a limited divorce and permanent alimony from her husband, Charles H. Burden, a railway company official, of F street northwest near Twenty-first street. The new request was made in answer to the husband's cross-bill for limited divorce which he filed in answer to her original petition for limited divorce and alimony.

Mrs. Burden charged that she was forced to leave her husband last October because of his alleged cruelty and addiction to liquor. Burden in his cross-bill denied his wife's charges and asserted that she deserted him without cause. The wife in her answer denies every charge made by her husband and declares that he has been unreasonably suspicious of her. Attorneys Raymond Neudecker and Jean M. Boardman appear for the wife.

Three Fires Laid To Incendiarism

Homes of Brothers Are Burned During Weekend Near Martinsburg.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 9.—Homes belonging to Charles, Dean and Kirk Smith, brothers, all in Back Creek Valley, west of here, were destroyed by fire over this week-end. Officials believe all were of incendiary origin, but no arrests have been made. Only one of the dwellings, that belonging to Charles Smith, was occupied. No insurance was carried on the buildings, which were of frame construction.

The Charles and Dean Smith homes were destroyed about the same time Saturday afternoon. The Kirk Smith home was burned early Sunday night. The first two houses were on small farms half a mile apart.

Officers are working on the theory that enemies of the Smith family fired the buildings. Several weeks ago Elmer Butts, Harold Riggs and Martin Kearns, neighbors of Charles and Dean Smith, were each sent to jail for 60 days for breaking into Charles Smith's home. Smith declared the men climbed into his room and threatened to kill him because they contended he had been informing officers regarding Back Creek Valley moonshiners.

Baltimorean Ends Life by Taking Gas

W. F. Chaney Found Overcome on Hotel Room Floor in Martinsburg.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 9.—William F. Chaney, 26, of Baltimore, committed suicide by means of gas late yesterday afternoon in the office of a motor car distributing company here, where he had been employed for the past two years.

Chaney was found last night stretched out on the floor, one hand across his breast and the other by his side, and his head not more than 6 inches from an open jet of a gas heater. He died while a pulmotor was being used to resuscitate him. Dr. H. G. Tonkin, coroner, deemed an inquest unnecessary. The coroner says a note found in Chaney's room by the hotel management said in substance: "When a fellow is all alone in the world, and his best pal won't make a promise to him, what's the use?"

Chaney drank a full ounce of tincture of iodine Friday night in an effort t oend his life. Becoming ill, he called Dr. Wayne H. Crum, who saved the man from suffering serious ill effects. He told the physician he had taken the iodine with suicidal intentions.

Chaney was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Chaney, of Brucetown, Md., near Baltimore. Besides the parents, it is understood the deceased is survived by a brother in Washington.

Parched Shenandoah Hails Brief Showers

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 9.—With intermittent showers continuing to fall tonight, local weather observers in the Shenandoah Valley have hopes that the record-breaking drought has been broken. The precipitation as yet, however, has been sufficient only to freshen up parched vegetation, affording scant relief to burned-up crops and exhausted farm water supplies.

Since last Thursday, a total of 0.67 of an inch of rain has fallen. The heaviest fall was last night, when 0.47 of an inch fell during a brief downpour. Thursday's rain was the first since May 29.

Rockingham Elections Today Will Be Quiet

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 9.—Although there are ten candidates for the four city council seats to be filled here tomorrow in the municipal election, the campaign has been the quietest in years and a light vote is in prospect.

Interest also is light in the elections to be staged in the seven incorporated towns of Rockingham County. Timberville is the only town with two tickets in the field and among the candidates are three women.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DAILY

LUELLA, reading a letter of thanks for a wedding present, was chuckling to herself.

"What's the matter now?" I asked.

"Oh," she said, "I was just thinking——"

"Thinking? And it made you laugh. Must-a been a funny thought."

"It sure was," she answered, "but you wouldn't appreciate it."

"Why not?"

"Cause you don't know the people——"

"Who are they?"

"You remember that frying pan we sent——?"

* * * *

OF all the wedding gifts that was the strangest; a frying pan. Seemed to me that was presumptuous."

"Who did it go to?" I asked.

"That boy friend of mine, the fellow who married a Cook from Kentucky——"

"A cook from Kentucky? What a lucky break he got. Personally, I believe the best cooks in the country come from Kentucky."

Luella laughed aloud: "That's the joke of it," she said, "this girl isn't a cook at all——"

I looked at Luella in amazement: "You just said she was a cook, from Kentucky——"

* * * *

LUELLA laid back on the pillows and laughed so heartily she had difficulty controlling herself.

"What's funny about that?" I asked, bewildered.

"About her cooking. She can't even boil an egg."

"Yet you said she was a cook from Kentucky—I heard you."

When she came out of her spasm, Luella explained. It seems the girl's name was Cook—Hazel Cook—of the celebrated old Kentucky family.

So the joke was on me: "And she can't even cook? Is that why you sent her a frying pan?"

* * * *

"SHE couldn't even heat water," said Luella, telling of a time when she was entertained by Miss Cook: "Why, she gave a party and everything she served came from a delicatessen store."

Imagine it.

"Well," I remarked, in passing, "What your boy friend married was not a cook from Kentucky, but a can opener——"

Luella got mad and sailed out of the room. It just goes to show how loyal women are to their friends.

THREE COUNCIL AIDS ELECTION SET TODAY

ST. MARY'S CLASS RITES

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

All is in readiness for the general election today, in which three members of the City Council will be chosen. The polls will open at sunrise, 4:40 a. m., and close at sunset, 7:35 p. m., thus giving 15 hours in which the voters may deposit their ballots. Unless the weather is unfavorable, this will no doubt mean a comparatively heavy vote, since many persons whose employment is in Washington will cast their ballots after returning home this evening.

There are three members of the council to be elected, and the Democratic nominees are: Edmund P. Ticer, incumbent; Arthur Herbert, banker and former member of the board of police commissioners, and Clyde C. Lemond, retired business man. They will be opposed by L. P. Alexander and Oliver P. Angelo, independent candidates. The new councilmen will take office at noon, September 1, and will serve four years.

The voting places are: First Ward, the armory, South Royal street; Second Ward, 110 North Royal street; Third Ward, Odd Fellows Hall, North Columbus street; Fourth Ward, Friendship Engine House, South Alfred street; Fifth Ward, the electric railroad station, Rosemont; Sixth Ward, the community building, Mount Vernon avenue, Potomac.

The entertainment is for the girls who are graduating from the graded schools into the high school. There are but seven grades in the schools of the older section of Alexandria, while the Mount Vernon School, which was taken over from Arlington County on January 1, has eight grades, which accounts for the fact that both seventh and eighth grades are to be represented.

Each girl attending the dinner will be presented with a gift, donated by the members of the club. An address will be delivered by the Rev. Homer J. Councilor, assistant pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, Washington. Mrs. Mary J. Troth, president of the Business and Professional Women's Club, will preside and introduce the speaker.

Class night exercises of St. Mary's Academy were held last night in the auditorium of the school, when the Rev. Thomas A. Rankin, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, delivered the address to the graduates.

R. H. Benson.

Commencement exercises will be held at the Academy today, beginning at 9 o'clock, in the Academy Chapel, when the Rev. Father Rankin will be the celebrant of the high mass, and the Rev. Michael J. Milford Willis, Negro, 22 years old, living at 516 North Pitt street, ran amuck yesterday in the northeastern section of the city after, it is alleged, consuming a quantity of corn whisky. He frightened passers-by by flourishing a revolver, which he is alleged to have thrown away when approached by Policemen Pierce and Rawlett, who had no difficulty in arresting him.
